BATTLE LINES ARE DRAWN FOR OPENING OF CONGRESS; BONUS AND NEUTRALITY ISSUES WHIPPED INTO SHAPE

WEATHER OUTLOOK HOLDS FORTH HOPE FOR RELIEF TODAY

Rain With Continuance of Freezing Temperatures Increases Ice Load and Adds to Woes of Weary Utility Workers.

MAIN POWER LINE OUT NEAR WINDER

Fitful Actions of Elements Baffling, Forecasters Admit; Today's Range Seen as 32 to 36.

Hope of relief from the icy grip of winter which has thrown Atlanta and surrounding territory into a chaos of inconvenience and damaged property was expressed last night by the United States Weather Bureau office here with a late forecast of above freezing temperatures based on the latest caprices of the elements.

A vigorous thunderstorm last night at Jackson, Miss., showed the presence of warm air areas coming into contact with the cold air, said the weatherman. Wind currents and low pressure areas back up the prediction that the mercury is not likely to go below the freezing point today, it was said.

Throughout Tuesday night and yesterday, linemen for telephone and electric light companies found their fight to restore full service to the city and its suburbs hampered by the rain and mist that froze as it settled and polished off the city's ice coat to a slickness that made it almost impossible to navigate repair trucks from pole to pole. The gradual thickening of the ice covering increased the problems of the linemen trying to scale the poles.

Late last night a power company official announced that "we are back where we were Sunday morning." Lines freed suddenly of their ice burden snapped. Others, damaged by trees snapping back after losing the ice burden, threw out new sections of the city's electrical system.

All street cars with the exception of the Cooper-Pine line will be in service this morning, with probably only one of the Grant Park lines in service, however. Coaches, forced from the streets by the ice film, were placed back in service late yesterday and will be operating this morning unless a sudden drop in temperature brings new ice to the streets.

If temperatures early today keep above the freezing point workers of the power company will be able to begin work on permanent repairs, the official said.

"It will be at least several days before normalcy can be restored," he said.

A temperature reading of 33 degrees at 7 o'clock last night showed the mercury above the freezing point for the first time since last Saturday, when the damaging ice storm got under way.

Fitful responses of the weather to the forecasts have increased the problem of the weather bureau. Snow predicted for Tuesday spent itself in rain which began to fall about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. With the mercury still hovering near the freezing mark, forecasters are baffled in their efforts to furnish accurate predictions.

The original forecast for today of a temperature range between 30 and 36 degrees was recalled last night by the weatherman, who declared that the mercury probably would stay within a range several degrees higher.

Grayson, Paulman Lead Stanford To 7-0 Win Over S. M. U. on Coast

Louisiana State Tigers Defeated by Texas Christian, 3-2, in Sugar Bowl; Catholic Defeats Ole Miss., 20-19, in Orange Bowl; East Defeats West.

By The Associated Press.

Stanford's surprising 7-to-0 victory over a strongly favored Southern Methodist team in the annual Rose Bowl game before 85,000 fans furnished the high spot of a New Year's Day football program which included more post-season "bowl" games than ever before.

The Indians, smothering the famous Mustang passing attack, scored in the first period when a long pass put them down on the two-yard line and Bill Paulman, sophomore quarterback, slanted off tackle across the goal.

The West, however, got only an even break for the day as every section shared in the honors. The annual all-star charity game at San Francisco saw the "East" gather speed in the final quarter after John Sylvester, of Rice, had booted a field goal for the West, and ripped off a 19-to-3 triumph before nearly 60,000. The Easterners rose to the heights as they seized the breaks and intercepted passes to score three times.

Texas Christian, runner-up to Southern Methodist in the Southwest conference, turned back Louisiana State, Southeastern conference titleholder, 3 to 2, before 35,000 at the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, as rain kept both teams from flashing their aerial attacks.

Catholic University, of Washington, piled up an early lead then stood off the last-quarter rallies of Mississippi to win the second "Orange Bowl" game at Miami, 20 to 19, before 10,000.

The "Sun Bowl" game at El Paso, Texas, saw Hardin Simmons, of Abilene, Texas, and the New Mexico Aggies play a 14-14 tie.

The Detroit Lions, National professional league champions, whipped an all-star team from the same circuit, 33 to 0, at Denver.

A scholastic intersectional game brought Hillsborough High school of Tampa, Fla., a 7-to-6 triumph over the New York Free Adacemy, of Utica, N. Y., in a charity game at Tampa.

STANFORD WINS, 7 TO 0, FROM TEXAS ELEVEN

By BRIAN BELL.

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Stanford's light-hearted football players were serious today as they defeated Southern Methodist University, 7 to 0, before a crowd of more than 85,000.

The only touchdown of the game was scored when the first period was about three-quarters over, Bill Paulman, Stanford's sophomore quarterback, slanting off his own left tackle from the two-yard line to be the first,

TALMADGE STARTS HIS DICTATORSHIP; CAPITOL IS CALM

No Martial Law Declared and No Executive Orders Issued as One-Man Reign Is Launched.

Governor Talmadge formally assumed financial dictatorship of the state yesterday with no ripple on the surface of governmental affairs. There was no martial law. There was no executive order of any kind. Things just went on as usual.

Money for operations still poured into the treasury from 1935 taxes and both State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and State Auditor Tom Wisdom reported that it would be Saturday before they were able to determine just how much cash the treasury had on hand as of the close of business at midnight Tuesday night. Checks from county tax collectors are still in the mails. When they arrive they go to Comptroller General William B. Harrison and thence into the treasury.

Governor Talmadge did nothing about the situation and indicated strongly that he does not intend to do anything about it immediately.

Confers With Joiner.

He conferred during the day with W. L. Joiner, chief clerk of the motor vehicle division of the revenue department, and announced that the division is ready to put Georgia's 1936 automobile license tags on sale today.

"The division under Mr. Joiner can handle 25,000 tag sales a day if need be," the Governor said. "If everyone acts promptly the 400,000 tags will be sold before January ends."

About the financial situation Talmadge had no comment.

"Things are running just as they always have," he said. "We have more money in the treasury than ever before and Georgia does not owe a dollar that is past due. It is the best condition our state has ever been in."

Judges' Salaries Due Soon.

Unless the Governor changes his apparent course the people will not know definitely how he plans to go through the year until January 15, when the judges of the supreme court of appeals and the superior courts draw their first salaries of 1936. The money on hand in the treasury represents what was collected over and above the 80 per cent given all state departments, except the judiciary, which drew 100 per cent. The salaries of the judges and solicitors-general come out of an appropriation which always is fixed at the exact amount needed. So when budgets cuts are ordered it is not possible to make them affect the judges.

In other years there usually were no tax collections during the first few weeks of the year and all departments functioned on funds which are carried over from the year previous. That is what the departments are doing at present.

$1,500,000 in Treasury.

It was generally expected yesterday that the cash in the treasury as of yesterday would be about $1,500,000 when all checks from tax collectors are received. This amount will permit the departments of the government to function between 30 and 60 days, although some provision must be made

Bonus Leaders Confer in Washington With Byrns

SPECULATION RIFE ON NIGHT SESSION FOR F.D.R. SPEECH

President's Message To Be Received at 9 P. M.; Both Houses Will Convene at Noon With Brief Formal Ceremonies.

PATMAN CONFERS AT WHITE HOUSE

Capital Rumors Compromise Measure May Dispose of Perennial Cash Payment Issue This Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A series of democratic conferences today shaped both the issues that will occupy the coming session of congress and the plans for a precedent-shattering curtain-raising next Friday night.

Some legislators were still somewhat stunned by the decision to dramatize the opening of the hoped-for short session by having President Roosevelt personally pronounce his legislative recommendations at the unusual hour of 9 p. m., before a joint session of the senate and house.

It was learned on high authority that the night session, to follow perfunctory formal openings at noon in each house, was considered of such significance that it was discussed at last Friday's cabinet meeting. It was broached the day before that. Who originated it was not announced, but most authorities had a feeling it was none other than the President himself.

The motive behind the night session plan likewise remained a secret, unless it was intended to give Mr. Roosevelt the widest possible publicity by employing the radio at a time when most persons have the dials turned on.

Robinson, Garner Talk.

Senator Robinson, the democratic floor leader, returned to the capital during the day and discussed the opening arrangements with Vice President Garner. Robinson had been consulted by telegraph in Arkansas and had given the night meeting idea his approval. Republican leaders gave their assent at a meeting with Garner last night.

As the physical arrangements went ahead for the colorful spectacle to be staged in the huge house chamber, soldiers' bonus and neutrality proposals, two subjects to receive early congressional attention, began running the preliminary-discussion gauntlets.

The President had a long talk with Representative Patman, democrat, Texas, author of the inflationary plan to pay the bonus with $2,000,000,000 of new currency, which was vetoed last session, giving rise to speculation a compromise measure may rise out of the perennial cash payment struggle.

Patman would not discuss his conference, but announced a special steering committee of 20 house members would meet tomorrow to discuss strategy.

Bonus Plans Shaped.

Representative Vinson, democrat, Kentucky, said he hoped to finish drafting tomorrow a new bonus measure somewhat different from his cash payment proposal of last session, which left the method of financing to the treasury.

86 CITIES IMPROVE TRAFFIC RECORDS

While Some Show Losses, Total Reveals Lowering of Death Rates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The traffic fatality record of 86 major American cities, considered as a whole, was reported by the Commerce Department today to have improved slightly in 1935.

Although many of the cities individually displayed worse records than in 1934, total deaths from traffic accidents for the 52 weeks ended December 21 were at a rate of 23.4 per 100,000 population, compared with 24.2 per 100,000 in the comparable 1934 period.

The total killed in these cities in the 1935 period was 8,751, against 9,042 in the 52 weeks of 1934.

The Commerce Department's report on traffic accident deaths for 1935 shows Atlanta thirteenth from the top of the list in total fatalities and tenth from the top in deaths from accidents within the city.

Atlanta recorded a figure of 39.8 deaths per 100,000 population for persons dying in the city and a rate

Cobb Says: New Year Is Starting Off Bad

By IRVIN S. COBB.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 1. I hate to start off the new year by being the bearer of sad tidings, but a gentleman just in from the east tells me he had it on good authority, coming out on the train, that congress is fixing up to meet again, almost immediately. I suppose it's too late to do anything about it now, but I feel it my duty to pass the word along so that everybody may be prepared for the worst.

They say these great disasters always come in threes. So I'm cowering in the root-cellar with my rabbit's foot clutched in both hands.

I also hear the supreme court has gone up-to-date and taken on a press agent. Can this be a belated answer to that horse-and-buggy crack?

BALANCED BUDGET SOUGHT FOR CITY

Commission To Continue Session Today, Friday; Would Restore Pay Cuts

Despite a five-hour session of the Atlanta budget commission yesterday, the 1936 fiscal problems of the municipality remained unsolved and additional meetings are planned for this morning and probably Friday.

Appropriation demands stood at $9,493,115 when the commission adjourned during the afternoon a figure which was $398,000 in excess of 1936 anticipations.

The appropriation sheet, however, listed base salaries, that is the amount individual employes drew before the cuts were imposed to prevent running excessive deficits. If a 10 per cent cut is imposed it will amount to about $245,(of the $398,000, leaving only $153,000 yet to be slashed from the tentative budget.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, announced the city ended the year with a deficit of only $19,500, but the total deficit, including that brought over from former years, pushes the amount in arrears to $1,586,387.

Good Tax Collections.

He also told members of the commission the city last year collected 87.5 per cent of its general tax bills as against a general average of about 70 per cent for the past several years.

Total estimated receipts for 1936 are set at $9,095,115 in the tentative sheet of the budget commission.

Among major items carried in the tentative appropriation sheet of the commission are the following:

An increase of $12,000 in the street light fund with a view of retaining the whiteway lights throughout the winter months; $2,400 for modernizing the synchronized traffic control system in the Five Points area; $17,000 to match WPA funds for remodeling the entrance and Taft hall at the city auditorium; $7,500 for architects' fees in the auditorium job; $5,000 to match WPA improvements at Carnegie library; $10,000 for similar work at the waterworks.

All Departments Hit.

Virtually every department suffered as the budget commission denied demands for additional sums for improvements.

Mayor Key, West, Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, and Councilmen Max M. Cuba and John Owen compose the commission.

Led by the mayor, members of the commission yesterday labored to restore five per cent of the cuts imposed on city employes and, if the money is available, there is no doubt the commission will make that recommendation.

Cuts heretofore have ranged from 5 to 15 per cent, but if 5 per cent is restored, only those in the higher brackets will be slashed at all and theirs will be only to 10 per cent.

Hopes to Reduce Cuts.

"I hope we are able to reduce the salary cuts" Key told the commission. "Don't put in any individual raises for any employes. Let's put the salaries back as rapidly as we can and, when that is accomplished, we can take up other recommendations regarding salary adjustments."

Other members of the commission agreed with him. Another meeting of the commission will be held at 8:30 o'clock this morning in order to drive deliberations to an early conclusion so that West can compile the commission's recommendations in time for filing them formally with council next Monday.

Turkey Will Build $18,000,000 Air Force

ANKARA, Jan. 1.—(UP)—The Turkish government, convinced by the Mediterranean crisis that her air force is inadequate, today voted a special expenditure of $18,000,000 for fighting planes.

Salaried workers will pay for the planes by a special tax of 2 per cent on all salaried earnings. It will be deducted after four other special taxes are imposed. President Mustapha Kemal Ataturak has adopted this means of raising funds in order not to unbalance the budget.

LINDBERGH PLANS STILL UNREVEALED

Family Spends Quiet New Year's in Seclusion. Seeks Peace and Rest.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh spent new year's with their little son, Jon, in the seclusion of a Liverpool hotel suite today, and it was reported they may leave by automobile, possibly for Wales, tomorrow.

An official spokesman, in the first statement authorized by the famous flyer since he reached British shores aboard the United States steamer American Importer yesterday, said the Lindberghs came to England seeking "quiet and a peaceful, restful, time."

"Driven Out by Crime."

The spokesman, W. H. Gregory, of Morgan, Grenfell & Company, would not deny, however, that the family left the United States "because they were driven out by crime."

Asked if the Lindberghs came to England because 3-year-old Jon was threatened with the fate of his kidnaped and murdered brother or because of the imminent execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Gregory merely replied:

"You will have to read between the lines regarding that."

Other guests were barred from the Lindberghs' section of the Adelphia hotel as the flying colonel and his brown-eyed wife, Anne, helped Jon get his land legs after the rough sea voyage.

They have no nurse as yet.

All sorts of rumors were circulated regarding the Lindberghs' plans, which Gregory maintained were indefinite.

Expecting Visitors.

One report was that they were taking the afternoon train for London. A first-class compartment was reserved mysteriously for a special stop nine miles outside Liverpool. But when the train reached London, Lord Derby emerged from the compartment.

Although Gregory said the Lindberghs had not communicated with members of the J. Llewellyn Morgan family in Llandaff, Wales, the Morgans apparently were expecting the visitors at any time. Aubrey Niel Morgan, son of L. Llewellyn Morgan, is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindbergh.

It also was reported, however, that

Day's Developments In Ethiopian Crisis

By The Associated Press.

ROME—Duce says Somali aerial bombardment "justified" because Ethiopian troops beheaded fascist aviators; "didn't mean to bomb" Swedish Red Cross units. French ambassador asks persistent efforts for peace.

DESSYE, Ethiopia—Selassie protests alleged destruction of Swedish ambulance, poison gas bombardment, as "criminal acts;" tells League Italy "unpunished."

GENEVA — League observers forecast council will take up whole question of air bombardments; particularly attacks on Red Cross units.

IL DUCE DEFENDS FASCIST BOMBING

Action "Fully Justified" by Beheading of Aviators by Foes, He Avers.

ROME, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Italian government insisted today that Monday's aerial bombardment on the southern African front was "fully justified" by the alleged beheading of two fascist aviators.

While Frenchmen in Rome heard a call for "untiring obstinancy for peace" from the French ambassador, Count Charles de Chambrun, an official communique declared: "The Italian planes did not mean to bomb tents of the Swedish Red Cross or other Red Crosses."

Referring apparently to reports of the destruction of a Swedish ambulance in an aerial raid near Dolo on the troops of Ras Desta Demtu, the statement charged consistent misuse of the Red Cross emblem by Ethiopian commanders.

De Chambrun, receiving a group of his countrymen, said France's desire for peace was not a selfish defense of the "status quo," but a positive desire for further collective organization in Europe.

Co-operation Sought.

"For this work," the ambassador asserted, "the active sympathy of all nations is needed. Need it be said that the co-operation of new nations is more precious than that of Italy, bound to us by so many common memories and profound affinities?"

He did not conceal his anxiety in the face of "general restlessness which renders it necessary today, more than ever, that we join forces with all men of good will, animated and sustained by the peace ideal."

The communique said it was "well known" that "Ethiopian chieftains take shelter under Red Cross signs when they see Italian airplanes."

It characterized as a "proved fact" the decapitation by Ethiopians of two Italian aviators who crashed at Dagrah Bur, in Ogaden province.

"Their heads were carried to Harar in triumph," it was stated.

Airmen Unidentified.

The communique did not identify the aviators or give the date of their alleged decapitation, however. It said the number of dead in the bombardment near Dolo "is not definitely stated" in reports from the African command.

"New capital, being made of this episode, is without basis," the government added. "The war methods of the Ethiopians on the Somaliland and Eritrean fronts already are shown in documents given to the League of Nations."

Reports from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the Italian high commander in Ethiopia, described new occupations by former Ethiopian troops "who have submitted to us," and said the air force in the north has been "very active in reconnoitering this region."

In Italy, fascists began the new

NEW STRIFE STIRS DEMOCRATIC RANK

Liberty League's Support Assailed by New Deal Advocates in Capital.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Democratic forebodings of costly party strife increased today with the advent of the 1936 political word wars.

Although some foremost democrats actively support the American Liberty League, it became increasingly clear that his organization is linked with the republican leadership by the New Deal as its opposition.

The trend to attack the league, especially n ticeable since the announcement that Alfred E. Smith would address its dinner here January 25, continued in a statement by Senator Hayden, of Arizona, upholding Roosevelt spending.

President Jouett Shouse and other Liberty League spokesmen have vehemently denounced that spending. Smith is expected to criticize it along with other New Deal policies in his speech.

Senator Lewis, democrat, Illinois, in an interview predicted a Liberty League presidential ticket under the name "constitutional democrats," and possibly with Smith as the nominee. League headquarters would not discuss the possibility.

New York Delegation.

The purpose in Lewis' opinion, would be to split the New York vote. "It's good politics to calculate that the loss of New York alone could defeat the President," he said. "Those 45 electoral votes, if taken from us, could offset the winning in the west of seven different sta "

Young King Leopold, of Belgium, Seeks To End Italo-Ethiopian War

By RALPH HEINZEN.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

PARIS, Jan. 2.—(UP)—Leopold III, tragic young king of the Belgians, will attempt the hazardous role of Italo-Ethiopian peacemaker which cost Sir Samuel Hoare, of England, his foreign ministry and shook the prestige of Premier Pierre Laval, of France, the United Press learned tonight.

Rumors current in European diplomatic quarters for several weeks that Leopold was endeavoring to bridge Anglo-Italian differences were based upon fact. It is now possible to reveal details of the 34-year-old king's efforts—which if successful will make him leading candidate for the Nobel peace prize.

High French officials doubt that Leopold will succeed any better than Hoare and Laval. They believe he may succeed in improving relations between Great Britain and Italy through their royal houses, but doubt if he can discover a peace formula acceptable to Italy, Ethiopia and pro-League of Nations opinion in Europe.

The king, who since February, 1934, has lost his father, King Albert, in a mountain climbing accident, and his wife, beautiful Princess Astrid, in an automobile crash, has been active for several weeks. Belgium, it was ascertained, "is the 'small European power, neither France nor Britain' which the Italian press has been forecasting would make early peace overtures."

Leopold visited King George at Buckingham palace before Sir Samuel Hoare's ill-starred visit to Paris to draw up the abortive Franco-British proposals on the week-end of December 7-8. It is known now that he painted a black picture of the future if the war were not ended soon, and carried a personal message to the royal family of England from the House of Savoy of Italy.

He is believed to have asserted that there was danger of some head-strong act of retaliation against League of Nations sanctionists by Italy which might risk collapse of the royal family. Leopold is interested in sustaining the Italian royal house because his sister, the Princess of Piedmont, is in line to mount the throne before long.

Some diplomats believe this message was the direct cause of the British "about-face" which enabled Sir Samuel to come to Paris and collaborate with Laval on the peace formula.

Leopold now is in London but it is doubted this visit has the same significance as his first. However, he is understood to be working to obtain from the interested powers their minimum demands so he can attempt conciliation on a new basis.

NEW GERM DISCOVERED BY 3 CHICAGO DOCTORS

Discovery Is Termed Apparent Cause of Intestinal Ulcers by Trio.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Discovery of a brand-new germ was announced today by three University of Chicago doctors.

They named it bacterium necrophorum and termed it the apparent cause of chronic ulcerative colitis (intestinal ulcers) in reporting to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The discovery was made by Dr. G. M. Dack, Dr. Lester R. Dragstedt and Dr. Theodore E. Heinz, of the university department of hygiene and bacteriology, surgery and medicine.

The trio said they isolated the germ in 13 of 20 cases of ulcerative colitis and found it the "predominant organism" in the disease.

"It persisted as the predominant type so long as the colon remained severely diseased," they asserted, but "became less frequent during periods of remission."

The germ was described as "very sensitive to oxygen" and "several strains were lost . . . when the lid of an anaerobic jar cracked during incubation, allowing oxygen to have access to the cultures."

The three doctors said their find "resembles very closely the bovine bacillus necrophorus . . . (which) is important in animal disease since it produces severe septic processes in a number of domestic animals."

Among animal diseases identified with bacillus necrophorus are calf diphtheria, intestinal ulcers in hog cholera and lung disorders of cattle and swine.

Other apparent close relatives of the colitis germ have been reported in cases of liver abscesses in man.

LINDY FUTURE PLANS ARE STILL INDEFINITE

Gregory had gone to London to negotiate for a house there or in Surrey and that the Lindberghs were awaiting his return before deciding what to do.

Throughout the dark and misty New Year's, which is not a holiday in England, crowds gathered sporadically in front of the hotel just to stare at the facade.

But the Lindberghs ate all their meals within the walls of their second-floor rooms and did not show themselves at the windows.

Appear Nervous.

The hotel housekeeper told other members of the Adelphia staff that both appeared very nervous, particularly Mrs. Lindbergh.

"She seems pathetic," she added, "my heart bleeds for her."

Both mother and son retired early last night while Liverpool society held forth hilariously in the hotel ballroom. Lindbergh had dinner with Gregory, then went to bed.

Gregory said Colonel Lindbergh refused definitely to be interviewed.

He is in England on a six-month visa, renewal of which will "depend on circumstances," the spokesman added. Asked if the colonel would surrender his American citizenship and live elsewhere permanently, Gregory replied: "Not that I know of."

In a short statement handed out by Gregory, Lindbergh said he was "very pleased by the consideration shown myself and family, and I am looking forward to quiet and rest in this country."

"My visit here is not connected in any way with business," he added.

POLICE ARE BALKED IN PRIGNANO PROBE

Officers Seek To Trace Auto Which Failed Slayers in Attempt To Flee.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Conflicting stories balked police efforts today to determine ownership of the decrepit get-away car which failed the three slayers of State Representative Albert J. Prignano.

The automobile, which the gunmen were unable to start after shooting down Prignano on his doorstep Sunday night, was the best apparent clue to their identities.

Maxwell street police, who patrol the "bloody twentieth" ward over which Prignano held sway as democratic committeeman, seized and interrogated a dozen men today, but concentrated on five of them. They were:

Angelo Lazzia, a motor car salesman, who Police Captain John Stege said sold the car several months ago.

Charles Cutata, a notary public, under a police guard on his sick bed.

Joseph Lapicola (or Lopiccola) and his two sons, Eugene, 30, and Tony, 28.

Captain Stege said the state license application for the car which the killers abandoned was in the name of "Sam Lapicola" and bore Cutaia's notary seal.

The conflicting stories, Captain Stege said, were told by the notary and the Lapicolas.

Both theories of Prignano's death—that he might have been assassinated for political reasons or possibly killed for resisting a robbery—were still entertained tonight by officers.

Witnesses to the killing said the gunmen declared "this is a stick-up," took a valuable ring from the representative and then shot him.

ROOSEVELT EULOGIZES CAMP FIRE GIRLS' PLAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Executives of the Camp Fire Girls, opening a six-day national conference today, heard a message from President Roosevelt, honorary president of the organization, in which he commended their program.

"I understand," the President wrote, "that hospitality is the theme of your special project for this new year. Hospitality is a gracious and significant word—it connotes the warmth and comfort of our fireside, shared with friend and stranger, and similarly a welcoming understanding of new ideas which, at first, may come to us as strangers. Only through a feeling of true friendliness and understanding can we make a happy world."

In a talk broadcast to the group from Washington, John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs, complimented the organization on its "living contact with Indian symbolism and Indian culture as being not a mere contact with Indians but with universal life, with the Indian tribes which alone know that adolescense is the God-given, the supreme opportunity."

Fifty-two women executives are attending the meeting. Executive honors and awards will be announced Friday.

SELASSIE EXCORIATES ITALIAN WAR METHODS

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)

IMPERIAL ETHIOPIAN HEADQUARTERS, DESSYE, Jan. 1.—Emperor Haile Selassie called "unpunished" Italy brusquely to account before the League of Nations today for alleged poison gas warfare and destruction of a Swedish ambulance by fascist war planes on the southern battlefront.

"We again protest most explicitly against the criminal acts of the Italian government," said the emperor's note, relayed to Geneva from this field headquarters city, itself the target of Italian air bombs which struck a hospital and Red Cross tents on December 6.

The Negus charged specifically that Italian fliers, in raining explosives on the southern army of his son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, near Dolo, used poison gas and completely destroyed a Swedish Red Cross ambulance laden with sick and wounded.

Other officials said numerous natives were gassed in the Monday raid and that Dr. Hylander, chief of the Swedish Red Cross in the Ogaden, was wounded gravely.

(Addis Ababa dispatches Tuesday, quoting a telegram from Ras Desta, said nine Swedes and 23 Ethiopians were slain in the attack.)

A whole section of Dolo, on the Somali-Ethiopian frontier, was bombarded, authorities claimed. They said the Italians concentrated on Desta's troop concentrations in the environs of the towns, and it was indicated the Swedish ambulance was in the midst of the concentrations.

Selassie's protest called the League's attention to the previous "bombardment of the Aduwa hospital and Dessye ambulances," and said the Swedish ambulance involved in Monday's incident was "plainly marked and contained a number of sick and injured."

"Italy is pursuing unpunished in the name of civilization its inhumane actions," he declared.

LEAGUE WILL STUDY AERIAL BOMBING

GENEVA, Jan. 1.—(AP)—League of Nations observers, stirred by reports of the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross ambulance by Italian war planes, predicted tonight the whole question of aerial bombardment will be discussed at the January 20 session of the League council, if not before.

Particularly will the matter of attacks on Red Cross centers be taken up, these observers forecast.

The League today published an Ethiopian protest concerning the alleged ambulance bombing, signed by Emperor Haile Selassie.

SWEDEN TO PROBE BOMBING IN ITALY.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Prince Carl, president of the Swedish Red Cross, called tonight for a special meeting of the organization tomorrow to consider action to be taken as a result of the wiping out of a Swedish Red Cross unit in Ethiopia by Italian bombing planes Monday.

Some informed sources asserted that the Swedish Red Cross was taking the view that Italian air bombardments in Ethiopia, hitting first an American hospital in Dessye recently, then the Swedish workers, had been "deliberately" directed against the Red Cross.

Feeling has been running high in Sweden since reports were received of the bombing, and the nation was reported ready to send a bigger and better Red Cross unit to Ethiopia.

The Swedish press asserted the Italian airmen saw members of the Red Cross unit having Swedish flags to call attention to their location, before the bombing.

The assertion was based, the newspapers said, on a copy of the Italian newspaper Messagero of December 27, reaching here today from Rome, declared to contain a dispatch from Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, saying the Italian aviators saw Swedish flags.

86 U. S. CITIES IMPROVE TRAFFIC CONDITIONS of 30.1 on fatalities from accidents occurring within city limits.

The lowest mortality rate in the 1935 period was 9.5 in San Francisco. In 1934, San Francisco led with 8.2.

The highest rate in 1935 was 74.7 in Camden, N. J. The highest 1934 rate also was in Camden with 71.3.

All these figures include deaths from accidents occuring both inside the city limits, and in the suburbs.

For deaths within city limits, the lowest 1935 rate was 5.8 in Lynn, Mass. The lowest 1934 rate was 7.7 in San Francisco. The highest 1935 rate for deaths within city limits was 43.6 in Miami.

The following table gives comparative data on each of the 86 cities for the 52 weeks ending on December 21:

Police, Fire Activities Increase During Year

Atlanta's two uniform departments appeared yesterday to have established fine records for 1935.

The fire department ended the year with losses estimated at $250,000, a record for the past 28 years with the single exception of 1934, when the total loss was $195,000, and established a 33-year record. Completion of the report is expected today.

Pointing to "fewer robberies and apprehension of more burglars" as an indication of the efficiency of the police department, Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, yesterday promised continued good service.

He reiterated his statement that he will vote to fire any policeman convicted by the committee of drinking intoxicants. Although the report of 1935 police activities has not yet been completed, the identification bureau reported it had photographed 1,656 suspects in 1935 as against 911 in 1934; that 7,224 photographs were distributed in 1935 as compared to 4,752 for 1934; that fingerprints taken doubled those of 1934 and that police department revenues from all sources were $208,492 for 1935 as against $183,983 in 1934.

Beech, birch, maple, sap and regum are reported as being used in largest quantities for handles of tea kettles and coffee pots.

Don't Neglect Minor THROAT IRRITATION

DON'T take chances. Rub on soothing, warming Musterole. Relief generally follows.

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating—helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau, No. 4867.

PROSPERITY CENSUS WILL START TODAY

Survey Will Cover Approximately 5,500,000 Business Establishments.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—(UP) Federal census workers in every section of the nation will start checking up on prosperity tomorrow in a survey of approximately 5,500,000 business establishments.

The "census of American business for the American businessman" will include every form of enterprise not already covered by federal surveys.

Field workers not only will gather figures on the basic industries, but will go to the corner grocery, the independent drugstore, and the neighborhood dry goods shop to find out how the "little fellow" is doing under the New Deal.

The actual survey will be completed March 31, and by July 1, preliminary tabulations will show the country in black and white just how far business has progressed out of the depths of depression toward recovery.

Chief Statistician Fred A. Gosnell, who came from Washington to take charge of the project at national headquarters here, said the survey will be as complete and accurate as any of the other undertakings of the Bureau of Census.

tion of the fiscal condition of the government, including the administration of the billions already spent."

"Actually all the average person knows of the fiscal conduct of their federal government" he said, "is that on every side they have seen the lavish spending spree of the merry-madcaps at Washington."

Hoover's Record.

Hayden said the Hoover administration went out with the government more than $3,000,000,000 "in the red," and having increased the national debt from $15,900,000,000 to over $21,000,000,000.

It has risen $9,000,000,000 since, he acknowledged, but contended this to be justified by the greater national income resulting.

"The Hoover spending," he said, "which it will be recalled did not require a Liberty League or super committee of corporation lawyers for supervisory purposes, was ineffective because it did not go far enough or deep enough."

The Hayden-Barbour exchange was considered at the capitol, but a tame prelude to what is coming. The President himself may strike out more directly at his critics in the opening message to congress Friday night and the 1936-37 budget, probably Monday.

"Tough" Stand Urged.

Representative Maverick, democrat, Texas, recommended to him this afternoon that he undertake a "tough" attitude. He told reporters later an "offensive against the Liberty League and that 'big shot' crowd" would get unqualified support from the voters.

How far the President goes in that direction will be closely watched. There has been no suggestion of inclination on his part to compromise.

Chairman Farley, of the democratic national committee, on the other hand, undertook only this week to speak of "the American Lobbyist League signing checks with the same lavishness its members displayed for the lobbying through of the Smoot-Hawley tariff in the last republican congress."

Joined in the league with Smith, the 1938 democratic presidential nominee, is John W. Davis, the 1934 nominee.

Arrivals for the congressional session differ over whether the two would carry their opposition to the extent of seeking to block Roosevelt renomination or, that failing, to bolting the party. But they agree the situation will become clearer before this month is ended.

VESSEL ADRIFT 5 DAYS, IS TOWED INTO PORT

LYME, Regis, Dorset, Eng., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The American ketch Radiance, her sails blown to shreds and engine useless, was towed into this port tonight after drifting five days in Channel gales.

Among those aboard were a Mrs. Plisson, an American living in Monte Carlo, and her sons, Herbert and Gerrard Richardson.

Lieut. Paul Thompson, U. S. N., retired, part owner of the craft, and a crew of three Americans and three Frenchmen completed the list of persons on the vessel.

'P. S.: Drive Carefully' Is Reminder Put on All Atlantans' Letters

Reiteration of Vital Warning May Postpone First Traffic Fatality of 1936 on City's Streets, Hope of Safety Council.

An Atlantan wrote a letter to a close friend the other day and was just about to seal the envelope when he thought of something.

He reopened the folded sheet and wrote:

"P. S. Drive carefully."

The more he looked at the words, he said in a conversation with The Constitution Safety Council, the more he realized how much they meant.

He then resolved to include this postscript on every letter to a personal friends or relative.

"I don't care about your using my name," he told the Safety Council, "but you can use the idea for whatever you think it is worth."

And it is worth a lot in the opinion of the Safety Council.

Constant Reminder.

People need to be reminded continually that careful driving is the one way to eliminate the awful havoc of automobile crashes. An effective way for you to help remind your friends and loved ones is to append this post script on every letter to them. It takes only a few seconds and might be the means of averting the most horrible catastrophe.

"P. S. Drive carefully."

In news stories of fatal traffic accidents within the city limits of Atlanta, The Constitution employs the practice of denoting the total number reached with each fatality of the year by a large black number.

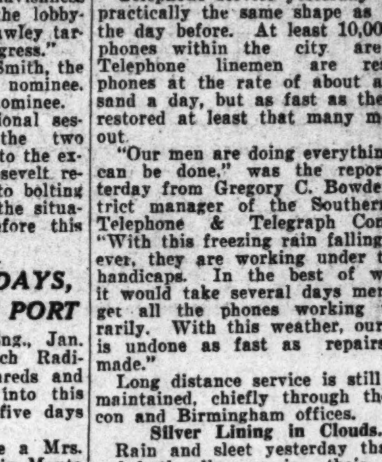

During 1935, the total number rose to 73, topping the fatalities of the previous year by eight victims. To thoughtless people, these are just black numbers on a printed page. But to those capable of realizing what lies back of the figures, they mean that during the past two years 138 people in this city have experienced that sickening crash of metal and glass of an automobile accident, have seen bones jutting through their quivering flesh while their own blood strangled the insane screams in their throats. And later a doctor shaking his head over a still form in a hospital emergency ward. Not a nice picture, to be sure. But one that recurs with increasing frequency.

Day Without Fatality.

Atlanta passed through the first day of 1936 yesterday without an accident fatality within the city limits.

0 The traffic fatality number this morning is zero. How can that number be kept? The answer is simple: By careful driving and walking, practiced by every motorist and pedestrian in the city. Remember that No. 1 this year, when and if it is recorded, may be you or someone very close to you.

The seven simple rules of safe driving contained in the Safety Council pledge can keep you from experiencing the horror of death or maiming injury in an automobile smashup. Clip out the pledge blank found elsewhere in this issue. Sign it and mail it to the Safety Council, Atlanta Constitution, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. You will be sent two pledge signer stickers for the front and rear windows of your car. Their presence on your car, like the "drive carefully" post script, will remind you that the possibility of an emergency is present every minute you are at the wheel of your car.

The correct traffic signals shown in the above drawing at the left are an agreement of motorists, used to help other drivers to anticipate whether you are going to stop or turn, and in which direction. A person who does not live up to an agreement is always held in contempt. Use the signals as a courtesy if you are not interested in them for the damage to life and property they can save you.

WEATHER MODERATION NOT IN SIGHT FOR CITY

Avenue and the Ponce de Leon line into Druid Hills.

Decatur residents found some comfort yesterday in the restoration of several of the main street circuits, enough to feed two-thirds of the city. Trouble throughout the city on smaller lines, however, reduced the number of homes actually getting electricity to about 50 per cent. Until yesterday, Decatur had been without lights or power since Saturday night.

One main 110,000-volt Georgia Power Company line went out yesterday between Winder and Porterdale, slapping into darkness that section between Atlanta and Macon.

Two more lines went out yesterday, one into the East Point substation and the North Atlanta to Marietta line. No more lights were affected, but existing lines were weakened by the added burdens upon them.

College Park and Hapeville car service was restored yesterday. Service is being given Lakewood by a rerouting of street cars to that section. Walker-West View service was resumed to the end of the line.

Phones Still Dead.

Telephone service yesterday was in practically the same shape as it was the day before. At least 10,000 telephones within the city are dead. Telephone linemen are restoring phones at the rate of about a thousand a day, but as fast as these are restored at least that many more go out.

"Our men are doing everything that can be done," was the report yesterday from Gregory C. Bowden, district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company. "With this freezing rain falling, however, they are working under terrific handicaps. In the best of weather it would take several days merely to get all the phones working temporarily. With this weather, our work is undone as fast as repairs are made."

Long distance service is still being maintained, chiefly through the Macon and Birmingham offices.

Silver Lining in Clouds.

Rain and sleet yesterday that impeded the linemen in their work proved helpful to the telephone company in one respect. Families whose phones had gone dead were unable to maneuver over the slippery ice to a neighboring phone to complain about their service.

Linemen for both companies, totaling together about 1,100 men, are working day and night. One power company crew worked 40 hours without a let-up in restoring light and power to East Point. Power company linemen are being fed at emergency kitchens and the telephone company has reserved rooms at various downtown hotels to provide sleeping space for exhausted repairmen.

Due to weather conditions, Clark University will open on Monday and not today, as scheduled, it was announced last night.

Few Autos Out.

Automobile traffic on Atlanta's streets yesterday was reduced to a minimum by the ice hazards. Cars without chains were (or should have been) almost entirely off the street. Only one bus line—to Montgomery, Ala.—was operating out of Atlanta yesterday.

"It may get warmer Thursday," was the uncertain word from weather forecasters, "If it does, the threat of snow or sleet will be reduced to rain and that should help to clear the city of the ice."

Cartersville, Commerce and other near-by cities were reporting similar experiences from the ice yesterday.

MOST WIRES PARALYZED IN COMMERCE AREA

COMMERCE, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Slight relief was reported here today in communications which have been paralyzed since Saturday.

Telephone officials said wires to Athens and Winder have been repaired but they were still unable to contact Atlanta or Gainesville.

Long distance wires were all down yesterday except those to Jefferson. Not much damage was reported to local service.

The Hurricane Shoals plant of the Georgia Power Company was again serving Mayville after 24 hours disability.

Telegraph wires from here were still out of order. Messages were being telephoned out.

13-INCH SNOW FALLS AT TIGER

TIGER, Ga., Jan. 1.—Thirteen inches of snow fell here over the week-end, and while it has melted only slightly, no damage has been done to trees or shrubbery as there was no ice.

The Tallulah Falls railroad has operated its trains daily, but mail deliveries on the star and rural routes has been delayed.

LITTLE DAMAGE REPORTED AT CORNELIA

CORNELIA, Ga., Jan. 1.—Approximately nine inches of snow fell here Saturday and Sunday, which did not cling to the trees or wires, and as consequence damage from that source was negligible.

The temperature since Saturday has ranged from 18 to 36 degrees.

CEDARTOWN ESCAPES WITH LIGHT DAMAGE

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Jan. 1—While Cedartown was in the path of the recent blizzard, no material damage has been reported, and apparently Cedartown escaped with less inconvenience than neighboring cities. Although 900 feet in altitude, the city is located in the Cedar valley basin which seems to afford protection.

Electrical service in Cedartown was not interrupted due to the active work of the local employes of the Georgia Power Company.

TALMADGE-YEOMANS "SPLIT" DENIED HERE

MACON, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Macon Telegraph says it has learned a rumor was going around the state capitol this afternoon that, because of an alleged "split" between Governor Talmadge and Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans which, rumor has it, came about over the legal status of the present financial situation of the state, State Entomologist Manning S. Yeomans will not be reappointed.

Political history in the state will reveal the fact that Governor Talmadge put Manning Yeomans in the office of state entomologist. When he was commissioner of agriculture and the late Lee Worsham was state entomologist the politics of the two clashed, the newspaper says.

Talmadge forced Worsham out of office, the newspaper says, through an unwilling resignation and Manning S. Yeomans was named to succeed Worsham.

Advised last night of the rumor that a rift between Governor Talmadge and Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans would result in M. S. Yeoman's not being named to the office of state entomologist this year, the Governor vigorously denied the report.

"It is absolutely unfounded and untrue," he declared. "I don't know where such a rumor could have started, but I want to stop it right here. It has no basis of truth whatever."

A new automatic postoffice machine, suitable for outdoor use, has been invented in Germany; it weighs, stamps and postmarks letters, and returns correct change from any coin put into the slot.

Celebration of the New Year Merry, Crashes Few, Despite Icy Streets

A noisy welcome to the New Year, in which thousands of Atlantans participated despite ice-coated streets and bad weather, brought many other things besides the arrival of Baby 1936, a check-up revealed yesterday.

These included death to a 75-year-old negro, who suffered a fractured skull in a fall; injuries to several persons in minor automobile accidents and falls; the arrival of the city's first 1936 baby and several other "firsts."

The first baby, a girl, was born to Mr. and Mrs. F. Burke, of 1384 Peachtree street, at 2:05 o'clock yesterday morning in Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital.

A short time later, another baby, a boy, was born to Mrs. G. H. Kent, of 196 Hobson street, while an ambulance was taking her to Grady hospital. The mother was the first patient admitted to the hospital in the new year.

The dead negro was Dave Cargyle, of 137 Houston street, N. E., an employe of the Piedmont hotel for 40 years. He fractured his skull in a fall in front of 118 Peachtree street, N. E., at about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and was pronounced dead upon arrival at Grady hospital.

Scores of persons were treated at Grady hospital for minor cuts and bruises due to falls, and three members of the Atlanta police department were slightly hurt in falls, although none required hospital treatment.

Poole Wrenches Back.

Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole wrenched his back when he slipped and fell on the steps of his home; Captain A. J. Roberts cut his chin and knees when he fell down the front steps of police headquarters, and Patrolman M. C. McGahee broke a rib when he fell while going from his home in College Park to a street car line.

The first traffic accident of the new year occurred when the car of H. M. Lee, of East Point, according to police, skidded at Forrest avenue and Courtland street shortly after midnight, striking a taxicab and causing injury to six persons.

The injured were treated by private physicians. They are Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dobbs, of 1146 Cumberland road; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Patrick, of 884 Rose circle, and Miss Ruby Wood, all of whom were riding in Lee's car.

J. C. Hamilton, a passenger in the taxicab, also suffered slight injuries.

Two men suffered broken legs in another crash at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning at Spring street and Ponce de Leon avenue.

Pushing Stalled Car.

According to police, the accident occurred when a car driven by Miss Vivian Knott, of 527 Boulevard place, stalled and was being pushed by John Tuck, of 430 Boulevard, and Frank Starr, of 415 Boulevard, N. E., when a machine driven by H. M. Williams, of 1391 Hartford avenue, N. E., struck the Knott vehicle.

Tuck and Starr, both of whom suffered fractures of the right leg, were admitted to Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital.

Among those treated at Grady hospital due to falls were Mrs. Billie Spencer, 65, of 35 Wood street, who slipped and fell near her home, and Harry Kilgore, of 1375 Graham street, S. W., who suffered a cut on the right eye when he slipped and fell on the Whitehall viaduct.

Other "firsts" for the new year were the first fire at 7:37 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of T. W. Smith, 546 Highland avenue, in which damage was slight; the first arrest when John Deering, of a LaFrance street address, was charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct; filing of the first police report at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning by Patrolman C. D. Hardeman, and the first radio call to radio car No. 11, which sent officers to the accident at Forrest avenue and Courtland street.

Liquor Seized.

Statistical data compiled by police also revealed that 5,019 1-2 gallons of liquor, from the lowest form of moonshine to the finest imported goods, was seized last year by police.

The figures also showed that drunken driving arrests increased last year while the number of arrests on charges of intoxication decreased.

The arrests for drunkenness in 1934 totalled 11,760, as compared with 6,219 for that charge in 1935. In 1934, a total of 1,070 persons were arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated, and 1,253 persons were arrested on that charge in the year just ended.

SAFETY PLAN LAUNCHED AUTO TOLL MOUNTING

Campaigners Encouraged as '36 New Year's Mark Is Under 1935.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—"Public Enemy No. 2," vehicular traffic deaths, counted a growing list of victims tonight as the nation embarked on a five-year campaign to reduce its ravages.

Officials of the National Safety Council who designated New Year's Day as the start of a five-year campaign against the scourge of the highways, took some encouragement, however, in the fact that mortalities on its initial day were considerably under those of the first day of 1935. The early nation-wide total was 60 compared with 92 a year ago.

Preliminary figures indicated 17 states and the District of Columbia marked off the first day of the new calendar as free from highway deaths.

Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Connecticut and California led the somber tabulations. Illinois with eight deaths in the Chicago area on one day of almost spring-like weather, and two elsewhere contributed 10 to the country's total. Nine persons died in Michigan against 12 last year. Better driving conditions was given principal credit for the improvements.

Pennsylvania had seven fatalities; Missouri six, with the St. Louis area reporting seven died in its environs in Illinois and Missouri; Connecticut and California had five each.

Officials in nearly all of the states inaugurated widespread programs of co-operation in the safety council plans against "Public Enemy No. 4," the Red Cross designation of the country's vehicular death toll. Meanwhile, Evanston, Ill., wound up the old year with new claim to the title of "America's safest city."

Two Deaths in '35.

Mayor Charles H. Bartlett announced in that suburb of 65,000 population and 17,000 automobiles there had been but two auto deaths in 1935, the last one 218 days ago.

New Year's fatalities today and a year ago by states included:

TALMADGE TO ATTEND COMMITTEE MEETING

Governor Accepts, Wife Declines Invitations to Democratic Events.

Governor and Mrs. Talmadge, foes of the New Deal, yesterday received New Deal invitations. The Governor accepted his but Mrs. Talmadge said she would be forced to decline hers, an invitation to a reception given by Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House.

The Governor, who is national committeeman-elect from Georgia, received an invitation from Postmaster-General James A. Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee, to attend the meeting of the committee in Washington, January 9.

"I will be there," the Governor said.

Mrs. Talmadge's invitation was to a reception which Mrs. Roosevelt will give in conjunction with the national committee meeting and the observance of Jackson Day.

"The first week of the new year is always a busy week at my farm and I must be there looking after things," Mrs. Talmadge said. "I'm sorry but I will be unable to accept the invitation."

There have been reports circulating in Washington that a group of leaders of the democratic party will seek to "muzzle" Talmadge by not immediately honoring his credentials as a committeeman. These reports said Talmadge's expected attack on the Roosevelt administration at the committee meeting would be side-tracked by referring his credentials to a committee which would take them under advisement and keep them there until the national convention, a date for which will be set at the committee gathering.

TALMADGE LAUNCHES CONTROL OF FINANCES

for the payment of the judiciary January 15.

The Governor, likewise, did not do anything yesterday about several officials whose terms of office expired. These were Superintendent of Banks R. E. Gormley, Revenue Commissioner R. Eugene Matheson and State Entomologist Manning Yeomans. All three officials were at their desks throughout the day going on with their work.

The state's chief executive was in high spirits. He reported that he had slept the old year out and the new year in and that he was expecting 12 months of hard work ahead.

On his way from the mansion to the capitol yesterday morning he routed himself by the homes of all of his secretarial staff and carried the workers to the office. When they quit work for the day they all rode home with him.

NO APPREHENSION FELT IN RICHMOND.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Despite the tax problems which face Georgia because of lack of an appropriations law, Richmond county officials said they feel no apprehension over the county's 1936 financing program.

Charles S. Phinizy, president of the Georgia Railroad Bank and Trust Company, said yesterday the city's three banks have agreed to purchase equal amounts of 1936 county warrants subject to favorable rulings by their attorneys.

County Attorney Isaac S. Peebles Jr. has ruled the county can levy taxes for salaries, which are legal debts and not included in current expenses.

He also held fees paid into the treasury can be used for current expenses or as the commissioners see fit.

"I think," he said in an opinion, "that Richmond county will be able to conduct its business with very little inconvenience, regardless of the state rate for 1936."

ISSUES TAKING SHAPE FOR SHORT CONGRESS

istration would propose a permanent neutrality bill of its own to take the place of the temporary mandatory arms embargo law expiring February 29, Chairman McReynolds, democrat, Tennessee, of the house foreign affairs committee, said he hoped to complete a neutrality bill of his own by Friday.

McReynolds will accompany Chairman Pittman, democrat, of the senate foreign relations committee, to the State Department tomorrow for further discussions. The two talked over the subject at the White House late yesterday at a parley attended by Secretary Hull and Assistant Secretary Moore.

McReynolds said today unless something different was agreed upon at tomorrow's conference, he would include his permanent bill provisions for continuing the existing arms, munitions and implements of war ban against belligerents and giving the President discretion to lay down embargoes on such materials as cotton and oil.

Wilson's War Speech.

The fact that neutrality may come in for discussion in the President's message Friday night stirred memories of that dramatic occasion on April 2, 1917, when President Wilson made the only other executive address to a joint night session of congress. Wilson had much to say about the futility of America's neutrality policy then.

As members roared cheer after cheer in an outburst of patriotic enthusiasm, Wilson urged congress then to declare a state of war existing between the United States and Germany. He said neutrality no longer was feasible or desirable where the peace of the world was involved.

Crowds on the outside of the capitol cheered the war-time President as he entered and as he left. From the galleries, the only members who appeared not to be joining in the demonstration were some senators of the group which the President had branded as "wilful men," who, by preventing a vote on an armed neutrality bill, had made the "great government of the United States contemptible."

Ceremony at Arrival.

When President Roosevelt ascends the same rostrum Friday before a battery of microphones, which in Wilson's time were but engineering fancies, he will face a capacity-taxed chamber, with senators and representatives and members of the cabinet seated in an oval well rimmed above by galleries. There will be seated the hundreds fortunate enough to obtain special admission cards. Members of the supreme court will not be present, since they attend only on occasions of joint memorial exercises.

The senate will convene shortly before 9 p. m. Then, escorted by Edwin A. Halsey, secretary, and Chesley W. Jurney, sergeant-at-arms, the senators will march in double file down a 700-foot corridor to the larger house chamber.

Speaker Byrns will announce the arrival of the senate. The vice president will take a seat on the rostrum to the speaker's right and take over the gavel from Byrns to call the joint session to order. A committee will then be appointed to escort the President from his receiving room to the chamber.

Short Session Seen.

As arrangements for the unusual meeting proceeded, both republican and democratic leaders advocated that congress make as short work as possible and adjourn in four or five months.

"Nobody wants a long session," said Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi.

He listed appropriations bill, neutrality, the bonus, ship subsidy, and admendments to the agricultural adjustment and social security acts as headliners for debate.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the minority floor leader, said that if congress enacted a minimum number of bills after careful consideration, as he said it should, it would be able to adjourn by the first of May. He agreed with Harrison there should be no general tax legislation.

Other congressional developments included:

A dinner tonight at the home of Secretary Morgenthau where senators from silver states had an opporthunity to discuss the status of the silver purchase program in the presence of Eduardo Suarez, Mexican minister of finance. Silver legislation at this session is considered a possibility, although some contend if there are any changes in policy they will be administrative under the present law.

A statement by Senator Costigan, democrat, Colorado, that he would renew a proposal that the constitution be amended to give congress the power to control production and regulate working conditions as was done under the old NRA.

An apparent agreement among legislators interested in neutrality to make mandatory the provision of existing law saying the President "may" exend arms embargoes already declared against two warring nations to other countries which may become involved in the same conflict. One senator said there would be no disagreement over the change as the discretionary "may" was an oversight.

BROADCAST DEMANDED FOR ANSWER TO F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, of the republican national committee, tonight demanded that the broadcasting companies allot time for a G. O. P. reply to President Roosevelt's message to congress, to be deliever and broadcast Friday evening.

Asserting that plans for the chief executive's address reduce his constitutional duty of addressing congress on the state of union to "the level of a political speech," Fletcher asked for equivalent time, at the same hour on some closely following date.

"The essence of American democracy and free speech is fairness. If you grant my request it will demonstrate that you are in no way influenced by fear of the party in power," he said in telegrams to heads of the two broadcasting companies.

"The President is a candidate for re-election this year. The house of representatives and the United States senate have only once before set aside their rules to have a special night session for a presidential address. That was the memorable occasion in April, 1917, when war was declared."

DEMANDS OF FLETCHER WILL BE CONSIDERED

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Officials of the National Broadcasting Company said tonight that the request of Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the republican national committee, for allotment of radio time in which to answer the address of President Roosevelt to congress Friday night would be given "all due consideration."

It was explained that this would be treated as are other requests for time on the air and that no comment on the matter would be made until a decision to grant or refuse the request had been made.

An official of the Columbia Broadcasting System said there would be no comment until the request from Fletcher had been officially received and considered.

2 SLAIN, 1 WOUNDED; KILLER TRIES SUICIDE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Two women were killed and a man possibly fatally wounded early today in what Sheriff's Captain William Bright reported wa a double murder and attempted suicide.

Tony Spero, 32, was taken to a hospital with bullet wounds in the head and chest. His wife and mother-in-law were found shot to death in their home.

4 KILLED, 2 INJURED IN TENEMENT BLAST

Only 1 of 11 Residents Escapes Unhurt as Explosion Wrecks Building in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—An explosion which wrecked a four-story tenement and shook a large part of the city today, killed four persons and injured two others so seriously they weer not expected to live.

Police, investigating the cause of the blast, said a man looking for a gas leak with a lighted candle might have set it off.

Of 11 persons in the building only one, a bachelor who lived alone on the first floor, escaped unhurt.

The two top stories were untenanted, but two families on the second floor appeared to have caught the full force of the explosion, which hurled pieces of furniture half a block.

The dead were Joseph Presifillipo, 67; his wife, Geraldine, 57; Anna Scorsone, 11, and Thomas, her father, 50.

Mrs Mary Scorsone, 34, and another daughter, Rose, 3, were not expected to live.

The two men were found dead in the wreckage. The others died at hospitals.

The Scorsone baby, Rose, was forgotten by neighbors, upon whom police largely depended for a list of the occupants of the building. With her family dead or badly hurt, no one looked for the baby until a sister at a hospital mentioned she had a "little sister." That sent rescuers hustling among the ruins, and the baby was found, semi-conscious after hours under the debris, over which firemen had played water to extinguish a small blaze.

The four injured, expected to recover, are Peter Scorsone, 5; his sister, Antoinette, 9, and Santo Joseph Presifillipo, 17, and 14.

The explosion is believed to have occurred in the top of the old building. Observers said the roof was blown into the air before the walls crumbled. The end of an adjoining tenement was blown away.

JERUSALEM RECORDS LARGEST IMMIGRATION

JERUSALEM, Jan. 1.—(Palcor Agency.)—The largest immigration in the history of Palestine occurred in 1935 with the entry of 61,541 Jews, it was learned here tonight.

Last year's record total represents an increase of almost 50 per cent over the peak figure of 1934, when 42,359 Jewish immigrants were admitted.

In 1935 there were 4,525 immigrants in the capitalist category and 3,564 in 1034.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR PAT UNDERWOOD

Funeral services for Pat L. Underwood, an employe of the Southern Railway for 35 years, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at North Side Park Baptist church.

The Revs. Perry Maner, W. M. Hunton and W. S. Pruitt will officiate. Burial will be in West View cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

Underwood was a member of Leroy Duncan Lodge No. 262, F. & A. M. and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Local No. 302.

$75,000 Blaze.

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Fire resulting from an explosion in a fireworks concern early today destroyed a two-story building in the business district with an estimated loss of $75,000. R. Baum owned the structure, which housed a liquor store, Veterans of Foreign Wars post headquarters and a rooming house in addition to the fireworks establishment.

SWINGS AT PASSERBY, MISSES, BREAKS ARM

BALTIMORE, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Honors for Baltimore's first freak accident of 1936 go to Robert Herring.

Herring had a broken arm. He told police that he was walking along a street and a passerby made an uncomplimentary remark.

Herring swung at the offender, missed, fell down and broke his arm.

Hawaiian Princess Refuses Appeal To Volcano Goddess To Stop Lava

HILO, Hawaii, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Fifty-five years ago a Hawaiian princess stood in the path of a lava stream advancing toward Hilo and called upon Pele, the volcano goddess, to stop it.

The lava flow halted one mile from the city.

Today another Hawaiian princess, asked if she might do likewise, disdainfully replied, "How perfectly ridiculous!"

There appeared scarce need for any invocation to Pele, however, as the flow from the current Mauna Loa eruption had stopped about 14 miles from Hilo.

It also appeared that the 20 big aerial bombs dropped on the volcano's fiery slopes last week had disrupted the lava flow, and that army aviators had successfully usurped some of Pele's power.

Princess Kawananakoa, cultured spokesman of her race, was half amused, half indignant when asked if she might appeal to Pele, as did Princess Ruth in 1881.

"I should like to answer that in three words—how perfectly ridiculous."

In some respects her reply might be interpreted as a declaration of independence from a tradition of ancient legends and superstitions that have been waning ever since the white man brought his form of civilization and his religion to Hawaii.

Nevertheless the spirit of the Hawaiian who can see fantastic creatures in the clouds, the sea and the earth lives on in the islands.

In the clouds hugging mountain tops some Hawaiians may see a great dog sunning himself. Others may see high cirrus clouds as Pele's streaming hair.

The average Hawaiian, questioned about Pele or Menehunes, "the little people" who used to build fish ponds at night, will answer half seriously, with eyes atwinkle—as if skeptical but anxious to humor the interviewer.

Deep in his heart though, he fears Pele a little. He is like the sinner who becomes penitent when the thunderstorm comes near.

And on the more remote Hawaiian islands, the natives make no apology for their faith in legends, the reality of which they say has been demonstrated often.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

THE TIDE HAS TURNED!

USHERING in the dawn of this New Year comes the distant sound of hammers and saws...the ring of trowels...the rumbling of lumber trucks. America is building again...building new homes...modernizing old ones...and all America can rejoice! The tide has turned!

The turn started in August, 1934, when the National Housing Act provided new ways of financing modernization and new home construction. Since then, there has been a steady increase in building activity. We can rejoice that our government recognized the great need for better housing and the wide-spread benefits of the building dollar. It is estimated that 85 cents out of every dollar spent in building is paid out in some form of wages.

Increased building activity means better business for the merchant, mechanic, professional man...everyone. Every dollar spent in building or modernization does double duty. It increases the property wealth of our country and provides a wide-spread distribution of work and wages.

Our own experience is typical of the distribution of money spent in building. Our purchases of raw materials and our freight shipments have increased. Our plants in Baltimore and Pittsburgh, which were idle for three years, are operating again. Other plants in Louisville, Ky.; Trenton, N. J.; Tiffin, Ohio; Kokomo, Ind.; Richmond, Cal. and San Pablo, Cal. are giving increased employment. Our Wholesale Distributors, also, have added employes and increased activities.

Every sale of "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures provides work and wages for local Plumbers, because "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures are sold only by Master Plumbers. We believe they are the only men qualified by training and experience to furnish the skilled workmanship so necessary to satisfactory service and the protection of health. Now, more than ever, "the Plumber Protects the Health of the Nation."

Everyone...including the purchaser...benefits by building activity. Yet, no one pays a premium for the benefit. For instance, "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures cost no more than others of comparable design, workmanship and material. Master Plumbers can furnish "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures for modernization on FHA terms...no down payment...as little as $10 a month...as long as three years to pay.

Now that the tide has turned, let's go forward with renewed courage and greater confidence. Let's build even better than we dared to build before. Let's build so well that our homes will be havens of rest and comfort...protection against the ravages of time...safeguards against pestilence and disease. Let's build so that our children shall look upon our work and say: "They built well."

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 2, 1936.

LAVISH MR. WINTER

Having mixed into Atlanta's weather brew large quantities of sleet, snow and ice, sprinkled with smaller quantities of sunshine, Old Man Winter has concocted a mixture that is proving much too rich for Mr., Mrs. and Miss Atlanta.

So far as weather is concerned, the average Atlantan has a new realization of the sufferings of Job, whose boils followed one another in painful regularity.

To those unappreciative of the beauty and rarity of the transformation of Atlanta into a frozen fairyland, the sleet and ice that descended upon the city Saturday night was, to use a forceful, even though inelegant description, in the nature of a "pain in the neck."

For obvious reasons, the sentiment of these chronic weather grouches toward the visitation of ice cannot be presented in the public prints.

To the average Atlantan, the unprecedented period of disagreeable weather brings little more than inconvenience in the matter of transportation. To another considerable group, the lack of heat and light has made the visitation of "bad weather" more trying—but these annoyances are insignificant in the light of the real suffering the cold weather has brought to the poor and to the hardship and dangers being encountered by the hundreds of repairmen of the public service companies who, although worn and exhausted by four days of bitter struggle, are still fighting to bring back to normal the lighting, telephone and transportation services of the city.

The people of the city can, by being patient, help those who are trying to help them. They can be of greater service in a humanitarian sense by liberal response to the urgent calls for money, coal, warm clothing and food for the unfortunate.

The inclement weather, like Job's boils, will come to an end in due time—and the best way to forget our own inconveniences is to lend a helping hand to those who have been the real sufferers from Old Man Winter's lavish dish of sleet, snow and ice.

A UNIQUE RECORD

This week Dr. James E. West will conclude 25 years of service as chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, a record, in many respects, the most remarkable in the annals of American organizations devoted to the improvement of the people of the country, whether young or old.

Dr. West while the inmate of an orphan asylum in Washington suffered an illness which left him a cripple. Despite this handicap, and with no knowledge of living relatives, he obtained an education, studied law and was admitted to the bar before the supreme court of the United States.

Evidencing an early and intense interest in the work of the Y. M. C. A., he revealed his devotion to the cause of youth in many activities. Through his efforts congress established a juvenile court in Washington, he promoted the Washington Playground Association and organized and served as secretary of the National Child Rescue League. As a result of his influence, President Theodore Roosevelt called the first White House conference on the care of dependent children.

In 1910 the executive committee of the newly incorporated Boy Scouts of America secured his consent to abandon his legal practice and accept the position of executive officer of the organization, a decision reached because of the possibilities of service presented in this new program for youth.

Dr. West has been largely responsible for the development of the Scout program throughout the United States, and his work has won him recognition from foreign Boy Scout organizations. He has played a leading part in the World Scout Jamborees and in the International Scout conferences.

Probably no man has done more, directly and indirectly, toward the upbuilding of the boys of America than has Dr. West during the past quarter of a century. It is not surprising that messages of congratulation upon the completion of his 25 years of service have been received, not only from every state, but from many foreign countries.

URUGUAY'S EXAMPLE

Rebellions in South American countries have occurred so frequently in past years that the recent uprising in Brazil was not given serious consideration, especially as the government quickly squelched the affair and principal offenders were apprehended for future determination of punishment due them for attempting to oust the regularly constituted officials and take over the affairs of the nation.

But subsequently it was revealed that this is a different, and more threatening, affair than the usual run-of-the-mine Latin-American disturbance.

Investigation resulted in the Brazilian government notifying the neighboring country of Uruguay that the uprising was fomented by Russian communistic agitators, operating from Montevideo, capital of Uruguay, and protest was lodged against that country harboring such dangerous opponents of a democratic form of government.

Uruguay, smallest country in South America, is the only nation of that continent which has recognized the soviet government, having done so in 1926, appointing a representative to Russia and receiving that country's minister. Two years ago the Amtorg Trading Company, of Russia, established offices in Montevideo and began operations, similar to those carried on in the United States, which, while openly devoted to imports and exports of various articles of commerce, have at the same time, secretly aided the promotion of communism in this country.

The United States so far has done nothing to check the growth of this insiduous movement, except to protest. Uruguay acted promptly, by severing relations of all kinds with the soviet government, giving its representative his "walking papers," calling home their minister to Russia, and canceling all arrangements with the Amtorg Trading Company.

The soviet government denies any connection with the international communistic movement—an old contention, despite that it was definitely linked with the movement some years ago—and accuses Uruguay of acting without investigation and of actually breaking off relations because Russia was not buying enough Uruguayan cheese. The bolsheviks have filed a complaint with the League of Nations, charging Uruguay with violation of Article 12 of the League covenant by breaking off relations without appealing to arbitration of the League council.

Little Uruguay should receive the plaudits of the entire world for acting so promptly and effectually in notifying the bolsheviks they could no longer maintain emissaries of government destruction within its borders. If the Russian people are content with the dictatorship under which they have become worse slaves than they were under the czars, that is their affair. But the rest of the world, having viewed what bolshevism means, wants none of it.

The United States is overrun with the same kind of Russian emissaries—agitators whose sole object is to cause trouble between labor and industry, foment discord and preach rebellion for the purpose of overturning our government in the hope of establishing here a branch of the "hell on earth" that now exists in Russia.

Most of them are aliens; they should be treated as are citizens of the United States who, when in Russia, dare criticize anything that government does—put under arrest and sent home.

Dora is stunned by the banning of "The Children's Hour" in Boston, as all the Longfellow poems she knows are clean as a hound's tooth.

Laval and Baldwin have been duly forgiven by their respective publics, as a peace plan is liable to happen to anybody.

The romance of Claudette Colbert and the handsome young throat specialist is reported to have been love at first sight. They both said "ah."

A new British novel is hailed by critics as "sincere, refreshing and clean." In the present state of the libel law the author is helpless.

It is possible the composer of "When I Grow Too Old To Dream" doesn't know that the Townsend plan has extended the time.

Mr. Hoover, in saving a sense of humor for the '36 game, may have outwaited himself.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

When I was young and in my prime I used to study all the time. But now I am a wiser gink and so I study less, I think.

Once I had a patient, I can prove it by the necropsy record. I was young and credulous and believed whatever my seniors or teachers told me. There were ponderous medical tomes, by authors whose names were famous, on that great American diagnostic fallacy, neurasthenia. Moreover my patient came ready-ticketed as a neurasthenic; he had been under the care of several prominent physicians and a specialist or two; he presented all the symptoms which Class B neurotics know so well how to present. So I plied the poor fellow with glycerophosphates or whatever nerve nostrum was in vogue that season. At autopsy I was barely—well, quite early in the examination we came bang up against a whale of a—on sober second thought we had better not mention what we found, but it was sufficient, as I have had occasion to remember thousands of times since, to justify every symptom that unfortunate man had ever shown. And that's why I divide all "nerve" patients into Class A Neurotics who are that way for want of a real diagnosis, and Class B Neurotics who find it the easiest way to live. (More details in booklet "Chronic Nervous Imposition," but unfortunately the booklet sets you back 10 cents coin and a 3-cent stamped envelope bearing your address, so you Yankees and Scotchmen had better go on being whatever class you are now).

It is fair to assume that most patients who have such disabilities as chronic arthritis, chronic myocarditis, arteriosclerosis, cardiovascular degeneration, chronic Bright's disease, diabetes, nutritional obesity, chronic colitis, manifest signs or symptoms of health impairment for weeks or months before the character of the trouble becomes clearly established so that the diagnosis may be unequivocably made. During these weeks or months of incipient or "threatening" disability or impairment of health, who prescribes the individual's regime? Who advises remedies or treatment if he elects to try any? Who apprises him of harmful or dangerous factors which he should avoid or eradicate? Who teaches him how to live? Who instructs him in hygiene? Who counsels him how best to deal with specific problems or handicaps which interfere with health conservation?

The answer to these rhetorical questions is: Anyone and everyone but a regular physician.

And whose fault is that? Nothing rhetorical about this question. It is partly the old time physician's fault, for he attempted to draw a definite line between "organic" disease and mere "functional trouble," and he still does make light of complaints for which he can find no clearcut "organic" basis. And it is partly the lay-man's fault, for he willfully persists in his ignorance of physiology, hygiene and the science of health—acquiescing, if not actively participating, in the efforts of the quackery and nostrum interests to keep these subjects out of the common and high school curriculum, or to make the "health courses" taught in the public schools as ineffectual as possible.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Lard and Other Shortening.

Our health class is taught that (a vegetable oil mixture) is preferable to lard for cooking. (Mrs. W. W. A.)

Answer—I'd as soon lard were used for cooking my food. However, if the vegetable oil mixture is satisfactory for the purpose, there is no objection to it, that I know of.

Jan. 2, 17 A. D.—Historian Titus Livius, known as Livy, died at 58, in Rome. He had been pensioned for life for telling the truth! He wrote a classic history of Rome's first 746 years—its gleaming words keeps his reputation alive today—and in recognition was invited to the court of Emperor Augustus. Unawed, he told Augustus Rome should be a republic. The emperor, weary of the Romanyes-men, was refreshed by Livy's candor and made him a confidant and pensioner.

Electric Motor.

Michael Faraday gave the world a wonderful Christmas present in 1821. He was so interested in an experiment that he remained in his London laboratory on the holiday and his wife came in to see him. Upon a table was a small vessel filled with mercury; a copper wire was supported in a vertical condition, so as to dip into the mercury, while a little bar magnet floated in the liquid metal, anchored by thread to the bottom of the vessel. While Mrs. Caraday watched, the experimenter connected the mass of mercury by a wire to one pole of a voltaic battery. When the circuit was completed, by touching the other battery conductor to the vertical wire, the floating bar revolved around the latter as a center. In this simple manner a continuous mechanical motion was, for the first time, produced by the action of an electric current.

Faraday, then 30, didn't understand the full import of his discovery; but the experiment led to the invention of the electric motor.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

PEACEFUL WAR WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The President has been tipped that he cannot get the broad discretionary neutrality powers he wanted out of the congress which opens Friday. His legislative leaders brought the bad news long before he finished writing his message. They did not have to make a thorough canvass of both houses to find out that the Capitol Hill-billies are set in their neutrality ways.

The result is the promised war over peace between the White House and congress is likely to be more fancy than fatal. President Roosevelt is making arrangements to that end. The World Court setback at the opening of the last session is still a tart memory. It was mishandled because the President did not know the strength of the opposition. The neutrality issue will not be.

Presidents have ways of getting what they want out of congress without fighting.

SOFT-PEDALING Mr. Roosevelt's first wise inside step has been to place the issue entirely in the hands of his congressional leaders. It was agreed the White House and State Department (particularly the State Department) will take a back seat and not try to do any driving.

There is something about the State Department which makes congressmen madder than they normally are. The department thinks foreign affairs should be completely free of congressional log-rolling. The log-rollers think those pink-tea diplomats in the department are international fops.

Nearly all the inner crew agrees it was a tactical error for the department to have led the fight last session.

COMPROMISE What Mr. Roosevelt's legislative leaders have in the back of their heads now is a compromise. Something like this: Let congress make it mandatory that the President apply embargoes against warring nations, but permit him full discretion as to when. Under the present neutrality act, he is compelled to impose arms embargoes against both sides when the war breaks out. Under the proposed compromise, he could hold off for a while.

For example, in case of war between Britain and Italy, we could then refrain from imposing an embargo. This would leave Britain free to buy here. The British fleet would see to it that Mussolini failed to receive whatever he bought. Mussolini would know that. It is the executive theory that therefore he would hesitate to start a war. Also that our diplomatic offices could thus be better used to promote world peace.

You can bank on it that the ultimate compromise will be something along this line.

SOCIETY NOTE Nary a ripple of excitement was created in Washington when the first lady turned columnist. Three years ago it would have been a social sensation. There are two reasons it was not. Mrs. R. has broken precedent so often that it is news only when she doesn't. Also the inner understanding is that she undertook the work in hopes of promoting projects and ideals in which she is interested.

At the best bridge tables, even money is being wagered that Mrs. Roosevelt will tire of the daily stint before long.

The heart-rending thing about it is that the advertising for Mrs. R.'s column has completely snowed under the fact that Alice Roosevelt Longworth is also starting one January 6.

BARE BONES Some well-informed authorities have doubted that the securities end of the Morgan business could be as bare as hinted in a recent column. A further check at the registry office here indicates that the name of the Morgan Stanley company (which is handling the security end of the old business) has appeared oftener than most firms on recent registration applications. But those highest inside the trade know that these refunding issues are old bones bearing little meat. The only juicy morsel lately, 'tis said, was that of a certain railroad which appears to have been grabbed by Mr. Jesse Jones' RFC. The truth still is that no one is making any real money in that business.

Note—To keep the record straight, the reason why the J. P. Morgan bank is so bare is because most of the clerks and some of the partners have departed with the securities end of the business.

TIMES CHANGE More than one returning congressman has been grumbling about writing letters to regional resettlement administrators and failing to get a response until weeks later. Then along come very nice replies and offers of co-operation.

One congressman decided to investigate. He was informed that Professor Tugwell had ordered all regional administrators to send letters from senators and congressmen to him here in Washington, before replying.

Whether Tugwell wanted to satisfy them or check up on their political pressure, the congressmen do not know. However, they are satisfied, which is more than they were a year ago with anything Professor Tugwell did. It is additional proof that he is learning the ways of the Washington world.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

The sun has died,
A passing world
Grows colder yet and colder;
All human pride
To nothing hurled,
All things in dust to moulder.

Or so it seemed
On yesterday,
In cold and semi-night;
Perhaps I dreamed,
And yet they say
Somewhere the sun shines bright.

Thanks for
The Morning Paper.

Those of us who are experiencing nothing but dim candlelight in our homes, these days, are thankful for our morning newspaper, delivered with the dawn, which can be read in daylight. The evening papers aren't much good, when you can't read 'em without straining your eyes unbearably. And who wants news a day old, when the morning paper is there with its later reports?

Atlanta's Worst
Advertisement.

An item in the story of yesterday morning about weather conditions during the month just ended brought back recollections of nearly twenty years ago when the weatherman, apparently with fiendish malice, seized the finest opportunity to give Atlanta a bad reputation all over the country. The item yesterday quoted the weather records that December, 1935, was the coldest twelfth month in Atlanta's history, with the sole exception of December, 1917, which was the coldest month ever known here since records have been kept.

And, that December of 1917, there were somewhere around 100,000 men encamped at Camp Gordon, training for a little excursion overseas which was conducted, later, by a gentleman known as John J. Pershing.

That winter it was so cold the ground froze to a depth of two feet, at Camp Gordon. There was snow and ice and, when temporary thaws came, mud to the ankles. Unpaved roads made conditions worse and a trip from the camp to Atlanta presented more problems than a trip to Chattanooga today—yes, I mean today, January 1, with all the ice-coated highways and fallen trees and other difficulties.

The Letters
They Wrote Home.

Most of the boys at the camp were from New York, Pennsylvania and other eastern and northern states. In the wooden cantonments they shivered and suffered and, when they secured leave and tried to come to Atlanta, they either stuck in the mud or froze on the road.

And the letters they wrote home were so filled with sarcastic comment about the "Sunny South," the excess poundage in the mailbags was a post-office problem.

Just because of that one winter of record cold and discomfort when Atlanta was host to the biggest crowd of visitors from the north she has ever harbored, even though the visitors were not here from choice, perhaps, did more to give the winter living conditions in our usually fair city a black eye than all the statistics and reports of our customary December conditons can ever offset.

For every one of those boys who wore the uniform of Uncle Sam at Camp Gordon in the winter of 1917 has, ever since, spoken skeptically whenever southern climate is mentioned in his presence and, knowingly, remarked:

"Yeah! Well I was there in 1917 and let me tell you——"

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

Macon boasted a little 25 years ago. From The Constitution of Monday, January 2, 1911, we read:

"MACON, Ga., Jan. 1.—(Special.) Within a few days the first motor ambulance to be put into service in the state of Georgia will be delivered to Jesse B. Hart & Bros., undertakers of this city. The horse-drawn ambulance will be discarded and a White gasoline bought of J. S. Schofield, of Macon, will be installed."

And Fifty Years Ago.

Not all saloonkeepers made fortunes out of their establishments of so-called debauchery, in the old days. On Saturday, January 2, 1886, The Constitution published the following paragraph:

"Max Schifferer, who has been running a saloon at No. 10 East Hunter street, has closed up. He said there was no money in the liquor business here, and that he would hunt other fields."

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1935, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 1.—The year 1936 ushers in a new and prosperous era for Hollywood as well as other American towns. Never before has there been such gaiety and fun (that is, never before 1929) in the cinema village. . . . Parties, of the most elegant sort, mark the beginning of the New Year. . . . Many of the cinema great went to the desert for the holidays. . . . And others preferred to remain at home and welcome a few old friends to watch the new year in. . . . El Mirador and Deep Wells Ranch were sold out weeks in advance, and Arrowhead Springs also had to hang out the "full house" sign these last few weeks.

Holiday greeting cards have ranged from the smartest to the silliest since time began. . . . With Clifton Webb's Christmas card taking first place as the silliest. It showed the dancer at about the age of two, clad only in his undershirt, standing bashfully on a bear-skin rug. Under it was printed, "I'm wishing too." . . . Ouida and Basil Rathbone's Christmas greeting was one of the most novel the cinema crowd received. It showed a cleverly painted head of Santa Claus, done on glittering silver paper. . . . And for sheer simplicity and good taste, the prize in holiday greetings goes to Jane and Larry Tibbett, whose card was a combination of the ultra-modern and the good old-fashioned Xmas wish.

Head of the class to Charles McNaughton for repeating his original success in "Three Live Ghosts" in the talking version of the same picture. . . . Ditto to Claude Allister and Beryl Mercer for bringing the same amount of interest to their parts in the second making of this same film. . . . And if studio pre-views mean anything, Una O'Connor will give an excellent performance in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," in which she plays the part of the nurse.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Lindy's Refuge. PARIS, Jan. 1.—It is a strange refuge which the Charles A. Lindberghs have selected in their flight from the prying press of the United States, because they will discover that the English have an uncommonly morbid appetite for the intimate affairs of prominent persons and are especially ailly on the subject of prominent babies. Compared to the inquisitiveness of their new neighbors in England regarding their home life and their little son the curiosity of their American countrymen, which the Lindberghs found so tiresome, will seem nothing more than acute indifference.

As a typical example of the tripe which the English print about well born infants I will presently quote from an opportune article in an English magazine called Woman's Journal, written, not to say prattled, by Miss Kate Fox, who was childhood nurse to Princess Marina of Greece, who married the English Duke of Kent.

This feat of journalistic baby talk deals with the life and times and nursery of the infant child of the Duke and Duchess. It is accompanied by photographs of the baby's apartment, very artistic and luxurious to English eyes but mighty like a kootch dancer's dressing room in the United States. It is accompanied by photographs of the baby's quarters and a thorough Baedeker's guide to the nursery, which would be of invaluable aid to the kidnapers, if any.

Ittie Bittie Blather. The photographs are simply too damned ducky, but the text and captions double and redouble the pictures' duckiness. The photographs show the little bittie crib, his woolly bootie wooties and his blanky wankets. They show his owniest own little rug with the great big bear which goes "Woof! Woof!" worked into the pattern and assorted bidgers and badgers and bodgers chasing themselves around the border.

And the sweetest ingredient of all in the so far sweetiest and stickiest smear of literary marmalade that ever stuck up the good white paper of the Woman's Journal. It prints, by gracious permission of her royal highness herself, an exclusive photograph of the ittie bittie kiddy's very own bathroom, whose plumbing is a faintly melancholy reminder of the earliest experiments in modern conveniences in Minnesota.

You are not asked to accept hearsay. I offer documentary proof from Miss Fox's article and ask whether the Lindberghs have ever been asked to tolerate anything like this in the American press.

"On the top floor of the large and dignified house in Belgrave Square," Miss Fox writes, "high up from the hurrying, bustling world, are the nurseries of our new prince. There sleeps and smiles and cries the tiny babe of but a few weeks old, starting his life as the fifth grandchild of our king and queen. Behind these windows there is love and care and watchfulness and the joyous privileges of motherhood which come to every home when a child is born.

"Let us take a peep into his own little world and see what it is like. Here the walls and ceiling and floor are white. Such soft and soothing shades as this white are the baby eyes to open upon. Such necessary equipment for 'heading' and 'tailing' the royal baby as swabs of cotton in glassware enamel bowls, and the vaseline is kept in a low, rubber-tired trolley."

Ballyhoo Included. It goes on and on for about a thousand words, becoming more and more so by the word, but there is a chilling note of commercial ballyhoo which raises its baby voice trying to be heard at this point. A picture shows a room in the nursery which looks not unlike a two-dollar room in a chain store hotel back home and the cutline says:

"Everything in the prince's nursery is, of course, British made."

English newspaper have been exceedingly smug about the Lindberghs, but if Colonel Lindbergh's counsel can dig out of the files of the American press any copy which even remotely approaches the fatuous intimacy of this piece about the baby prince I will produce an American newspaperman who will eat without ketchup the entire edition of the paper in question.

In this offer I bar only one paragraph—a monstrous rumor about the murdered baby, Charles—which was published because the Lindberghs would not permit the child to be photographed.

In this instance, however, the foul was not committed by a newspaperman but by one of those creatures which creep into the seams of American journalism in the guise of specialists and are paid not from the editorial pay roll but from the promotion budget.

English Take It Better. The truth about the English royal family is that all of them have always been better sports about the burden of publicity which their jobs involve than Lindbergh ever has been. They accept in their country the position which Lindbergh acquires in the imagination of the American people, and they do their stuff with good grace, although you may be sure that it bores them as much as Lindbergh ever was bored.

But Lindbergh quite early in the game adopted a rude and surly attitude toward American reporters and photographers who were persistently sent out to work on him by the very same newspaper magnates or executives who then ran righteous editorials denouncing this sort of thing as a scandal. Nobody ever printed or even sought any dirt about Lindbergh—nobody ever even told the truth. All Lindbergh ever got was idolatry and curiosity and the reporters may have felt sometimes that they were engaged in rotten work.

But if so, they were in a slightly better position than that of the British army general who goes out and slaughters a tribe of barefoot natives in Africa or India, knowing himself to be a butcher, and then comes home to receive the Order of the Garter from the king.

What of the Philippines?

By Clark Howell.

Past, Present and Future of the Islands Discussed in Series of Articles by the Editor of The Constitution, a Member of the Party of Prominent Americans Invited to Attend the Inauguration Ceremonies in Manila in November.

ARTICLE 5.

How the Army Act Will Work.

Following the inauguration of the new administration of the Philippines, with Aguinaldo, sulking in his Cavite retreat, discredited but not disheartened, the assembly met to receive the first message of the new President. As a special guest I sat almost at "the foot of the throne." It was a brilliant occasion—the gathering of the representatives-elect from the many islands, the chief officials of the United States army and navy in full uniform, the once turbulent Moros of Mindanao, there as representatives wearing their red Mahometan fezzes, and some of them with their weapons, pistols and daggers, in their belts—but as interested and as peaceful as children, though apparently not knowing what it was all about—for they could not speak English, in which the message was delivered. The supreme court, in black robes, the cabinet, and General MacArthur and his staff, preceded the new President and as Quezon entered he was received with tumultuous applause.

He spoke for an hour, earnestly and eloquently, outlining the long fight for freedom, emphasizing the sacrifice it would entail, and the willingness of the people to pay it, then proceding to the main subject of his address, with the statement that he would submit but one measure for legislative action at this time, that being the national defense act. He paid a glowing tribute to General MacArthur, whom he had named as military advisor of the new government, with the approval of the President of the United States, and who better than any one else would so direct the military arm of the government as to enable it to promptly put down insurrection from within, or encroachment from without.

There was an outburst of applause, more spontaneous than in response to any other feature of the message.

Every one in the audience knew at what this was aimed—not at Japan, from which there is no fear of encroachment within the 10-year period, at least, and as long as the Stars and Stripes fly over the Philippine flag.

FEAR OF INTERNAL TROUBLE

It was at possible trouble from within, that he directed this admonition—perhaps at the shrine of the sacred tree in Cavite, where Aguinaldo brooded among the relics and the mementoes of his 40 years' fight for independence—now in sight, but with him a pathetic picture in the background.

If events should put him to the front again, and he should appear as an apostle of trouble, this is what he would have to face under the carefully worked out MacArthur plan:

First, and now, a well trained and disciplined army of 19,000 troops to be augmented each year with first, second and third-class reserves, until at the end of the 10-year trial period 600,000 trained troops will have been enrolled, equipped and made ready for service.

This means that any overt act of insurrection will be met with an iron fist. There will be no temporizing. The end will come with pitiless abruptness and in a manner that will cause later recalcitrants to pause before leaping into the fire that will confront any other insurrectionary movement.

The national defense act starts with the enrollment of boys of 10 years of age, all with military training.

It is patterned after the Swiss plan of universal service, and it must be admitted that it has worked well in that little Alpine country which for all these years has maintained its independence, while every country around it has been enmeshed in war, one plundering another for territorial gain, and yet not one daring to invade a domain in which every home is an arsenal, and every man knows his place in the "one, two, three" musters count when trouble comes.

A NOVEL EXPERIMENT

Just how it will work in a country which has been under subjugation for nearly 400 years remains to be seen—but it is a novel experiment, and one that MacArthur says will work, and he ought to know, for he is familiar with Philippine psychology and has the full confidence of the new administration.

And knowing all this, it is not believed that Aguinaldo, or anyone else, will tempt fate by forcible resistance to an administration which is in power for six years. There will be politics, and plenty of them, but the aim will be at the ballot box.

And that is the meaning and intention of the national defense act.

After six years—then what?

When the new constitution was in process of adoption, Quezon wrote with his own hand the clause limiting the term of the President to six years. His followers protested, but he was obdurate in insisting on its adoption. "I want to put myself beyond all temptation," he said. "If I make good, six years will tell the story—but I must be free to act for my country, without being put in a position where anyone can say that any act of mine was prompted by a desire to perpetuate myself in office."

And this clause stands in the constitution.

The 10-year transition period has begun, and it is fraught with dangers and pitfalls.

On the outcome will depend the ultimate independence of the islands—and the lowering of our flag.

More of that tomorrow!

If Pioneers Lived Without Jobs or Markets, So Can Moderns

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

What would you do if you were made dictator of America?

Your first concern, of course, would be to see that everybody got a living.

But how would you go about it? You couldn't just give them a lifetime income. Most people dislike charity, however well it may be disguised. Anyway, it wouldn't be sensible or fair for ten million sound adults to live in idleness while other people worked to support them and their families.

What then? Would you make jobs? Doing what? You might think of enough projects to keep that many people busy for a year, but you couldn't provide lifetime jobs. And the cost of materials for any kind of construction, plus wages for ten million people, would be more than the other people of the country could pay. They don't make that much, over and above a living for themselves. And even though the ten million were "working" on useless projects, they would be living at the expense of the other people and it would still be a form of charity.

If you wished to preserve the dignity and self-respect of your people, and let them feel independent and self-reliant, you would have to find regular jobs for them.

All right, you say; you would make industry absorb them.

Well, let's see how that would work. An industrialist who now employs one thousand men keeps that many and no more because that number is required to make the quantity of gadgets he can sell.

You force him to employ another thousand, and what happens? He can't sell more gadgets, so any increase of output would be waste. That means his men must loaf half the time. And the cost of his product is doubled. He must go out of business or make the public pay the extra cost—which would be just another roundabout way of making part of the people support the other part in idleness.

Figure it any way you will, the millions for whom there are no jobs can be self-supporting and independent in only one way. Five or six million more people must dig their living from the soil or live as public charges.

Statesmen will dodge the issue as long as they can, for it isn't good politics, but it must be faced eventually and people of understanding will not be free of anxiety until the matter is settled.

OFF THE RECORD - By Ed Reed

"Must you stamp your foot every time we have an argument?"

LOWER INTEREST RATE IS GIVEN CITY FOR 1936

Banks Agree To Reduce Cost of Money Borrowed by Atlanta This Year.

The city's credit rating advanced another notch yesterday with announcement by Councilman Aubrey Milam that the interest rate charged for municipal loans will be reduced for 1936 from 4 per cent to at least 3 per cent and possibly 2 1-2 per cent.

Following conferences with Atlanta Clearing House bank executives, it has been agreed that a marked reduction in the amount charged for municipal loans, at least those to Atlanta, will be allowed.

The 2 1-2 per cent rate depends on the ability of the city to provide a continuous audit of city books, it was pointed out. No great difficulty was anticipated in meeting the latter demand.

It also was learned the banks have agreed to refinance about $500,000 worth of municipal bonds due this year in order that the city may divert the proceeds to relief and, possibly, to work relief activities.

Last year the municipality expended $480,000 through the Atlanta-Fulton County Board of Public Welfare and it is expected large sums will be needed for this same work for 1936.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, chairman of the tax committee and member of the Atlanta budget commission, yesterday advocated expenditure of only $400,000 through this channel by the city and diversion of the remaining sums toward matching WPA funds for work relief purposes. He intends to make the formal proposal at a later date, contending that Atlanta and Fulton county should share equally in the welfare work done by the joint board. Fulton county last year contributed $25,000 monthly while the city expended $40,000 a month.

Assurance of clearing house banks that the bonds will be refunded without delay was received in city administration circles as an additional indication of the financial stability of the municipality.

RABUN TIMBER TRACT INCLUDED IN BIG DEAL

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP) G. P. Morris, banker, and W. G. Taylor, lumberman, announced today they headed Asheville interests which have purchased 42,000 acres of timberland in the two Carolinas and Georgia for "extensive lumbering operations."

The purchase price was "more than $1,000,000" for the land located in Transylvania and Jackson counties, North Carolina, Oconee county, South Carolina, and Rabun county, Georgia.

The acreage was bought from the William O'Connor estate and the White Water River Lumber Company, of Wellsboro, Pa., said Morris and Taylor, who added operations would begin as soon as machinery could be installed with a concentration plant and planing mill to be located at West Union, S. C.

WOMAN, 38, IS KILLED AS FIRE LADDER BREAKS

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 1.—(AP) A fire ladder broke today as two firemen were starting to bring down Mrs. Helen Cline, 38, from her smoke-filled third-floor apartment at 446 West Side avenue.

The three dropped to the sidewalk. Mrs. Cline was fatally injured, and the firemen, Joseph McCarthy, 37, and Robert Knox, 40, received injuries to their ankles. Seven other persons were injured, none seriously.

Russell Describes Birds, Beasts And Reptiles Seen on Brazil Trip

Drive From Uberaba to Fructal Depicted as Journey Through Extended Zoo; Queer Birds and Reptiles Found All Around.

This is the 60th of a series of articles on South American travel by the Rev. Henry Edward Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's note.

FRUCTAL, Brazil, Nov. 13.—The drive from Uberaba to this remote place was like a visit to the zoo so far as interesting creatures are concerned. It has not been rare to see large birds and animals while traveling through this nation, but nowhere have we seen such an interesting display as greeted us on this journey. The Brazilian ostrich streaking across fields grown up in scrub trees, like a broken field runner going for a touchdown, is a sight not to be forgotten. Running in his zigzag course his long legs produce a speed that is comparable to a race horse. There was no indication on the part of any of these birds to stick their heads in the ground—there was no sand about. Perhaps there are differences in the rhea of Brazil and the ostriches of other localities, besides the fact that this bird has three toes, while his African cousin his only two.

Rev. Russell.

The Seriema.

In addition to the exhibitions performed by these largest and fastest running of all the bird creation there was an equally interesting spectacle presented by a bird that is much smaller than the ostrich, but which is larger than a turkey—if not in weight, certainly in height. This bird is known as the seriema. It is about three feet from its tasselled head to its wiry feet. Its legs are long and slender and its body is gracefully shaped. Like the ostrich, it is quick to run but it doesn't display the wisdom of the larger bird in forsaking the path of the automobile for the growth of the fields.

This bird calls to mind the mountaineer who had never seen a train. One day he decided to walk to town and on the way he came upon a railroad track. He didn't know what it was, but decided to follow it toward town. Presently a train came up behind him and blew violently to warn him off the track. Scared nearly to death by this monster of smoke and noise, he ran as fast as he could down the track. The train slowed down and drew nearer the man. It was so close that one of the crew called to the man to get off the track into a field. The frightened man replied: "You must think I'm a fool, if I get off in that plowed ground it'll shore catch me."

The seriema will run along in front of the car for a mile or more rather than find safety in the brush. If the car comes too close they will fly. A method used here to catch them is to drive along behind them at the proper distance until they drop from exhaustion. When this bird is in flight it resembles an enormous crane. The principal fare of this bird consists of snakes, lizards and creeping things of the wild and open country.

Attacked by Ostrich.

An American missionary recounted an incident where he was attacked by an ostrich. The huge bird caught his wrist in his large beak and would not let go. With his free hand he began to choke the long slender neck of the bird, and after some minutes of this hand-to-neck combat the bird's bill relaxed and he freed his badly wounded forearm. A mother also told me in a discussion of the smaller bird that one had attacked her child. This bird that will assault a child will flee from an adult.

Another bird that was still smaller than the ostrich and the seriema is the perdizes. To say that it is a partridge that is as large as a big hen is an apt description. The flesh of this bird is one of the choice meats of the nation. Our experience with the bird indicates that they are dull and despite the delicate flesh, poor game bird, because they present a standing target for all who care to shoot them.

Monkey and Fox.

Besides the birds a ring-tailed monkey crossed the road in front of our car and a fox appeared to the left of the road in tall grass that made it necessary for him to move as much up and down as he did forward to get away from the rolling monster, or whatever a fox considers an old car to be.

The reptile world was well represented, not so much by snakes as the only snakes seen were in seriema's hill, also lizards of an enormous size. While talking with a man familiar with this territory, he said that a specie of small alligator is found in this region that is difficult to distinguish from the large lizards. Some of these creatures were certainly lizards and colored in the most scintillating green. They sparkled in the sunlight. Some were spotted grey and white or a dull yellow. They were fat and though they moved quickly, they appeared to be more slothful than the others, as they would let us come within a few feet before they would streak across the floor of the forest. These creatures were three feet or mor in length and larger than a man's forearm about their midsection.

NEGROES NEGLECTED, ATLANTAN TELLS BODY

Noble Beall, Baptist Missionary, Says Race "As Class Is Suppressed."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 1.—(AP) Negroes as a "class, or group are the most neglected people in the south today," Noble Y. Beall, missionary of the Baptist Home Mission Board in Atlanta, told the Fourth Southwide Baptist Training Union Conference in its second meeting here today.

Noble had pointed out that 12,000,000 negroes lived in the nation, 10,000,000 in the south, ranging from 6.2 per cent of population in Missouri to 50.2 per cent in Mississippi, and that they "live everywhere."

In stressing his point of neglect, Noble told the convention this statement of neglect did not apply to every person, "but as a group they are not given the same protection in the administration of the law, the same rights and privileges in public conveyances, and equal amounts of public school funds, the privilege of voting in all beats, the same consideration by the public press, nor any one of a thousand or more phases of our public life.

Think Rightly.

"It is not our duty to go on record as condemning everybody and everything; but it is our privilege to think rightly on these questions and it is our task to guard our emotions in this regard, and it is our obligation to keep ourselves free from guilt in these sins. We must not neglect a single person anytime—not since Christ died for all."

Noble outlined eight points in his address on "helping our colored brothers; the challenge of a great need."

Among them were to prove sincerity as Christians, to prove that the Bible is "our golden rule and guide to faith and practice" and to recognize leadership and ability among negroes.

In amplifying his first point, Noble quoted Booker T. Washington, first president of Tuskegee Institute, who said, "it is strange that the white man cannot think of men as being brothers in Christ, without being brothers in law."

Urges Assistance.

"It stands to reason," said Noble in urging recognition of negro leadership, "that a well-trained negro can lead negroes better than a white person of equal training. Especially is this true in the denominational life of negroes."

He urged that these leaders be given assistance and co-operation by the Baptist in leading them to Christ, adding, "we have the greatest opportunity of any people in the south; but we are doing practically nothing about it."

The conference formally opened last night with its keynote "Faith Is Victory."

Leaders of the meeting said approximately 6,000 delegates from 18 states represented in the Southern Baptist Convention were expected to attend, coming from Virginia to New Mexico.

43,725 Delegates to Conventions Visited Atlanta During Past Year

Convention delegates left a shower of gold in Atlanta last year. A total of 43,725 persons attended 230 gatherings here, according to figures released yesterday by the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, which forecast an even better convention year in 1936.

On averages compiled on a national basis, convention delegates spend $11.25 for three days during each convention, which would indicate that $1,475,718 of "outside money" was poured into the pockets of Atlantans during the year.

But even brighter prospects are in view, for already more than 50 conventions are scheduled to be held in the city during 1936.

Five thousand more persons came to conventions here last year than did in 1934 and consequently more money was spent in this city. It was estimated that the cost of bringing the more than 43,000 delegates here was less than 10 cents per person.

Since the Convention and Tourist Bureau has been functioning, 5,880 conventions have been held here and it was calculated that more than $38,568,000 was spent.

Of the conventions held in Atlanta during 1935, 28 of them were of national scope, which is an unusually large number. The remainder were southeastern, southern, state, district or regional, and various events and conferences.

Some of the larger gatherings to be held in the new year will be the convention of the Coca-Cola Company, which will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary; Georgia Hotel Association; Society of American Foresters; Y. M. C. A. state conference; Q. S. S. food show; Institute of Citizenship; Dogwood Festival; Spring trade beauty show; Georgia conference on social work; Association of County Commissioners; Southeastern Retail Hardware and Implement Dealers; Atlanta Horse Show; Georgia Dental Association; Improved Order of Red Men; Junior Order of American Mechanics; Dixie Boosters, and the Southern Institute of International Relations.

In 1937 several national conventions are scheduled while in 1938 the Association Master Barbers of America will meet here, and in 1939 the Baptist World Alliance will convene in Atlanta.

WORKERS ON DAMS TO BE GIVEN TESTS

Examination Rules Announced for Applicants for Jobs Under TVA.

Workmen for Chickamauga, Guntersville and Hiawassee dams will be selected from applicants to be given examinations in 82 cities in the immediate vicinity of these projects during February and March, the TVA announced yesterday. Examinations will be for jobs as skilled workmen, helpers and laborers, and will test mechanical skill and ability to perform simple tasks.

Application form 20 may be obtained from local civil service secretaries or postmasters in the vicinity of the three projects. Applications must be mailed not later than January 25 to the TVA, workmen's examination unit, Knoxville, Tenn.

All persons desiring work on the projects must file applications and take the examinations, it was said. Applicants must be 16 years old. No one will be allowed to take the examination unless he or one of his parents, or his wife, or one of her parents, was living in one of the counties listed on the official announcement July 15, 1935.

Those to be examined will be notified by the TVA when and where the examinations will be held. Officials said wages will not be less than those prevailing in the region where the work of the TVA is carried on.

Georgia cities and towns selected for examinations are Atlanta, Blairsville, Blue Ridge, Calhoun, Carrollton, Cedartown, Clayton, Cumming, Dahlonega, Dalton, Decatur, East Point, Gainesville, Jefferson, Lafayette, Lawrenceville, Marietta, Rome, Rossville and Toccoa.

J. R. BRUMBY IS NAMED ADVERTISING MANAGER

J. R. Brumby, assistant publisher of the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger for the last six years, has been named local advertising manager of The Atlanta Journal, effective yesterday. He will assume his new duties Saturday.

Mr. Brumby is a native of Marietta. He attended the University of the South and the University of Florida. Entering newspaper work as a member of the staff of the St. Petersburg Times, he later became publisher of the Clearwater (Fla.) Sun. In 1928 and 1929 he was manager of the Greensboro (N. C.) Record. Since that time has been been with the Jackson Clarion-Ledger.

Ice-Coated Collie Dog Saved From Street

A bushy male collie dog, his hair coated with ice, strugged along Eighth street yesterday morning. He was trying desperately to return to his home, though every few feet he would fall to the street. Finally, he pitched forward into a pool of water. He laid there a while, half-frozen.

Henry Adams Jr., 11, and his brother, Harold, 14, brought the dog into their home, at 555 Eighth street, N. W., warmed him and gave him food. They said they have wanted a dog for a long time, but that because this bushy collie is such a fine one, they know it has an owner. They will keep "Bushy," they said, until his master claims him. Their telephone number is Hemlock 4596-W.

TALMADGE PORTER NOW 70 YEARS OLD

'January,' Well-Known Figure at Capitol, Still 'Able To Run to Work.'

New Year's brought another birthday to "January," negro porter to Governor Talmadge.

"Three-score and ten" yesterday and still "able to run to work in the morning," January was one of the first negroes admitted to the Georgia bar.

His name is James Smith but the New Year's birthday tagged him. Now employed by a "rock-ribbed democrat" governor, he once was a member of the Georgia republican central committee.

Impressed when fiery Alexander Stephens told a class of negro students how "alcohol would rot the brain," January is a teetotaler and never voted for a wet candidate.

January was born in Forsyth, Ga., of ex-slave parents. His schooling included work at Atlanta University and Ann Arbor, Mich. He was admitted to the Georgia bar in 1896 on the Flint circuit under Judge Marcus Beck, now a state supreme court justice. During his law practice, January once "cleared a murder case," defending against white lawyers in Forsyth.

He has been at the state capitol 21 years, serving many state officials, including Governors Richard B. Russell Jr. and Eugene Talmadge.

Now he "keeps up with national affairs" but doesn't "take much part in politics any more."

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET TODAY

Reorganization, Nepotism To Be Subject at Two Sessions.

Problems of the Atlanta public schools will be considered today at two meetings of the Board of Education.

At 10 o'clock this morning, a board bloc headed by President Ernest Brewer, will demand the resignation of relatives of all board members, who obtained their posts subsequent to the time the board member took office. A special meeting of the board has been assembled to consider the move.

Reorganization of the board for 1936 will be the major order of business at another session this afternoon. Ed S. Cook, third ward commissioner, and Mayor Pro Tem Ed A. Gilliam yesterday were advanced as the two probable outstanding candidates to succeed Brewer as president.

In addition to Brewer, Commissioners George S. Lowman, W. W. Mathews and S. C. Noland are among those who will demand abolition of nepotism in the school system.

GOVERNOR DONS SOCKS OVER SHOES FOR ICE

Governor Talmadge shuffled into the capitol yesterday with yarn socks pulled on over his shoes.

"Just a good old country style during snow and sleet storms," he explained as he stamped ice particles from his feet. "You can't slip and fall with socks outside your shoes."

Several other statehouse officers have adopted the same plan since ice coated Capitol Square.

LEGISLATORS DISCUSS SESSION OF ASSEMBLY

Macon Paper Quotes Decision on Right of Solons To Convene.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Chatham county legislators showed little interest today in the proposal of Representative Olin Hammock, of Randolph county, for a session of the general assembly to be called by members themselves.

"I am not sure how far the actions of a self-called session would be legal," said Senator David S. Atkinson. "I think the governor ought to call one."

Frank A. McNall, representative, said a proposed bill to give the legislators such power by a two-third vote was defeated at the last session.

Girard M. Cohen, another house member, said he did not know what could be done at such a self-called session.

The 1935 general assembly adjourned without passage of an appropriations bill.

PAPER QUOTES DECISION ON RIGHT TO CONVENE

MACON, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Evening News quotes a decision from the supreme court of the state of New York (People vs. Hayes, 56 American Law Reports, annotated, 721,) to emphasize its claim that the general assembly has a right to convene itself for the purpose of impeaching the Governor or any other officer subject to impeachment. In the New York case it was Sulzer who was impeached.

The editorial was prompted by letters of Representative Olin Hammock, of Randolph county, to his colleagues in the general assembly, urging them to meet in special session, on their own initiative to transact such business as may seem desirable.

The News quotes from the New York decision:

"The assembly is the assembly whether in regular or extraordinary session, or whether self-convened. It is the sole impeaching functionary and in its exercise of power it is beyond the let or hinderance of the executive or the courts.

"It is the exclusive and final judge of the occasion or the time it should select to impeach and of the acts of the Governor it may specify as grounds for impeachment. This great power is political. History is replete with illustrations of its use and abuse. It is reserved to the state for its own preservation and the destruction of its enemies, and is beyond the control of every court, except the court empowered to try the impeached and to find his guilt or innocence.

"The argument that the assembly, clothed with the power to impeach, has no power to convene itself has little to commend it, for it is at war with that interpretation of our federal and state constitutions which have made them equal to all the vicissitudes involved in a century and a half of national life."

"Surely the language of a great tribunal could not be stronger," adds The News editorial.

HUGH HOWELL'S SISTER PASSES AT WARRENTON

HIT TUNE EMBARGO COMES WITH 1936

New Year Arrival Sees Many Popular Songs Barred From Air.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The New Year brought Tin Pan Alley and the radio broadcasting industry one of its largest headaches today as 36,000 copyrighted tunes, including many of the most popular song hits of the day, were barred from the air.

Promptly, as the stroke of midnight ushered in the New Year, four music publishing firms, owned by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., banned the use of their music on the radio.

The tunes owned by Warner Brothers have been estimated as from 18 to 40 per cent of those most frequently used on the air.

To guard against possible suits for infringement of copyright, both the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Company had a staff of expert checkers ready to cut off any composition on the Warner list.

One of the most noticeable effects of the embargo growing out of negotiations for a new contract to replace the one expiring last midnight was to place many orchestra leaders in the unhappy plight of being unable to play their own theme songs.

The controversy began some weeks ago when the four Warner Brother firms resigned their membership in the American Society of Authors and Composers because it could not secure from radio large enough fees for its participating members.

The four firms, among the best known of popular hit publishers, are M. Witmark & Sons, Remick Music Corporation, New World Music Corporation, and T. B. Harms, Inc.

BIG INCREASE SHOWN IN ISSUES REGISTERED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Security flotations registered by the Securities Commission in the first 11 months of 1935 totaled two and a half times greater than in all of 1934.

Official figures showed today that the 11-month total was $2,474,517,850 compared with $922,744,512 in 1934.

These totals are for issues actually registered. A much larger total was filed for registration. The 11-month 1935 total in this category was $3,141,811,917 as compared with $984,637,953 in all of 1934.

Bartow Collections Up.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Henry C. Nelson, tax collector of Bartow county, today reported collection of approximately 60 per cent of all state, local and county taxes due for the year 1935. He said collections for 1935 were running approximately 10 per cent ahead of 1934. He also reports the collection of a large percentage of back taxes due from the years prior to 1935.

Officials of the city of Cartersville also report an increase in tax payments over 1934.

JUDGE GORDON KNOX DENIES MARKET WRIT

Petition Seeking To Halt Linder From Setting Up Plan Refused.

HAZELHURST, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP) A petition seeking to restrain establishment of a system of farm markets in Georgia has been denied by Judge Gordon Knox, of the Brunswick judicial circuit of superior court.

Judge Knox announced today he had passed an order refusing to grant a temporary restraining order enjoining T. M. Linder, commissioner of agriculture, from setting up eight farm markets contemplated under provisions of an act approved at the last legislative session.

The decision of Judge Knox was given in the case of George W. Baker against Commissioner Linder. Judge Knox held the action against the commissioner was, in effect, a suit against the state itself which could not be maintained without the consent of the state.

He also held the plaintiffs' petition set forth no allegations of direct special or peculiar injury to the business of the plaintiffs that would authorize them to maintain the suit.

Judge Knox said his decision was based upon rulings set forth in a decision recently rendered by the state supreme court holding "no citizen or a taxpayer as such has the right to initiate in his own behalf without the consent of the state a suit against a state officer in his official capacity to enjoin and restrain him from acting under a statute which is alleged to be unconstitutional and void."

ELECTION DATES SET IN BANKS COUNTY

ALTO, Ga., Jan. 1.—The Banks county democratic executive committee has set March 12 as the date of the primary when county officers will be voted upon. Rules for holding the primary were adopted also. Banks county uses the Australian ballot system.

The candidates who have announced so far include, for clerk of superior court, Thomas S. Cheek, incumbent, is opposed by Mrs. Ossie Mae Caudell and Grover Rylee, of Maysville; for school superintendent, E. M. Dalton, incumbent, is opposed by Clarence L. Tucker, of Homer.

On January 15 Banks county voters will select a sheriff for the unexpired term of Sheriff J. Owen McCoy, who was killed recently in an automobile accident. E. N. Little, of Homer, and Farris Brewer have announced for the post.

Super-Convincing Youth 'Nets' $300 at Bowl Game

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Gate receipts of Miami's Orange Bowl football game were about $300 smaller tonight because an unidentified youth was super-convincing.

The boy, about 19, approached the armored car to which receipts were being transfered and said assuredly:

"Booth 5 needs $10 in change."

Without question, the money was handed over. The youth pocketed the silver, strolled over to the booth, directed ticket purchasers into line long enough to convince S. S. Cooke, in the booth, he was an attendant and then, approaching Cooke, said:

"If you've got any big money on hand, the money wagon says send it over, and I'll sign for it."

Cooke passed over about $300. The boy duly signed, "C. Barron." Thereafter he disappeared.

Tonight police were looking for him.

KAGAWA WILL ARRIVE IN ATLANTA SUNDAY

Japanese Religious Leader To Speak Four Times on Sunday.

Everything is in readiness for the intensive two-day schedule of Dr. Toychiko Kagawa, distinguished religious leader of Japan, who will reach Atlanta early Sunday morning, according to announcement by Dr. Louie D. Newton. Kagawa will speak four times Sunday and five times on Monday, leaving late Monday afternoon for New Orleans.

"We are certain to have large delegations of visitors from neighboring cities, especially the colleges, if the weather situation clears up by Sunday," said Dr. Newton. "Our committee has received numerous requests for space at the various meetings for out-of-town parties. In view of the fact that there is no paid admission to any of his addresses, we are finding it difficult to make reservations," he continued.

Kagawa will be the honor guest at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the Atlanta Biltmore under the auspices of the intercivic clubs of the city. Letters have been sent out by Ralph Paris, president of the Rotary Club, inviting a limited number of prominent citizens to attend the luncheon in addition to the members of the participating clubs. All persons desiring to attend the luncheon should get in touch with the office of the local Rotary Club in the Forsyth building not later than Saturday morning. The list will close Saturday at noon.

The distinguished visitor will speak Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the Druid Hills Baptist church and at the First Baptist church that afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Both addresses will be broadcast over station WGST. He will speak Sunday evening at the Central Presbyterian church at 7:30 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock Sunday evening he will be heard in a nationwide broadcast over station WSB.

Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock Kagawa will speak to the students of Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties, both high school and college students, at the First Presbyterian church. Special delegations from colleges throughout the state will come to Atlanta for this youth meeting. His address from 10 o'clock to 10:30 o'clock will be broadcast over WSB.

At 10:30 o'clock Monday morning he will address a state-wide meeting of ministers at the St. Marks Methodist church. Monday afternoon at 2:45 he will speak to leaders of the negro race at the Butler Street Y. M. C. A.

FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS HIKE FORECAST IN 1936

Increases for First Quarter Seen in All Districts But New England.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Estimates that freight car loadings for the first quarter of 1936 will be 6 per cent above the period last year were made today by the Association of American Railroads.

The estimates, compiled by the 13 shippers' regional advisory boards, predicted increases in all districts except New England, where a small decrease was expected to result from an estimated reduction of 30 per cent in potato shipments.

On the basis of the estimates, loadings of 29 principal commodities would total 4,677,608 cars in the first quarter of 1936, compared with 4,412,487 last year.

Increases were looked for in 25 of the commodities, including grain, cotton, coal, automobiles, iron and steel, machinery, lumber and petroleum. A decrease was expected in hay straw and alfalfa, citrus fruits, potatoes and other fresh vegetables.

Agricultural implements and vehicles other than automobiles were expected to show a 38.6 per cent gain, grain, 26.2 per cent; automobiles, trucks and parts, 21.9 per cent; cotton, 20.7 per cent; ore and ore concentrates, 17.2 per cent; iron and steel 16.9 per cent, and lumber and forest products, 16.3 per cent.

Estimated percentages of increase for all 29 commodities by districts follow: Allegheny 2 per cent; Pacific coast 2.8; Pacific northwest 20.1; southeast 8.1; southwest 2.3; Great Lakes 16.7; Atlantic states 8.2; central western 8.5; northwest 1.8; midwest 10.4; Ohio valley 0.7; trans-Missouri-Kansas 1.2.

A decrease of three-tenths of 1 per cent was estimated for New England.

Chicagoan's Yarn of Unwary Rat Wins Liars' Club Title for 1935

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A tale of thermometric mercury which fell so fast and hard it killed a rat won Jim Jordan, of Chicago, the 1936 grand championship of all liars today.

Jordan, a professional entertainer, outclassed an international field in the annual Annanias sweepstakes of the Burlington, Wis., Liars' Club, the results of which were announced here for the second successive year. The Tall Tale Derby started off as a local Burlington event in 1928.

It was an unusual dilemma, Jordan known to radio fans for his portrayal of "Fibber McGee," recounted to win the alleged diamond studded medal offered by the club.

It went as follows:

"Two years ago the weather was so cold it drove a rat into our house for shelter.

"Do what ever I would, I could not catch it even with cleverly baited traps. Finally I hit upon the idea.

"'The cold drove you in,' sez I to myself, 'and the cold will catch you.'

"I brought in our largest thermometer, putting a big piece of cheese beneath it.

"The next morning I had Mr. Rat.

"The mercury had fallen so low during the night that it had pinned him to the floor."

Runners-up to Jordan were Dorothy Hyson, of London, England, and Carlos Elizondo, of Costa Rica. Miss Ryson wrote that on a fishing excursion in Ireland, when she used snuff for bait, the fish sneezed so hard, they knocked their heads off against the river's stony banks.

Elizondo said the church bells in his town were so old the bell-clapper had worn deep holes in the metal. Mice nested in the holes but the apertures were so deep they couldn't hear the bells toll.

Guy R. Jewett, of Chippewa Falls, Wis., reported he lived on a section of land where a heavy growth of timber had been cut. He solved the knotty problem of removing the stumps by planting a potato in the fertile soil beneath each stump in a 10-acre field. The potatoes, he alleged, grew so rapidly the stumps were pushed out of the ground and all he had to do was haul them away.

O. C. Hulett, president of the Liars' Club, who awarded the championship medal to Jordan, was handed this retort when he described its jewel ornament as a diamond:

"You're another."

Only politicians are barred from competition under the Burlington group's rules.

AT ATLANTA'S THEATERS

Jean Harlow at Grand In Exciting "Riffraff"

Jean Harlow forsakes her platinum tresses and "gets red-headed" in a brilliant execution of the role of Hattie in "Riffraff," now showing at the Grand theater. The appealing accomplishments of the blond star have probably never been revealed to better effect or with greater success than in the characterization of the little water-front girl with big plans for fun in the future.

Spencer Tracy holds the masculine spotlight as Dutch Miller, the tough guy and heart-breaker of the fishing fleet. The supporting cast boasts such figures as Una Merkel and Joseph Calleia, of the gangster roles.

The tuna canning industry of the California coast forms the background for the exciting story. Harlow, as Hattie, lives with her jolly rum-sipping father and her sardonic sister. Things are a bit dull in the little fishing village, thinks Hattie. But you won't think so when you see the day's work of the hard-fisted, fighting, loving men of the fishing smacks.

Calleia is the owner of the tuna canning factory and goes for little Hattie in a large way. And Dutch has a thing or so to say and do about it—after so long a time. But Dutch is a little slow on the pick-up in noticing Hattie, even when she saves him from the police. But he finally does realize she is very much alive at a dance. And then the appealing story of the riffraff takes on the element of devotion, with its battles, desires and hopes.

The stirring main feature is well set off by light short subjects and special shots. R. M. N.

Fast-Moving Romance Now on Screen at Fox

"The Bride Comes Home" is giving Fox theater audiences this week the treat of seeing Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray together again in a smart, fast-moving, humorous romance. The pair scored a hit in "The Gilded Lily," and the current photoplay shows they have plenty more of the same.

Miss Colbert, as the daughter of a smashed former capitalist, grows tired of a scanty diet of beans and decides to go to work. She could share in the three million-dollar inheritance of her childhood sweetheart, played by Robert Young, but she has a reason for fighting off his insistent wooing. The reason is that he, himself, has a fondness for fighting, and frequently indulges in the belligerent pastime after a bout with the bottle. So frequent and vigorous are the encounters that it becomes necessary for a bodyguard to accompany him.

And the bodyguard is MacMurray. Now the funs begins.

The young millionaire starts publication of a magazine and makes MacMurray editor. Miss Colbert is given a job as his assistant and on the first day the happy editorial family begins to operate the editor and his assistant find themselves in a fight. MacMurray sits up nights hating his beautiful assistant until he finds out she is really working to keep the wolf away from her door and the monotonous diet of beans off her table. Then they fall in love and decide to get married. But the tirade of vitriolic epithets never ceases—and never ceases to be hilariously amusing.

Short subjects, newsreels and special features complete a fine and entertaining bill. —C. F. C.

HISTORY IS REINACTED IN ROSES TOURNAMENT

Tribute to Will Rogers Wins Grand Prizes in Pasadena Parade.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—History which reached from the death of Will Rogers back into the centuries was told brilliantly by flower-decked floats in the annual Tournament of Roses today.

The weather, always a threat to the New Year's Day spectacle, turned clear and warm after several days of showers. Millions of flowers nodded in the sun as the procession, led by Marshal James V. Allred, governor of Texas, moved along the flag-draped thoroughfares.

More than a million persons witnessed the spectacle. One man dropped dead and more than 100 men and women, most of them elderly, fainted along the sidewalks and parkways.

The courtship of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette in the gardens of Versailles told by south Pasadena's float, took the sweepstakes prize.

Thousands of roses, narcissus, lilies of the valley, sweet peas, stock, larkspur, delphinium and stevia were fashioned into peacocks and fountains, which served as the background for brilliantly costumed figures. Five Ethiopian outriders followed the float.

A tribute to Will Rogers won the grand prize award. A giant gold star, from which extended blue white rays in flowers, was emblematic of America's loss. A white horse saddled but riderless, signified the humorist-actor's unfinished work. It was entered by the Union Oil Company.

"Sylvia Scarlett" Role Triumph for Hepburn

Adventure and romance, with a crowning feat of characterization by Katharine Hepburn, is found this week at the Paramount theater with the showing of "Sylvia Scarlett." With her success in "Alice Adams" still fresh in the minds of theatergoers, Miss Hepburn, in her latest picture, gives such a triumphant performance that it easily becomes one of the finest ever contributed to the stage or screen.

The fascinating and colorful photoplay, against backgrounds which are as unusual as the story itself, brings a skillfully selected supporting cast including Cary Grant, Brian Aherne, Edmund Gwenn, Dennie Moore and Princess Natalie Paley.

As a presentation of sheer entertainment, artistic characterizations and dramatic, humorous and exciting adventure, "Sylvia Scarlett" is a challenge to the picture-making industry. The genius and versatility of Miss Hepburn is called forth in its most exacting form. During the greater part of the play she carries the masquerade of a boy and scores unquestionably in the difficult role. And her final return to the character of a girl is breath-taking.

The Paramount theater has selected a number of appropriate and entertaining short subjects and special features for its excellent bill this week. M. O. H.

FIRE DESTROYS SHACK; THREE MEN PERISH

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 1.—(AP) Three men lost their lives in a fire that wrecked their shack on a marsh dump in south Wilmington last night.

Stanley Druz, 45, and an unidentified man were burned to death and Constantine Sobosinski, 45, died in a hospital from burns.

Sobosinski said they were warming themselves before a fire in a tin can in the shack when the can upset. Straw on the floor was ignited. In trying to escape they caused the frail structure, composed largely of corrugated iron and tin, to collapse. Sobosinski, badly burned, was the only one able to escape.

WRITER SHOOTS SELF IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT

BAYONNE, France, Jan. 1.—(UP) Donald Day Dewart, 29, Boston, Mass., writer, was in a critical condition at the hospital tonight with a bullet wound in his head.

Police said Dewart was reported to have shot himself after penning a note to his wife, Jane Cornick Fortworth, saying he was unworthy of her. They are parents of two children.

"MODEL BOY" HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

UNION CITY, N. J., Jan. 1.—(AP) Fourteen-year-old Jerry May, regarded as a "model boy" in his neighborhood, was held on a charge of murder today in the slaying of his cousin, Sergio Sciarra, 6.

Deputy Chief Edward J. Mescall said May admitted beating the child with a hammer and slashing his uncle, Joseph Sciarra, 32, with a knife yesterday. Sciarra was in a critical condition in North Hudson hospital.

Mrs. Mancy Sciarra, mother of the slain child, said the assault occurred when May was refused money to aid him in running away from home and as her husband prepared to return him to his mother.

CINCINNATI BECOMES CITY WITHOUT MAYOR

Follower of Father Coughlin Deadlocks Councilmanic Election for Office.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Cincinnati became a city without a mayor today as a follower of Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, deadlocked a councilmanic election for the office.

The deadlock carried with it the first major threat to continued control of city affairs by an independent reform party that has ruled since it overthrew a long established republican machine in 1925.

Mayor Russell Wilson ended his term automatically today. The newly elected council was to have chosen his successor from nine councilmen. Four of the councilmen are republicans, and four members of the charter reform group. The ninth is the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, local leader of Father Coughlin's national union for social justice, and advocate of municipally controlled utilities.

His municipal power proposals rejected by both republicans and charterites, Bigelow exercised his balance of power today. The republicans voted to elect James G. Stewart as mayor. The charter group re-nominated Wilson. Bigelow deadlocked the election by casting his ballot for himself.

The city will be without a mayor at least until Monday, when the council will meet again to attempt to choose a head.

In point of power, the office carries little weight, the mayor being little more than president of council and the ceremonial head of the city. Cincinnti has been under city managership since 1926. It is the largest city in the country under that form of administrative control.

The impasse is not expected to endanger the status of C. A. Dykstra, who has been city manager since 1931. Neither he, personally, nor his office were subject to attack during the pre-election campaign.

An ordinance, designed to slash Dykstra's salary from $25,000 to $10,000 a year was introduced by Bigelow, in line with an election pledge, but there was no indication tonight it would receive serious consideration.

MIAMI COP QUENCHES FIRE ON FIRE TRUCK

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—As the police urgently pointed out, the laugh today was on Miami's central station fire fighters.

Returning from an alarm, the aerial truck's engine backfired and flames flared from beneath the hood.

As the crew of the hook and ladder vainly labored to start balky chemical apparatus, Police Sergeant D. G. Reynolds chugged up on his motorcycle.

Brushing aside the embarrassed firemen, the sergeant killed the fire with his 'cycle's small hand extinguisher.

COMMISSIONERS VOTE TO RETAIN OFFICES

Precedent Broken; County Salaries Fixed at 1935 Amounts.

Breaking precedent, Fulton county commissioners yesterday retained the same offices for 1936 as in 1935 as the county board held its first meeting of the new year and fixed salaries of county employes at the same amount paid last year, with two exceptions.

Reduction of the deficit by $75,000 was officially approved immediately after Dr. Charles R. Adams was re-elected chairman of the county commission and Commissioner Ed L. Almand was renamed vice chairman and chairman of the important public works department.

Commissioner George F. Longino, leader of the minority faction which has consistently opposed the policies of the majority bloc, was reappointed chairman of the finance committee, and Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, leader of the controlling faction, as sumed again the chairmanship of the police department.

Ragsdale Lauded.

Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale, who is a member of the minority, was lauded by Commissioner Johnson as he was reappointed chairman of the juvenile and alms committee by Dr. Adams.

The 1936 salary budget was adopted at virtually the same total as in 1935, the amount being approximately $5,000 less.

John N. Starnes and Charles Hamby, retired policemen who are attached to the juvenile court, were reduced in salary from $130 to $88.75 per month because both receive a pension of $60 a month from the city.

Hiring of four new deputies in the office of the clerk of the superior court to replace three who were discharged by Clerk J. W. Simmons and one who resigned, was authorized and their salaries were set at $150 a month.. Previously the board had voted to reduce Simmons' allocation by more than $10,000 but yesterday it officially rescinded the reduction and voted to pay the clerk's office a total of $7,605 per month, which is only $180 per month less than in 1935, with the exception of the salary of one woman stenographer who was transferred to another pay roll.

Salaries Remain Same.

All other departments will receive the same amount monthly, because no salaries were raised or reduced.

The question of the proposed merger of the city and county came up when a motion to appoint three citizens to act on a committee of nine to study consolidation was made by Commissioner Almand. Almand stated that he had been asked to make the motion by the Fulton grand jury. The proposal was for the county's appointees to confer with three named by city council and three selected by the grand jury.

Commissioner Johnson, however, introduced a substitute motion to leave the matter of city and county consolidation to the discretion of the democratic executive committee, and it was adopted.

Johnson said he was neither opposed nor in favor of merging the two governments, but believed the matter should be given serious consideration before any action was taken.

Longino Absent.

Commissioner Longino did not attend the meeting. His supporter, Commissioner Ragsdale, did not vote when Adams was re-elected, but he made the vote for Almand as chairman of the public works department unanimous.

Almand nominated Dr. Adams and Johnson nominated Almand. Both Adams and Almand made speeches after their election.

The retiring chairman of the county board usually assumes the office as chairman of the public works department, but this precedent was broken again in 1936 as it was in 1935. Last year Ragsdale was slated for the board chairmanship and Longino, the retiring chairman, for the public works department chairmanship. The majority three, however, assumed the more important positions upon taking office and are to continue in them.

A bright outlook for the county in 1936 was predicted by the commissioners.

Committee appointments were: Public works, Almand, chairman, Adams and Johnson; buildings and grounds, Adams, chairman, Ragsdale and Almand; alms and juvenile, Ragsdale, chairman, Adams and Longino; police, Johnson, chairman, Ragsdale and Longino; finance, Longino, chairman, Johnson and Almand.

FUNERAL POSTPONED FOR PLUNKETT, WIFE

Double funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Plunkett, of 1300 Hill street, which were to be held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, were indefinitely postponed. Funeral arrangements will be announced by A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

Mr. Plunkett died of shock the day after his wife had died of burns suffered when her clothing caught fire in their home. He was a veteran railroad man.

2 Held for Murder.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Jan. 1.—(AP) Two men booked as Peyton Flint, 34, and Van Sellman, 28, of Texarkana, were arrested and charged with murder today in connection with the December 26 slaying of W. V. Huff, 40-year-old barber of Little Rock, who was found beaten and stabbed to death in "hobo jungles" near here.

FILLING STATION SALE CLOSES '35 DEALINGS

Final real estate activities of 1935 brought the $25,000 cash purchase of a filling station at Ponce de Leon avenue and Ford place. The property is now under lease to the Sinclair Oil Company.

Walter Wellborn purchased the building from R. M. Massell. The oil company's lease of the 80x100 foot site was made last September and runs for 10 years, with a total rental of $27,000. The deal was handled through the Adair Realty & Loan Co.

Even greater activity in real estate is expected by realtors in 1936 than was shown during the past year, when the business showed an appreciable increase.

On the Air Today

BRIGADIERS—To the merry lyrics and music of "Hall, Hail, the Gang's All Here," Horace Heidt's Brigadiers will open another broadcast over WGST tonight at 9 o'clock. Alyce King, Alvino Rey, Bob McCoy, Jerry Bowne and others will perform. Musical selections will include "Look Who's Here," "Sing a New Song," "I Love to Ride Horses in a Merry-Go-Round," "Keep Your Fingers Crossed," "Lights Out," and the old song hit "Valencia."

Started by Heidt as a campus orchestra while he was a student at the University of California, the Brigadiers have developed into one of the most talented and versatile musical aggregations of the airways, numbering in the troupe a band of 15 pieces, nine vocal soloists, a feminine quartet and a male glee club. Still playing under the Heidt baton are four members of the original orchestra.

"THE OLEANDERS"—A full program of deep south "river songs" will make up the "Oleanders" program over WGST this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Beginning with "O Wasn't That a Wide River," the quartet will continue with "Rollin' Down the River," "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" and "River Stay 'Way From My Door."

"MATINEE MEMORIES"—With Helen Wyant at the organ the "Matinee Memories" program today will be heard over WGST at 12:15 o'clock. Such special treats as "Honeymoon Hotel," "Hold Your Man" and "Coquette" will be heard during the program. There will be two solos, "Credo" from Verdi's "Othello" and Neapolitan Nights."

2 WOMEN, MAN KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Two women and a man were killed and a third woman was critically injured early today when the Pennsylvania flyer struck their automobile at a railroad crossing seven miles east of here.

The dead:

William Johannissohn, 25, National City, Ill.; his sister, Mrs. Jeannette Walker, 23, Lincoln, Ill., and Miss Ethel Wood, friend of Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. Ethel Johannissohn, about 45, Johannissohn's mother, was believed dying.

The party was returning from a New Year's celebration when the tragedy occurred. The car was demolished.

There were four other accident deaths in the St. Louis area.

WORLD SILVER MEET PREDICTED BY THOMAS

International Conference May Result From Morgenthau-Suarez Talks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The current American-Mexican silver conversations were described tonight by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, as "possibly the beginning of a world conference on silver."

He spoke before attending a dinner tonight at the home of Secretary Morgenthau, with Edward Suarez, Mexico's finance minister, the guest of honor. Morgenthau and Suarez have been in frequent conferences on the silver situation and it was assumed that the white metal provided the after-dinner topic of conversation. Other silver state senators and high-ranking diplomatic and treasury officials also were present.

Should Line Up.

"We should line up Mexico, Canada, the South American silver countries and then those in the far east to combat Great Britain's managed currency bloc," Thomas said to newspapermen, adding:

"We could lend those countries gold or silver, fix up a stabilization arrangement and then Great Britain would have to come our way."

Morgenthau and Suarez have been conferring since Monday. Word here is that Mexico, worried by market fluctuations, wants the United States to boost the price of silver to higher levels.

The 15-cent drop in the price since the United States ceased making purchases in the chief world markets has resulted, officials said privately, in a deep feeling of apprehension for the welfare of the Mexican miner and the Mexican monetary system.

In Mexico, the largest silver producing country, silver was nationalized following enactment of the American silver purchase act of 1934 which empowered the United States treasury to buy the metal either until the price reached $1.29 an ounce or one-fourth of the country's total monetary stocks were in silver.

Talk on Silver.

Tonight's dinner was planned after both Thomas and Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, had indicated they wished to talk with Morgenthau on the operations of the silver purchase program.

Thomas, in particular, has manifested a desire to learn the "objective" of the treasury, expressing doubt that the acquisition of silver was going forward "enthusiastically."

Senators Borah, republican, Idaho; McNary, republican, Oregon; King, democrat, Utah; Josephus Daniels, United States ambassador to Mexico; Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican ambassador; Governor Eccles, of the Reserve Board, and Robert V. Fleming, president of the American Bankers' Association, also were among those invited.

'BLOOD TEST' LAW BEGINS IN JERSEY

Officials Assert New Marriage Requisite Will Not Handicap Cupid.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 1.—(AP) Cupid began the new year in Connecticut today with an indication that even under the handicap of Connecticut's new "blood test" marriage law is may approximate its 1935 record.

Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner, reported that blood tests for an average of about 30 couples daily had been made by the state health department and other approved laboratories since the act became effective December 27. The monthly marriage average for 1935 was 967.

The commissioner said the number of tests thus far made under the new law approximated 300 for 150 couples.

The act is designed to prevent the spread of social diseases and compels each applicant for a marriage license to submit to the test. The marriage ceremony cannot be performed if the test proves unsatisfactory.

Although admitting that he hardly looks for as many marriages this month as occurred in January, 1935, the state health commissioner said:

"Our law is a simple law and shoots at our deadliest disease that disrupts marital relations and produces defective progeny and is partly responsible for the heavy cost of maintaining state institutions."

Dr. Osborn asserted his office had failed to receive any complaints against the new law and had received many letters of commendation.

New City Manager.

KNOXVILLE, Jan. 1—(AP)—A new city council was sworn into office today and immediately elected George Dempster, former Tennessee commissioner of finance and taxation, as city manager. Dempster was city manager of Knoxville from 1929 to 1931. He succeeds City Manager W. W. Mynatt.

Sledding Mishap Fatal.

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark., Jan. 1. (AP)—Injuries suffered in the loss of control of his sled today claimed the life of Wayne Benton, young high school senior. When heavy snow and sleet took wheel traffic from the roads last Monday, Benton went sledding on a long hill on Highway No. 62 near Cotter. Losing control, he crashed into the porch of a house by the roadside, crushed his chest. He died in a hospital here early today.

COLDS ARE NOW REACHING OUT FOR VICTIMS!

Be Wise—Be Careful—Adopt This Simple Precautionary Measure!

Colds are increasing. In some sections Influenza is breaking out. Don't be alarmed, but don't be careless.

A cold is much easier avoided than cured! Do the sensible thing and adopt the ounce of prevention policy. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid coughers and sneezers. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry and sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Every morning and night take one or two Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets. This will keep the bowels open and combat infection.

Millions know Bromo Quinine as an excellent cold treatment, but not enough know it as an equally excellent preventive. Learn its efficacy and keep a package handy all winter long as your "safety first" measure.

If you have already caught cold there is nothing better you can take than Bromo Quinine. It doesn't merely suppress the cold—it helps drive it out of the system. At the same time, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

For more than forty years, Bromo Quinine has been the largest selling cold tablet in the world. For more than forty years it has been the standby of thousands in treating a cold.

Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. The cost is small, but the protection is large.

BRUNO, FACING CHAIR, STILL DENIES GUILT

Condemned Prisoner Reticent and Awaits Ruling of Pardons Court.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann entered 1936 today with the knowledge that for him the new year may last less than a month if the state court of pardons rejects his plea for clemency.

The convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby has been sentenced to die the week of January 13.

The court of pardons will consider his appeal for mercy next week.

Hauptmann's spiritual advisor, the Rev. John Matthiesen, a firm believer in his innocence, planned to visit the prisoner today.

Reports of a partial confession were again denied by Hauptmann in a talk with his wife, Anna.

"I have nothing to confess," she quoted him as saying.

She said he would welcome an opportunity to appear before the pardons court.

Previously Governor Harold G. Hoffman indicated that the members of the court probably would not require Hauptmann's presence when they consider his plea. It was understood that this position would not be altered unless the Hauptmann attorneys plead they have new evidence or urge that the convicted man be granted a personal hearing.

ENGINEER REPORTS RICH GOLD "STRIKE"

Veteran Prospectors Voice Belief That Find May Be Real.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 1.—(AP) Veteran Alaskan prospectors voiced belief today that reports of a new gold and silver discovery in the frosty Endicott mountains 100 miles beyond the arctic circle might be a real "strike."

They lent eager ears to the account that G. Stanley Herbert, a mining engineer, had "struck it high" in a hitherto unprospected district on the northern slope of the mountains.

Herbert also said he found signs of oil.

W. G. Crocker, pioneer prospector, said he had worked along the Koyukuk river, flowing from the southern side of the range, in 1900, and found rich deposits.

"That's the richest mineral section in the territory," Crocker said.

He recalled that men using hand rockers took "from $4 to $17 a day in gold daily from the Koyukuk river area when gold was $16 an ounce."

Jack McCord, a veteran of the gold fields, said he considered the Endicotts a rich region. He disclosed plans to fly there next spring with his son, Eugene McCord, and L. McGee, an aviator.

The exact location of Herbert's gold lode discovery was not given. He said at Barrow he had found galena, heavy in silver, 10 miles east of the lode, and petroleum deposits 40 miles away.

Safe Driving Pledge

In the interest of accident prevention and safer conditions on the highways and in co-operation with the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, I am making the following pledge:

1. To drive at moderate speed and on own side of road.
2. Not to pass cars on curves or hills.
3. To stop at stop signs.
4. Not to jump traffic lights.
5. In city traffic to be particularly watchful for pedestrians stepping into the line of traffic from parked cars.
6. Always to give hand signals showing my intention of turning to the left, to the right, or stopping, and not to leave the curb from a parked position without giving a signal.

Milton Sees Court Ruling on AAA As Vital to Interests of South

When the supreme court hands down its decision on the AAA, as it is expected to do next Monday, the south may have to revise its hitherto accepted relationship to the federal government, thinks George Fort Milton, editor of the Chattanooga News and author of "The Eve of Conflict," widely acclaimed biography of Stephen A. Douglas.

"Not since reconstruction have the supreme court's prospective holdings as to the functions and powers of the federal government been of such vital importance to the south," says Mr. Milton.

Writing for "The South Today," regular Sunday feature of The Constitution, Mr. Milton expresses the belief there are three possible rulings that can be anticipated from the court. But, he continues, if the AAA is held to be unconstitutional, it will be incumbent upon the administration to father a constitutional amendment in order to protect the agricultural areas of the country in general, and the southern farmer in particular.

What this amendment should embody, if it becomes necessary to have one at all, is carefully and critically outlined in Mr. Milton's fascinating and enlightening article, "The South, the Court and the Constitution," in "The South Today," Sunday in The Constitution.

NEW MEMPHIS JUDGE WARNS AUTO DRIVERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 1.—(AP)—E. Bunyan Carter took the oath of office as city judge today with a warning that drunken and reckless drivers, speeders and pistol toters "can expect no mercy in my court."

Chairman of the senate finance, ways and means committee in the last Tennessee legislature, Carter was elected city judge in November. He succeeds R. I. Moore, who had served by appointment.

Before coming to Tennessee, Carter served as a member of the Mississippi legislature, and once ran for lieutenant governor of that state.

GEORGIA TECH INCOME TOPS EXPENDITURES

Received $614,310, Spent $519,073, Auditor's Report Reveals.

Georgia Tech received $614,310 and spent $519,073 during the fiscal year ending August 31, 1935, according to a report filed by Tom Wisdom, state auditor, with Governor Talmadge Tuesday. Wisdom also filed audits of other state institutions.

The Atlanta school finished the year with $39,501 in the bank and $4,000 due from trust funds, to offset total liabilities of $20,136. It had received $283,307 from student fees, $187,688 from the board of regents and $90,684 from dining halls and dormitories. Chief among its expense items were $422,466 for personal services, $121,670 for supplies and materials and $10,033 for light, heat and power.

Georgia State Woman's College at Valdosta finished the year with a balance of $9,194. It had receipts of $137,687, of which $41,900 was paid by the state, and it had spent $105,467.

A balance of $9,737 was reported for the State Teachers and Agricultural College at Forsyth. The school's income was $46,004, and it spent $36,267.

Georgia Coastal Plains Experiment Station at Griffin had received $57,539 and expended $51,120, finishing the year with $5,419 in the bank.

Georgia Normal and Industrial College at Albany had a balance of $7,728. It had received $58,672 and spent $51,044.

Georgia State Industrial College at Savannah had an income of $76,441, had spent $76,335 and had reduced a balance carried over from the previous year to $13,343.

PROTESTANTISM TOPIC OF RECTOR ON SUNDAY

"Is Protestantism a Spent Force?" will be the subject of a sermon Sunday by the Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church. He said the subject was suggested by those who have been telling the American public that Protestantism has "spent its strength" and have asserted "our only hope lies in the Roman Catholic church."

Other subjects which he will discuss in his sermons of January are "The Influence of a Heroic Life," January 12; "Missions and the Changing East," January 19, and "Our Debt to One Man," January 26. In his sermon of January 26 he will discuss the life of Paul.

1936 -- A PLEDGE FROM "ATLANTA'S OWN" DRUG STORES

There are definite indications that 1936 will be a great year for all of us . . . a year with an abundance of the good things in life.

But, of course, 1936 is just ONE of the years in which Jacobs serves Atlanta, as Atlanta's own drug stores. 1879 was one of those years, too, and every year since then has known Jacobs satisfactory service. 1935 was one of those years, 1936 IS one of those years.

Serving satisfactorily, year after year, the Jacobs Pharmacy Company has grown from a single store at Five Points to a group of nineteen stores, all over Atlanta. Jacobs was born in Atlanta, grew in Atlanta — and stays in Atlanta . . . entirely Atlanta owned and operated!

Because of the ethical principles laid down by the founder, the late Dr. Joseph Jacobs, and rigidly adhered to by ourselves, this company continues to enjoy the confidence of physician and public alike. We shall endeavor to continue to merit it.

In the field of modern drug store merchandising, Cut-Price has grown to be the chief "stock-in-trade" with many a concern. Jacobs is the "birthplace of cut-prices" in Atlanta, but we believe that running a drug store is more than just running a pencil through a price.

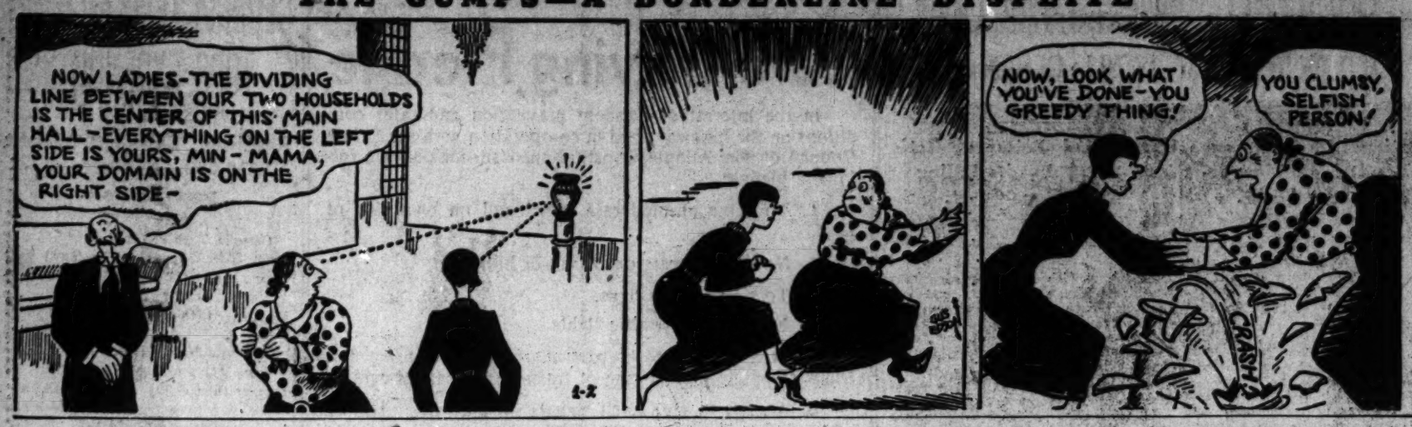

We believe that the best drug store is the one which gives constant, continuous and intelligent attention to the needs of the public, day after day, year after year, whether it be for a postage stamp, a street car ticket, or a prescription requiring rare pharmaceuticals and skilled compounding.

During 1936 and the years to come, Jacobs will keep on serving satisfactorily!

SMALL TOWN GIRL

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Financial troubles at home cause Kay Brannan to leave Wellesley. She becomes Chick Rantoul's advertising assistant, determining never to go back home and vegetate. Genevieve, her roommate, lectures Kay about her drinking and partying; Kay promises to reform but impulsively quits her job when Chick scolds her about neglecting her work. At a yachting party that night she escapes Dane Ripley's lovemaking by jumping into a passing rowboat manned by reckless Bob Dakin. Motoring her back to Boston in his car he drunkenly insists that the ceremony they sleep in the car but when Bob awakens he is horrified to learn the truth for he is engaged to Priscilla Hyde. He decides that they will go straight to Boston and tell his parents. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

Childers moved like a shadow behind them. Presently Mr. Dakin said: "There is nothing else, Childers." He disappeared.

They spoke, these older people, of casual things, quietly and easily. Dr. Dakin said it was a fine day; he trusted the wind would not blow on the river. Mrs. Dakin remembered boat races she had seen in other years, and said she disliked the hubbub and confusion at the finish. Bob spoke when he must, but Kay said nothing. She waited.

Presently there was a pause, and Bob said, in the tone of a man who accepts the inevitable: "Well, I expect you want to hear what I've got to say."

Mrs. Dakin looked at Kay. "You must both be tired," she suggested; and to Kay she said: "I think you would like to rest. There is no hurry. Dr. Dakin and I can wait."

Kay met her eyes; and for a long moment their glances held. Then Bob said headlong:

"No, I want to tell you now!"

And he said: "No need of—beating around the bush, evading the issue. You know, we had a bachelor dinner for Ed Warren, last night, down at New London, I suppose everyone drank too much. I know I did." He hesitated, looking miserably at his father. "I had a start before I got there, too. Then Bud Dean and I decided to cut loose from the crowd. They were singing, pretty noisy. We got a boat and went rowing around the harbor. Miss Brannan was on Harry Mann's yacht. We passed their anchorage, and she asked for a lift ashore. She wanted to come back to Boston!"

He reminded them: "You've heard Genevieve speak of her. They live together."

And he went on: "I decided to drive her back to Boston. It seemed to me like a good idea at the time. So we started out; and about daylight we came through Minton Green. That's where Pat and Felicia were married, you know. I had another inspiration, I persuaded Miss Brannan to marry me, and dragged her to the J. P. and then we came on and I fell asleep at the wheel, and we went off the road into the river, and I slept there till morning, in the car. We had to be dragged out of the river, this morning."

He concluded wretchedly: "So then we came straight home!"

After a moment, Dr. Dakin nodded, as though this were the most usual of narratives. "I see," he commented. Mrs. Dakin was busy with her coffee. They waited for Bob to go on.

"It's going to be tough on Miss Brannan," he said.

Dr. Dakin looked at Kay; and Kay said through trembling lips: "I don't deserve any—consideration! I—knew what we were doing."

Bob's father asked gently: "You had both been drinking?"

Kay said: "I had, yes!"

Bob nodded ruefully. "Yes, of course," he agreed. He made a harsh gesture. "It's terribly hard on you two," he said in a deep contrition.

Mrs. Dakin met Kay's eyes again. Her own were serious and grave, but not hostile. "I had rather it had happened in another way," she assented. "Even if I knew Miss Brannan better."

Kay was cold. She shivered miserably.

"I must tell you," she said honestly. "I had never met your son, but Genevieve had told me about him."

She hesitated. "My life had been moving in wrong directions, this past year," she confessed. "I was—trying to make people like me, trying to be gay and bright and pretty, trying so desperately." She smiled ruefully. "I wanted to be married!" she whispered. "To anyone!"

She looked at Mrs. Dakin. "But I did not plan this. I did not know it was your son in the boat," she said. "I had to get away from the yacht, and he came by. And afterward, when he wanted us to get married, I tried to make myself—stop him."

No one spoke; and she said, half to herself: "I tried to stop him; but

"I'm so sorry and ashamed!" she whispered.

I wanted to marry him. It seemed like my chance to get hold of something fine, I warned Bob that if he did marry me I would never let him go; that I'd fight to keep him."

She looked at Bob. His head was bowed.

"But you're—so nice," she whispered, her eyes brimming. "You haven't raged, or—anything. I can't do it now!"

Dr. Dakin watched her.

"It can be annulled, or something, can't it?" she asked, pleading with him.

Bob's father looked at Mrs. Dakin, consulting her with a long glance, exchanging counsel with her without words. They seemed to come to a decision before he said at last:

"I think that is for you and Bob to decide." He spoke reflectively, without passion. "Mrs. Dakin and I have tried to guide Bob aright, advise and help him. Without much success, I am afraid."

"It wasn't his fault," she urged. "He didn't really know . . ."

"A man has to stand by what he does," Dr. Dakin told her. "He cannot dodge the responsibility for his actions."

"I'll go away," she said. "It can be kept quiet! No one need know!" Her cheeks were crimson. "I know—about Miss Hyde," she confessed. "Genevieve had told me. I suppose Miss Hyde will have to know; but—I'll make it as easy for you all as I can."

Mrs. Dakin asked gravely: "What will you do?"

"Whatever you want me to," Kay told her.

The older woman shook her head. "I don't mean that. I mean—where will this leave you? What will your life be, after this?"

Kay found no way to reply.

Bob spoke haltingly. "I suppose we've got to—wash this out, somehow," he reflected. "Father, you can suggest something."

"I'll help you, in whatever way you both wish," Dr. Dakin assented. "That goes without saying. You know, Bob, I'm always ready to help you. But I can't help you make the decision. That is for you two."

Bob looked at Kay, long and steadily. "This is rough on you," he told her. "I'm sick about it."

She shook her head, trying to smile. "Don't think about me," she begged.

Mrs. Dakin suggested: "Hadn't you better telegraph your friends in New London, Bob? They will have missed you." She added: "And then you both need rest and sleep. If I were you, I wouldn't try to decide anything for a while."

Bob nodded. "I'll tell them I had to come back to operate," he agreed, and rose and went into the hall. They could hear him at the telephone.

Mrs. Dakin pushed back her chair, and Dr. Dakin came to help her rise. She smiled at Kay. "Suppose you come upstairs with me," she suggested. "Let me put you to bed. A few hours of sleep . . ."

"I'll go home," Kay demurred. "I can't stay here."

The older woman shook her head gently. "This is your home now," she reminded Kay. "Bob has no other, you know."

Kay's throat was full. "I've nothing but what I have on," she said huskily. "No—clothes!"

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

CANDLE TRICKS AND SWORD SWALLOWERS.

Before electric lights came into use, lighted candles were used for many "magic tricks."

Pinetti, the Italian magician who made a toy bird sing a century and a half ago, was able to fire a pistol and light two candles and put out two candles at the same time.

Swallowing a Sword.

That seemed strange, but it really happened. The pistol fired a blank cartrige. The lighted candles were close to the pistol, and the flames were blown out by the blast of the hot gas. The other candles had a tiny bit of phosphorus in each wick, and the hot gas made the phosphorus burs into flame at a distance of three feet.

In 1842 a German magician lighted 200 candles at once! He did this by using newly-learned facts about gas and electricity. Near the wick of each candle was "a fine nozzle gas burner," connected to a pipe filled with hydrogen gas. The gas jets were opened for an instant, and in that instant an electric current was made to pass through them.

Electric sparks set each jet ablaze, and thus lighted all the candles. It happened so fast that the audience could notice only the sudden lighting of the candles.

The trick of sword swallowing is very old. We read of a Greek who long ago made people in Athens gasp because he "swallowed a sharp two-edged sword."

Another olden writer tells of men who "swallowed swords and vomited forth needles, girdles and coins." The writer added that people who watched were filled with "great fear and horror."

In later times, men who could swallow swords grew in number. They traveled far and wide, and put swords and even bayonets down their throats.

The swords may have been swallowed, but they were not digested. Each was drawn out—but even that was wonder enough.

There have been efforts to explain sword swallowing by saying that the blades fold up and go into the handle. Possible "folding swords" have been used in some cases, but most of the swallowers use blades which are firm and all of one piece. By long practice, they learn to pass the swords down the throat into the stomach.

Sometimes, but not always, the sword swallower puts a kind of sheath down his throat before he starts to perform, and this guards him from the cutting edges of the sword blades.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

Many people who have ferns are under the impression that the little brown spots that appear on the undersides of the leaves are some sort of parasite or pest; and they try to wash them off, or pick them off. The idea is quite wrong, for these spots are "spores" and contain the seed germs of the plant. Without these, there could be no reproduction of ferns. Thus, it is foolish and destructive to try to remove these brown spots from the leaves.

Cara Hinman Sings at Musicale-Tea Given at Carr Home in Washington

By Sally Forth.

LEADING newspapers published in the national capital gave first position in social importance last week to the presentation of Cara Hinman as guest artist at a musicale-tea. Cara's exquisite voice was heard to excellent advantage in several selections at the affair given by the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr. The socially prominent hosts received their guests in the rose-decorated drawing room of the Carr home, where two magnificent pieces of tapestry hang upon the wall, and there is an interesting collection of pieces of art on the mantels and tables.

Cara, who is studying voice under a well-known teacher in Washington, D. C., opened her program with a French song, which she sang standing in the balcony which opens onto the drawing room. She wore a powdered wig and costume of the Louis XIV period. The costume was of pink satin trimmed with gold lace. Mrs. George B. Hinman, mother of the young guest artist, wore a gown of gray blue velvet with a hat to match.

A POPULAR young girl, at home from boarding school in the east for the holidays, attended one of the many Christmas dances last week. During the evening there was a figure dance and a handsome young man drew her for his partner.

"I am Jim J.," he announced to her. Jim was the only name she caught, and her prompt "Hello, Jim," was quite spontaneous. As they danced she bombarded him with the usual college set questions: "Do you live in Atlanta? Where do you go to school?" And she was just getting around to asking his age, when he remarked:

"I don't belive you know who I am."

"No, I don't," she answered, "and I think you are very conceited to think that I should."

Whereupon he suggested that ask someone who he was. "Oh, very well," she casually replied. "If you see anyone here who knows, just point him out and I'll inquire."

At that moment they glided past the hostess, a prominent young matron, who promptly threw the gentleman a possessive smile. "Oh," exclaimed the college belle. "You can't be her husband?"

"Yes," he replied, "and your host."

THE present freeze has its compensations when it prolongs the visit here of such beloved and popular figures as General and Mrs. W. R. Sample and their daughter, Mrs. Berry Grant, the former Adeline Winston. The Samples and Berry Grants arrived the day before Christmas. It was their plan to spend the holidays here before proceeding to Miami, where General and Mrs. Sample will establish residence for the remainder of the winter season.

Sally is informed that as soon as the ice shows sign of melting they will travel to the Sunshine State, accompanied by Adeline. The latter will spend only two weeks in Florida, when she will return to New York to join Berry, who left last Monday for their home in the metropolis. While in Miami General and Mrs. Sample will visit Havana and it is anticipated by their hosts of friends here that in the early spring when they return to the east they will pay Atlanta another visit.

APPARENTLY Old Man Winter resented the fact that Judge and Mrs. Walter Colquitt didn't include him on their eggnog party list last Tuesday. Today he is still dancing with glee over the fact that revenge is sweet, for the party, like so many others, had to be called off.

In his wrath the chilly old man turned all the elements against the Colquitts, inasmuch as they had no heat in their spacious home, no means of preparing the refreshments and no electric lights. There was nothing left to do but telephone the guests of their lack of facilities. But Old Man Winter danced with glee again, for snip! went the telephone wires, thereby leaving the Colquitts isolated from the outside world.

ONE of Sally's faithful servants certainly hit the nail on the head in expressing a very timely New Year resolution. Said he: "I slipped forward so much coming to work this morning that during the coming year I won't ever backslide!"

History Class Postponement.

The History Class meeting scheduled for tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Frank Neely on Piedmont avenue, is postponed until January 10, at 3:15 o'clock.

Mrs. Harold Ragland will keep "open house" from 3 to 6 o'clock in the Winnwood apartments, 1460 Peachtree street.

Miss Niles Weds Mr. Bolton in Griffin.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Jan. 1.—A marriage of cordial interest throughout the state, due to the popularity of the young couple and the prominence of their families, was that of Miss Fanny Willis Niles and Herbert Alfred Bolton Jr., both of Griffin, which was solemnized at noon on December 28, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Niles, in Griffin.

Rev. M. M. Maxwell, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated in the presence of a small group of relatives and close friends. Mrs. Paul Walker, pianist, rendered a musical program. The ceremony was performed in front of an improvised altar of ferns and foliage plants in the living room. Placed against the background of greenery were baskets of white chrysanthemums, flanked by seven-branched cathedral candelabra holding white tapers.

There were no attendants, the bride and groom entering together. The bride was lovely in a handsome model of rich brown twinkle crepe. The full sleeves, caught at the wrists, were of brown chiffon, appliqued with dots of crepe. The natural waistline was marked by a tailored belt of brown crepe. She wore an off-the-face model of brown faille, brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Niles entertained at a wedding breakfast. The table in the dining room was overlaid with an imported white filet cut-work cloth and was centered with a silver basket of white carnations, narcissi and gypsophila, encircled by silver candlesticks holding white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolton left on a wedding trip to Florida, after which they will reside in the Marian apartments in Griffin.

English Visitor Here.

An attractive English visitor in the city is Mrs. J. C. Beckham, of New York city. She is the niece of Lord Blythewood, of London.

Mrs. Beckham, with her husband, is visiting their sister, Mrs. R. Sims. Mr. Beckham is the godfather of Julian Roberto de Ovies Jr., whose mother is the former Miss Virginia Sims.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Beckham, Mr. and Mrs. Sims and E. D. Beckham, of Chicago, spent Tuesday in Madison, the ancestral home of the Beckham family.

Richardson.

Mr., Mrs. Wheeler Will Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Wheeler, of College Park, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Sunday, January 5, at the College Park Woman's Club. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, who have resided in Atlanta and College Park for nearly 50 years, were married in Dalton, Ga. Both have been identified in church and social activities for over a half century in Atlanta.

Mrs. Wheeler was born in Atlanta, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Harris, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elzie B. Reynolds, who were among the first settlers of this city, when it was known as Marthasville.

Mr. Wheeler was born in Warrenton, Ga., the eldest of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lucius Wheeler. His grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Wheeler, who came from Ireland and were among the first settlers of South Carolina.

Attending the celebration Sunday will be the following children: Mrs. William A. Brown, of College Park; Thomas L. Wheeler, of Ben Hill; Mrs. Homer W. Johnson, of Dallas, Texas; W. G. Wheeler, of Atlanta; Mrs. Addie Hate McCormick, of College Park; E. R. Wheeler, of College Park; Mrs. John Marsh, of Tampa, Fla., and Charles B. Wheeler, of College Park.

The grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are Miss Kathryn McCormick, of College Park; Miss Martha Johnson, of Dallas, Texas; Billy and Lee Wheeler, of Ben Hill; Johnny, Bobby and Charles Marsh, of Tampa, Fla.; Misses Jean and Mary Lois Wheeler and Reynolds Wheeler Jr., of College Park.

Brown—Gaines.

The marriage of Miss Mary Etta Brown, of East Point, and Ernest W. Gaines, of Atlanta, formerly of Athens, was solemnized December 27 at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, John Raymond Brown, in East Point. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. A. Duncan, pastor of the First Baptist church of East Point, and the musical program was rendered by Miss Kathryn Brown and John Raymond Brown Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Charles Snyder.

The bride and bridegroom were unattended and took their places together before the beautifully-improvised altar. The bride was lovely in her gown of powder blue crepe with accessories to match. She wore a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony with Miss Louise Brock and Miss Kathryn Brown presiding at the punch bowl.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Buss Walker and Mrs. Joe Engle, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. Arch McDonald, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gaines, Mrs. F. C. Gaines, Miss Lessie Joyce Gaines and Charlie Gaines, of Athens, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wheeler, of Sumter, S. C. Mr. and Mrs. Gaines are residing at 1165 Avon avenue, S. W.

Miss Richardson Becomes Bride Of Mr. Allen at Church Ceremony

Staff photo.

MR. AND MRS. IVAN ALLEN JR.

The First Presbyterian church formed the setting for the beautiful nuptial ceremony at which Miss Louise Richardson, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, became the bride of Ivan Allen Jr. yesterday at the fashionable hour of noon. The marriage, which united two of the state's most prominent families, assembled a brilliant company of friends and relatives.

The Rev. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the church, read the impressive marriage service, and Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr., organist, rendered the musical program. His selections included one of his own compositions, "Nuptiale Prelude," which he dedicated to the lovely bride, and played just preceding her entrance into the church. Other numbers were "Romance," by Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Liebestraum," by Franz Liszt; "Benediction Nuptiale," by Saint-Saens; "Meditation," by Massenet, and "Prelude to Lohengrin," by Wagner.

The decorations in the bandsome church were simple, but effective. Guarding either side of the auditorium were tall bamboo trees. Ranged across the choir rail was a series of seven-branched candelabra holding tall, white tapers, each candelabrum arising from a mound of asparagus ferns. Centering the altar was a vase filled with stately white calla lilies.

Wedding Personnel.

Acting as ushers were John W. Grant, Thomas B. Paine, Charles Marshall, John M. Smith, former Governor John M. Slaton, Philip H. Alston, Hugh T. Inman and Hugh Inman Richardson. The groomsmen included Allison Adams, George W. Adair, Jack Adair, Charles Coleman, Sam Dorsey, Jack Glenn, John Pidcock and Lee Richardson, brother of the bride. Roy Collier Jr. served as Mr. Allen's best man.

Mrs. George W. Adair, only sister of the bride, acted as her matron of honor, and Miss Eleanor Spalding was her maid of honor. The bevy of lovely bridesmaids included Miss Mary Large, Miss Harriet Arthur, of Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y.; Miss Joan Hodges, of Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Caro Roberts, of Utica, N. Y.; Miss Janet Williams, of New York city; Mrs. Frank Kells Boland Jr., and Mrs. John F. Glenn.

The attendants, gowned alike in Vionnet models of sun gold sheer crepe, formed a beautiful tableau when assembled in a half-circle at the altar. The beltless gowns introduced fullness in the front of the bodices by means of inverted tucks, and featured long, graceful angel sleeves. Tiny self-covered buttons finished the bodices in the back, and the high necklines were caught in front with handsome jeweled cabouchons of amber. Becoming rust-colored velvet hats formed an effective contrast in the costumes, and the attendants' slippers were also dyed in rust tones. Completing the costumes were lovely bouquets of talisman roses and bronze snapdragons.

Titian-Haired Bride.

The beautiful titian haired bride entered the church with her father, Hugh Richardson, who gave her in marriage. She was a radiant figure, wearing a simply designed gown of lustrous white satin, moulded in princess lines by means of perpendicular shirrings down the front. The bodice, cut in a V in front, buttoned in the back with tiny satin-covered buttons, and the sleeves were long and close fitting. The skirt extended to form a long, graceful train in the back. The bridal veil of filmy tulle was overlaid with an exquisite panel of antique Alencon lace, the veil falling in voluminous folds from a small roll of white satin, which was worn in halo effect and caught over each ear with tiny clusters of orange blossoms.

Completing the beautiful bridal ensemble was a shower bouquet of fragrant valley lilies, centered with a cluster of exotic white orchids.

Following the church ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, parents of the bride, entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Biltmore hotel. The guests were received in the main dining room of the hotel by the hosts, the bride and groom, members of the wedding party, and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allen, parents of the groom.

Mrs. Richardson was handsomely gowned in a black wool ensemble, the coat collared in white satin, and the top of bodice formed of white and silver lame. With the costume she wore a smart black hat and a shoulder cluster of purple orchids. Mrs. Allen chose for the occasion an ensemble of soft brown wool, worn with a gold lame blouse, and the coat collared in sable furs. Her becoming hat was a small brown turban and her flowers were a spray of purple orchids.

Wedding Breakfast.

The hotel dining room presented a scene of springtime loveliness as arranged for the wedding breakfast. The bride's table, placed at the far end of the room, featured a color motif of yellow. Gracing the center of the beautifully-appointed table was a mound of yellow roses and yellow snapdragons, out of which arose a tall slender silver vase filled with long-stemmed yellow roses.

The four buffet tables were centered with mounds of talisman roses, yellow roses and bronze snapdragons. Arising from the centers of the mounds were silver vases filled with similar blossoms. The coffee tables, at either side of the room, were covered with lace cloths and adorned with talisman roses and yellow snapdragons. Palms and ferns were massed at the entrance of the room and in the window recesses.

Mr. Allen and his bride left for Miami, Fla., from where they will sail for a honeymoon on the tropical island of Nassau of the Bahama group. Mrs. Allen traveled in a chic green wool suit, with the coat cut on tuxedo lines and collared with cross fox. An eggshell satin blouse and a smart green felt hat completed the ensemble.

Upon their return to the city the bride and groom will be at home with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allen, on Peachtree road, until the completion of their new home at Broadlands.

Among the guests from a distance who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Kincaid Thomas, of Dalton; Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Kennedy, of Taylors, S. C.; Miss Harriet Arthur, of Great Neck, Long Island; Miss Joan Hodges, of Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Caro Roberts, of Utica, N. Y., and Miss Janet Williams, of New York city.

MY DAY

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

MRS. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 1.—This is the day for taking up a more or less regular routine again. The house is filled on and off with guests of the children's, but the President and I go on full schedules today.

At 11 a. m. I met with the ladies of the press. I always enjoy this hour.

When I have a guest at these conferences, as I did today, I feel that I am passing on to someone else a certain amount of my responsibility. I can sit back and listen with the knowledge that the girls will take away something with them of real interest.

I usually ask some one to a press conference who has sent me an interesting report, or who I have heard is doing something out of the ordinary.

In the case of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, our guest this morning, the whole theater project is such a novel and interesting undertaking that I felt there could not fail to be some phase of this work which would appeal to every person present.

Of course, at my conferences there are representatives from papers from all over the country, so questions at once began to pop: "What's happening in Minnesota?" "What's being done in Michigan?" "What's started in Texas?" And, marvelous to relate, Mrs. Flanagan had in her mind exact information on each place she was questioned about.

When her story was told and everybody had asked all the questions they wished to ask, I was under fire for a few minutes.

Then we broke up with a mutual Happy New Year.

For Bad Cough, Mix This Better Remedy, at Home

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This home-mixed remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes the irritated membranes, loosens the phlegm, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous for its effect in stopping coughs quickly. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Mr. and Mrs. Young Give Reception For Debutante at Druid Hills Club

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lane Young were hosts yesterday afternoon at a reception at the Druid Hills Golf Club given as a complimentary gesture to their daughter, Miss Rebecca Young, a charming member of the debutante coterie. Several hundred members of the unmarried set with their escorts and the married contingent were invited to meet Miss Young.

Attractive arrangements of roses, gladioli and fern were placed in profusion throughout the spacious rooms of the club to provide an effective setting for the brilliant assemblage of Atlanta society.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Alston, Mr. and Mrs. John Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Moise, Judge and Mrs. Hugh McIntyre, Misses Natalie Strickland, of Valdosta, and St. Julienne Pringle and members of the Debutante Club of 1935-1936.

Miss Young wore a gown of silver net posed over lame cloth of the same hue, and completed with a muff of white carnations dotted with Parma violets. In her hair she wore a wreath of small gardenias.

Mrs. Young was gowned in gold lace, posed over a slip of brown taffeta completed with a short cape of the taffeta, and a soft sash of brown velvet. Her bouquet was of bronze orchids.

Miss Frances Young, sister of the popular debutante, wore a gown of pink crepe satin, completed with a bouquet of orchids.

Barbara Bell Patterns

A BECOMING FROCK FOR MATURE FIGURES.

Here it is in black and white—the solution to the nation's problem of how to be simple though stunning. A grand trick if it works, and you can see for yourself—it works! The reason is found in the slimming panels of the modish skirt and the soft and graceful turnback collar of the flattering white vestee. Smart set-in sleeves are finished at the wrist with a narrowing cuff, and the shoulders of the outer waist are dart fitted for essential ease. The double panels of the skirt, front and back, flare a bit, as they should, making for a smooth hipline which gives way to lower fulness. Add a self-fabric belt with a becoming buckle.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1788-B is designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 36 requires 4 1-2 yards of 39-inch material, and 5-8 yards contrasting.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send for the Winter Barbara Bell Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the 119 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Interesting and exclusive fashions for little children and the difficult junior age; slenderizing, well-cut patterns for the mature figure, afternoon dresses for the most particular young women and matrons, and other patterns for special occasions are all to be found in the Barbara Bell Pattern Book. St. Anthony's Club.

Members of St. Anthony's Club of St. Anthony's church in West End will entertain with a dance at the Atlanta Woman's Club on January 8. Members of the Young People's Club of the Sacred Heart church and those of the Immaculate Conception Club will be the invited guests.

The dance is strictly an invitation affair and will include many of the Catholic younger married couples of the city. Dancing will be enjoyed to the music of a well-known orchestra.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I want some advice on a problem that is slowly running me wild. My wife is a treasure in many ways. She is economical, helps me with my problems and has good judgment about most things—but she insists on being the boss. I love her and our two children devotedly and thank the good Lord that I have been able to work and provide for them handsomely. In our 15 years of married life I have never dared bring home a guest. She questions the time I go to the office, insisting that I shouldn't go so soon in the morning. I don't play golf but am fond of fishing and hunting. Every time I go on a trip there is trouble. When I make a suggestion to the children about doing something out of the ordinary they say, "What will mama say." My hen-pecked condition is an office joke and I am afraid that my boss will conclude that a man who is so hen-pecked is not of the caliber to be in charge of a large office force. I am good to my family, have provided for them amply, have insurance to take care of the future and all I want in return is the privilege of saying to a friend, "Yes, I'll go hunting tomorrow, or I'll play cards tonight." But how to get it, that's what worries me. RICHARD.

ANSWER:

The solution of your problem is as easy as falling off a log. The case of the hen-pecked husband who is unable to support his wife is hopeless as is the case of the hen-pecked husband whose wife has something on him. But the man who makes a good living for his family, one who is a loyal and loving husband and father, is truly independent and has only to assert his independence to the wife who has got her foot on his neck.

Sit down quietly some evening after the children have gone to bed and tell your wife that she has gradually assumed full authority over your life and you are restive under it. Call her attention to the fact that you provide for her, confide in her, do everything you can to make her happy and in return she is making you miserable. Remind her that your position in business is pretty good indication that you have reasonable intelligence and are able to roll your own. Explain to her that you are being ridiculed by outsiders because of her interference with your affairs and that it is only a matter of time until your employer discounts your ability to run your job. Wind up by telling her that you are quite willing for her to run the house and the children but from here out you will not submit to her telling you what you may or may not do, where you may or may not go, nor will you feel it necessary to defer to her in such matters.

All women are somewhat possessive with the men they love. A few have a perfect passion for possessing and managing their husbands, mind and body. Given an inch they take an ell. Some men give up rather than struggle to maintain their adependence of this sort of domination but if men only knew how easy it was to put the possessive women on the run there would be fewer hen-pecked husbands.

Like every other bully, the managing mama knows a threat when she scents it and she doesn't lose any time getting out of the way of danger. She may run back again a time or two sniffing cautiously trying to discover if her fright was well-founded. If she discovers it was she is off again and papa is free to go hunting or to do anything else he wants to do without a word out of her. The most dominating woman knows her master's voice and heeds it when it speaks with authority. She has more respect and more affection for a husband she can't wrap around her little finger than she has for the one with dish-rag qualities. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

A young widower in our town has brought home a bride who runs around besmirching her husband's character, his family and his lovely little daughter. This young woman is well educated, has falsification down to a fine art and is injuring her husband's business. Please tell us neighbors what we ought to do. We are afraid to let her know what we really think as she has a violent temper and a vicious tongue. S. E. W.

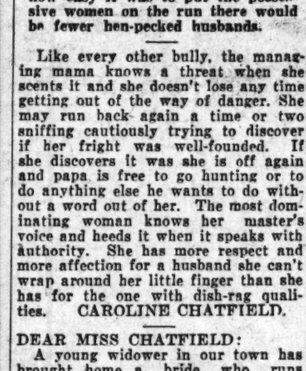

ANSWER:

There is more than one way of rebuking a person and none is more effective than politeness congealed in icy silence. The most vicious tongue can't cope with that rebuke. The hottest temper is cooled by contact with cold courtesy. Give the bride a sample of it and see her slink home shamed and chastened.

Stir the pot in which a strong smelling mixture is cooking, sweet or otherwise, and the fumes permeate the kitchen. Keep the lid on and the fumes are confined to the pot. That goes for gossip, too. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Any four-to-eight year old will be warm as toast in this Alice Brooks sweater and cap set. The sweater's a "jiffy" knit—just plain knitting combined with yoke and sleeves of easy lace stitch, and finished almost before you know it. The cap done in a straight strip, gathered at the top, also includes these two stitches, adding a pert pompon for good measure. Choose a colorful yarn, and there'll be no "insisting" she wear it!

In pattern 5512 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown in sizes 4, 6 and 8 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Lovely Tennessee Visitor

Miss Laura McAllister, of Nashville, Tenn., is visiting Miss Betty Timmons at her home at 1050 Ponce de Leon avenue. She is the beautiful daughter of the Chief Executive of Tennessee and Mrs. Scott McAllister and Miss McAllister was numbered among the prominent and important visiting belles attending the Nine O'Clocks' fancy dress ball given at the Piedmont Driving Club.

NANCY PAGE

These Protectors Fit Pillows and Comforters

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Betty was so new a bride that she hated to see any of the furnishings of her new house show any marks of wear and tear. She remembered that her mother had covered the ticking which encloses feathers of the bedpillows with something that kept the ticking from getting stained.

She called Nancy and asked her if she could help her out. "My mother is down in South America, and I want to get this information before she returns. Can you help me?" Nancy promised to come over that afternoon with a package which she took out of her gift box.

Some time before Nancy had made pillow tick protectors. She had the figures for the size of the ordinary pillows. A pillow 21x27 inches requires a pillow slip 38 1-2x42 inches. A pillow measuring 22x28 inches uses a pillow slip 38 1-2x45 inches.

Pillow slip protectors fit the pillows snugly. They may be made of a synthetic material or of lightweight percale or muslin. If synthetic material is used the protectors had better be French seamed, since the material frays so easily.

Nancy has a direction leaflet which gives a picture of the finished protector. This leaflet can be procured by following the instructions given at the end of today's column.

Nancy usually purchased two and one-half yards of material. This gave her enough cloth for a pair of protectors and for a strip which became a comforter protector.

At one time Nancy had considered a zipper or slide fastener on the edge of the pillow protectors. But when she recalled that the mechanism might catch in the pillow slip itself, she went back to her original plan of using snap fasteners. These were placed on inner flaps so that they did not come in contact with the pillow slips at all nor make humps to disturb the heads of the sleepers. It was a simple matter to take these protectors off and wash them at least once a month.

Direction leaflet for making "Pillow Tick Protectors" may be had by sending three cents and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Frazier—Shivers.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Frazier, of Atlanta, announce the marriage of their daughter, Martha Frances Frazier, to Charles C. Shivers Jr., of Starkville, Miss. The wedding was solemnized in Marietta, Ga., on December 24, with Rev. H. M. Strozier officiating.

Mrs. Shivers is a former student of Fulton High school in Atlanta. Mr. Shivers attended the Calhoun High school in Calhoun, Ga., and later the Bennett Academy in Mathiston, Miss. The couple will reside in Starkville, Mississippi.

Meeting Postponed.

The Alfred H. Colquitt United Daughters of the Confederacy meeting, which was to meet today at 2:30 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace, has been postponed until January 9.

Bolton Chapter O. E. S.

Bolton Chapter No. 143, O. E. S., has postponed its installation of officers for an indefinite time, the meeting having been scheduled for this evening.

Peachtree Hills Club.

Peachtree Hills Woman's Club meets Friday at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. C. Frost, 144 Peachtree Hills avenue. At the conclusion of the business session, a white elephant sale will be held, the proceeds to go to the club building fund.

MISS WILLIE DAVIS, 52, PASSES IN HOSPITAL

Miss Willie Clark Davis, of 719 Myrtle street, widely known in Atlanta as a teacher of music, died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning in the Emory University hospital, following an illness of several months. She was 52 years old.

She taught music for several years in the Atlanta conservatory and in the public school system here. While in Oakland, Cal., last summer, where she had moved a short time ago, she became ill and returned to Atlanta. She was admitted to the hospital a month ago.

Miss Davis was a graduate of both the literary and music schools at Wesleyan College. She also studied music in Boston, Mass., and later in Berlin, Germany. In addition to teaching here, she taught in Oakland, Cal., Boston and Akron, Ohio.

Miss Davis was a member of the Methodist church, being the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Davis, of Atlanta.

Surviving are her parents and a sister, Mrs. W. W. Davison, of Atlanta.

H. M. Patterson & Son will be in charge of the funeral. Arrangements will be announced.

ROBERT DONAT.

The photograph of Robert Donat has been and will continue to be in great demand, as no one can forget his performance in "The Count of Monte Cristo." When "The Count of Monte Cristo" was released, Robert Donat became a star overnight. Movie fans everywhere hailed him and studios began cabling Donat to return to Hollywood. His next starring vehicle is "The Ghost Goes West," to be released soon.

You may have not only the photograph of Robert Donat in next Sunday's issue, but the photograph of the popular Nelson Eddy will also be offered. These pictures offered are 8x10 inches, in beautiful linen-like finish. In next Sunday's Constitution you will find a coupon telling all about how these screen and radio favorites can be secured in the Screen and Radio magazine of The Atlanta Constitution.

Sunday, January 5, makes the fourth Sunday that these pictures have been offered in pairs, or a total of eight pictures, which must be ordered in pairs, as stated in The Constitution. However, in the issue of January 5 you are given an opportunity to secure all of the eight pictures at one time. Do not fail to see the offer in Screen and Radio Weekly, a supplement of the Sunday Constitution. If you ever want these pictures, now is the time, for they will not always be available.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

BRIDGE TEST.

If I were to test a player's skill in the management of 26 cards as declarer I should give him a hand much on the type of the one shown below. The very simplicity of it would make it ideal for the purpose: No squeeze, no complicated coup—just straightforward, careful play is required. Yet, and I say this sorrowfully, I would wager that Mr. Average Player would come a cropper, and for no other reason than that he has not trained his mind along safety-when-possible lines.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 Club	Pass	1 Spade	Pass
2 Clubs	Pass	2 N. T.	Pass
3 N. T. (final bid)

The seven of hearts would be the opening lead. I have no doubt that Mr. Average Player would correctly go up with dummy's king. But what would be his next play? With seven clubs to the A Q 10 9 in the dummy, and the doubleton king in his own hand, I would wager my last dollar that he would promptly play to his king, not giving a fleeting thought to the possibility of the outstanding clubs being all in the East hand. Then and there he would toss his contract out the window in exchange for a two-trick set.

The most superficial analysis would disclose the proper line of play. The contract calls for nine tricks, not ten. With a sure trick in spades, hearts, and diamonds, only six club tricks are required, and they may be made without the slightest risk.

The ten of clubs is the proper play from dummy at the second trick and, unless East plays the jack, the seven must be played by South, not the king. If this loses to the jack in the West hand, only the extra trick has been sacrificed; South's queen of hearts cannot be led through for a catastrophical result. If West wins the jack and returns a diamond, the ace, of course, is played and South's king of clubs overtaken by dummy's ace. Very simple, but so was Columbus' egg trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The bidding was as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Diamond	Pass
1 Spade	Pass	Pass	Pass

Should not South have responded to the one-over-one force of one spade over his one diamond bid? I was North, and actually made four spades.

Answer: Since you had passed originally, your one spade bid was not a forcing bid. If South opened a weak hand his pass was correct. Perhaps you should have bid two spades!

Military Socialites Assemble For Annual New Year Reception

Prominent figures in military social circles assembled yesterday at the New Year's Day reception given by Brigadier General Robert O. Van Horn, U. S. A., and Mrs. Van Horn at the Officers' Club at Fort McPherson. The occasion marked an annual army custom given by the commanding officer and was held between 5 and 7 o'clock.

The attractive interior of the club was beautifully decorated with quantities of rich holiday greenry with large Christmas wreaths adding a colorful note. The long tea table was covered with a lace cloth and was graced in the center by a large silver basket of lillies, and flanked on either side by silver candelabra holding white burning tapers.

Forming the receiving line were the hosts, General Van Horn and Mrs. Van Horn, and Brigadier General Frank C. Burnett and Mrs. Burnett. Mrs. Van Horn was beautifully gowned in a velvet model of burgandy red and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Burnett was a handsome figure in her gown of black velvet and her flowers were also gardenias which she wore on her shoulder. Miss Lucretia Van Horn, who assisted her parents in entertaining, was lovely in a model of gray silk trimmed in maroon. Her small hat was of gray felt. Others assisting in entertaining were prominent army matrons, wifes of the ranking officers at the garrison.

The holiday season at the fort has been featured by a number of social affairs which have been augmented by the presence of many attractive visitors. On last Friday a beautiful Chirstmas dance was given at the Officers' Club which was preceded by many informal dinner parties.

Lieutenant Robert Glass, of Fort Benning, Ga., who is spending the holidays with his parents, Colonel and Mrs. Ralph Glass, was the central figure Christmas evening at the dinner given by them at their quarters which assembled a group of the younger set. The younger set were also numbered among guests on Christmas Eve when Colonel and Mrs. Charles W. Exton were hosts at dinner complimenting their son, Lieutenant Hugh Exton, of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Malcolm Kammerer, of West Point, N. Y., are popular visitors and are guests of their parents, Colonel and Mrs. Laurence Young, and their sister and brother, Lieutenant and Mrs. David Hediken.

Colonel and Mrs. Arthur Pasker were among others entertaining informally at their quarters at the fort as were Major and Mrs. and Leland Hobbs, who were hosts for Mrs. S. W. Fitzpatrick, of Milwaukee, Wis., the guest of her son and daughter, Colonel and Mrs. O. S. Albright. Present were Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Colonel and Mrs. Albright, Colonel and Mrs. Charles Exton and Colonel and Mrs. Robert Glass.

Cadet Philip Gage, of the United States Military Academy, at West Point, N. Y., is spending the holidays with his parents, Colonel and Mrs. Philip Gage.

CELEBRANT IS SHOT BY SPECIAL OFFICER

T. Johnson Wounded; Shots Mingle With Noise of Firecrackers.

T. Johnson, 32, of 74 Atlanta avenue, was shot and seriously wounded in the abdomen at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning by a special officer in the doorway of a store on Peachtree street, near Cain, N. E., according to police.

The shooting occurred as hundreds of celebrants were noisily ushering in the infant year, and the sound of firecrackers mingled with the shot so that two traffic officers near by were unaware of the shooting.

Johnson was taken to Georgia Baptist hospital. His condition was described last night as "serious."

According to police, the shooting occurred after Johnson and two other men allegedly attacked Special Officer Lee B. Simpson, an employe of the store.

Simpson told police several men and women staggered into the store doorway, and when he warned them about leaning against the display windows, three of the men in the group approached him.

Simpson ran to the street and shouted to traffic policemen on duty not 50 feet away, and then came back into the doorway. Then one of the men struck him twice, knocking his hat off, and Johnson hit him, allegedly saying, "I'm going to shoot you."

Johnson made a move toward a hip pocket, and the officer drew his own weapon and fired, according to police.

NEW LICENSE TAGS ARE NOW ON SALE

Opening Day Response Slow, Officials at Capitol Report.

Automobile license tags for 1936 went on sale yesterday at the state capitol but the usual first-day rush was lacking.

Only an occasional applicant visited the distribution window. Officials said slow business was caused by ice-coated pavements and by a last-minute advance in the date for distribution.

Until Governor Talmadge announced Tuesday the capitol would stay open on New Year's Day, the Motor Vehicle Department had planned to begin sales today.

Because index letters were discarded in the tags this year several scrambles for "pet numbers" ensued. Last year, with four index letters and four numerical series, as many as four persons could have the same numbers. Special requests for various numbers this year kept several clerks busy with correspondence for two weeks, officials said.

Among the distinctive numbers already assigned are "T-1" to the Governor, "1" to Colonel Sandy Beaver, his chief of staff; "777" to Carlton Mobley, secretary of the executive department, and "711" to Tom Linder, secretary of agriculture.

The Atlanta Motor Club is operating an automobile tag bureau at its office in the Biltmore hotel, it was announced by Jack Strouss, secretary. This service is available to all Atlanta Motor Club members. License application blanks will be supplied and notary service will be available.

VISITOR FINDS WINTER JUST AS 30 YEARS AGO

It was hard to convince Tom Ridgell, of Gainesville, Fla., that the ice blanket gripping Atlanta is anything out of the ordinary.

Ridgell arrived shortly after the freeze set in.

"I always hate to come to Atlanta in the winter," he said, as he slipped on a sidewalk. "I was up here 30 years ago and it was just the same."

Weather observers say the present condition is the worst since 1906.

THING OF BEAUTY IS RACING PLANT AT SANTA ANITA

Famous Track Proves Playground to Notables of Film Colony.

By Jack Diamond.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—(UP)—Here in the land of make believe, where everything is no less than colossal, one might well expect to find a pretty fair sort of a racing plant. Santa Anita is it.

One of the costliest in the world, the track is a thing of beauty in the San Gabriel valley at Arcadia, hard below the giant telescopes of lofty Mount Wilson. Briefly, my friends, it is a lulu and even rarer in these times, it a money-maker.

The "handle" on the opening day, Christmas, was the tidy sum of $492,435, nearly twice the amount pushed through the mutuel windows when the plant was opened for the first time just a year before.

GREAT HORSES.

The meeting draws the finest thoroughbreds of the American turf—Discovery, Cavalcade and Top Row at this moment are neighing in its stables. And even if you blow your wad and all you have left is the return stub on the little electric train back to the city, you still may have rubbed elbows with Carole Lombard and Myrna Loy in the exclusive Turf Club atop the clubhouse proper. The notables are among its stockholders and participating owners and are rabid fans.

Hal Roach, the "Our Gang" comedies impresario, is president. Bing Crosby, Joe E. Brown, Mae West, Clark Gable and many other screenlanders own Santa Anita horses. And the lovely ladies of Pasadena, Santa Barbara and Beverly Hills all are box-holders.

Santa Anita is a playground for the filmfolk. Hitherto these personable exponents of the polo shirt and the beach pajamas had hied themselves below the border of a weekend to fling away their countless sheckels on the wheels at Tia Juana and the hayburners at Caliente.

HOME RACING.

Then California decided to keep its dough at home and racing again was legalized after an absence of some 25 years. Prohibition went by the boards, too.

So the impressive plant was organized on the site of "Lucky" Baldwin's famous rancho, where the pioneer California gold-miner himself had a track in the early days. It cost $1,500,000 at the start—all of which, I am told, was returned to the investors in the first year—and another $300,000 worth of improvements was tacked on this year.

The biggest 1934 "handle" came on Handicap Day, $802,571, for the race which, incidentally, is the richest in America, paying over $100,000. This year's handicap on February 22, with such steeds as Cavalcade, Discovery, Head Play and Top Row as likely starters, is expected to bring in more than $1,000,000 to the mutuels.

BOGART CAGERS MEET COLBERT

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 1.—In the only basketball game in the tenth district this week, Bogart encounters Colbert Friday night at Bogart.

Bogart, with one of the best teams in the district, is highly favored to win over the less impressive Colbert quintet.

Watkinsville was the only member of the conference that saw action last week. The Oconee county team defeated Commercial High of Atlanta by a two-point margin, 25 to 23, in one of the closest games ever recorded in Watkinsville.

January 10, the tenth district champions, Athens High, will open their 1936 campaign by taking on Washington there.

Several of the teams in the district have not seen action this season and exactly what sort of team they have cannot be judged until they have played.

Seventeen teams compose the "B" group of the conference and they are as follows: Athens, Bowman, Washington, Warrenton, Thomson, Elberton, Crawfordville, Royston, Lavonia, Hartwell, Monroe, Watkinsville, Bostwick, Greensboro Madison, Harlem and Lincolnton.

In the "C" division are 19 teams which are Evans, Union Point, Blythe, Dearing, Leah, Lexington, Tignall, Arnoldsville, Bogart, Centerville, Colbert, Comer, Winterville, Social Circle, Jersey, Ila, Good Hope and Danielsville.

The listrict tournament will begin February 16, but the place has not been determined yet.

Hardwick Denies He Will Coach Harvard

BOSTON, Jan. 1.—(UP)—Huntington, R. (Tack) Hardwick, Harvard All-America end under the late Percy Haughton, tonight ended reports he would be appointed to the Harvard coaching staff next season as end coach.

Reports had said Hardwick would be named end coach, with Wesley Fesler, present end coach, replacing Backfield coach Mike Palm, who has indicated he may not return to Cambridge in the fall.

"There's nothing to the report," Hardwick said. "Naturally, I've always been interested in Harvard football. But as for taking any active part in the coaching of the team—that's impossible. I've been away from the actual playing and coaching of the game for too many years."

THE SUGAR BOWL, NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 1.—The Sugar Bowl game is done and there was very little sugar in it for L. S. U. of the sugar cane country.

The 3-to-2 baseball-score victory which the Texas Christian eleven scored this afternoon is the third time the L. S. U. Tigers have been undone by the figure three.

In 1931 the Texas Christian team won from L. S. U., 3 to 0, The next season they tied, 3 and 3, and today the Texans got their usual three points and L. S. U. could get but two.

In three years of competition L. S. U. has scored a total of five points on the Texas eleven and the Lone Star offense has netted nine points, three each year.

You may search all the football records in the world and find no one to compare with this one.

NO CHANCE FOR COMPARISON.

The lashing flood of rain which descended on New Orleans this afternoon, made impossible any real comparison of football as played by the southwestern and southern sectors.

As written here earlier in the week, L. S. U. did not seem to be a great football team. The Georgia game, in which the Tigers three times were inside the Georgia 5-yard line and first down and failed to score, did not indicate a great football team was wearing the L. S. U. colors.

Admittedly it was a good team, but a great team is not halted three times within the 5-yard line with 12 tries at the goal.

Today the Tigers showed the same faulty side of their play. Twice they were within scoring distance. Each time they had a first down approximately at the Texans' 2-yard line.

Eight plays failed to score.

A great team doesn't play that sort of football. The same criticism may be made of the Texas Christians. They had a first down at the 2-yard line and lost eight yards in four plays.

The Texans aren't a great football team either. That is the Texas Christians are not.

There was little to choose between the two teams.

But the Christians scored three points to two and won. Which is why they play games. The records will not show it rained or that both teams lacked a punch. It will show the Texans won and that, I guess, is it.

The Christians bit the Tiger. And that, it seems, is the news of the day.

The Sugar Bowl game does seem to be an established feature. It drew well over 30,000 people. Officials said 37,000 seats were sold. The official figures were not available at this writing. Which brings the after-game features up with the before-game features.

The time happens to be 1 o'clock in the afternoon of the first day of the glad new year, and the place happens to be the Tulane stadium, which today is called the Sugar Bowl.

If there is any sugar in the Sugar Bowl, it is very soggy indeed, because New Orleans turned out one of those soggy, wet days.

It is so soggy that the boys have quit using that old southern word "Sugar" in addressing the girl friend, because they are afraid it may be true and the girl friend will melt right away before their eyes.

A great many of these people here have the January 1 headache, which is the most punishing and virulent headache known to man.

In the hotel bars this morning the bartenders were exhausted mixing pick-me-up concoctions, and the telephone in room service was ringing constantly and weak voices were saying over the wire, "Send two straight ones up to the room. Two fellows are dying up here." The room service boys were humpbacked from carrying trays to the "dying" ones in hotel rooms.

The maids were going "Tsk-tsk-tsk" as they cleaned out the rooms of paper hats, paper horns, confetti and other accessories to an evening of fun.

This is a grand town and mostly it is the tourist group which cuts all the high jinks and goes around blowing horns and wearing paper hats in the night clubs and restaurants and bars. Although, at that, there were some of the visitors who were still wandering around in evening clothes at high noon today.

THE CROWD IS HERE.

The crowd is here. Most of the Texas people, including some of the girls from the Lone Star state, bought some of the stuff they keep out there to sell to tourists, such as, for instance, those cowboy boots.

The cowboy boots are all right for riding hosses, but as yet it is not legal to ride hosses up and down the sidewalks of New Orleans. And the boots hurt the toes and the heels of drug store cowboys something fierce. The moral of this is that no citizen of a town should purchase the stuff reserved for suckers. You should see the looks of pain in some of the 1936 cowboys as they limp about the streets.

At game time there were apparently some 35,000 people in the Sugar Bowl. The rain had stopped. The sugars in the Sugar Bowl will not melt, after all, although I will say some of the mascara and make-up looks a little damp.

Stars in Stanford Victory

Here are two stars in Stanford's great 7-to-0 win over S. M. U., New Year's Day, in the Rose Bowl. Topping stole the glory from the more highly rated Monk Moscrip. Grayson, an S. M. U. target, was stopped short of his usual gains, but, nevertheless, helped pave the first quarter touchdown road. Associated Press photos.

By Brian Bell.

last and only player to count all day.

Oddly enough the winning touchdown was made possible by a forward pass, a weapon which Stanford was not supposed to know much about. The Railbirds had tought Southern Methodist would do the throwing and Stanford the running. As it turned out, a 22-yard pass sent Stanford deep in Southern Methodist territory and led to the score.

The big bowl was jammed to the hilt with excited humanity, partisan Texans, equally partisan Californians and other thousands who just came for the ride.

NO LAUGHS TODAY.

The big Stanford team showed early in the day that it had not come to the Rose Bowl today to laugh. Twice in the last two years, the Redskins have lost to eastern teams and their friends have said they took their new year's chores too lightly. Their resolution this year was to get out in front and stay there and this they did, despite desperate efforts by the Mustangs from Dallas to overhaul.

Eight members of the Stanford team today had played two previous losing games in the Rose Bowl, and they were determined to show the football worm could turn and would not be the same on the other side.

The game was not as exciting as had been forecast. Stanford picked up a first-period touchdown and did not do much thereafter, while Southern Methodist never could muster a consistent passing attack, although one smart forward followed by two laterals gave the visitors the ball on Stanford's five-yard line. This golden opportunity went glimmering when a fumble cost the attacking team possession of the ball.

The capacity crowd included many distinguished citizens of the two big states supporting the battling elevens.

Former President Herbert Hoover led the Stanford delegation and the governors of California and Texas sat on opposite sides of the field. During the game Mr. Hoover came across the arena to greet Governor Allred and Jesse H. Jones, a distinguished Texan, who heads the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Not So Exciting.

Both teams have played better ball during the season than they did today. At times the contest threatened to become dull and never was there the sustained excitement some other New Year's Day classics have produced.

After getting behind early in the day, the Mustangs threw the ball wildly, but only a few short passes connected. Few long ones were attempted and none made good, although one failed by a whisper when Bobby Grayson rushed over and knocked it down. The Texans never had a chance to get their passing attack under way. Stanford hurried the passers all afternoon.

Stanford, after getting out in front, tried to increase its lead by passing when the Texans showed they were able to stop the running attack. But a Mustang almost intercepted a pass, with a clear field ahead to a touchdown, so the Redskins quickly changed their tactics and held tenaciously to what they had.

The stars of the two teams fared rather badly. Bobby Wilson lived up to his reputation as a sensational runner by bringing the crowd up standing with a half-dozen sprints, including one of 28 yards, but he was too badly rushed to do any effective passing. Iron Man Wetzel, great S. M. U. guard, was injured and forced from the game early in the struggle.

TOPPING STARS.

Keith Topping, Pasadena boy playing at home for the last time, outshone his more publicized teammate, "Monk" Moscrip. Moscrip was in and out, making some sensational plays, but also slipping badly on others. Topping was consistently good.

Paulman was the offensive and defensive star of the Stanford backfield. The young quarterback played a sensational game on defense, was alert throughout and had a much better day on the whole than his All-American teammate, Bobby Grayson. Grayson was never able to get away, his longest run of the day being seven yards and he was tossed several times for five and six-yard losses.

Southern Methodist led in first downs nine to six, and gained more total yardage, 187 to 160. The Mustangs gained 104 yards from passing against 44 for Stanford in its two completed tosses.

S. M. U. attempted 31 passes and completed 10, while Stanford connected with two out of six. Stanford, however, intercepted six of the Mustangs' throws, while S. M. U. caught only one Stanford pass.

Stanford fumbled three times but recovered each, while S. M. U. fumbling only once, lost the ball on the Stanford five-yard line.

Stanford struck while the football iron was hot and kept Southern Methodist away from the goal, the Indians' greatest strength today undoubtedly being their ability to rush the passers. Once set, the Mustangs might have passed to two or more touchdowns, but the Redskins, led by the fast-topping, never would let them get in position to throw as they had thrown early in the season.

BEATS GRAYSON.

Fred Williams, Grayson's substitute, had a better average than the big Stanford fullback. Williams carried

Lives Up to Advance Notices in Sugar Bowl

Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian quarterback, came up to expectations as the Horned Frogs nosed out the Tigers of L. S. U. in the Sugar Bowl yesterday, 3-2. Although Tinsley and Barrett, opposing ends, rushed Baugh incessantly, and made his passing less effective than in other games this season, Sammy played an alert game and was a constant threat. His tackling upon several occasions prevented what appeared to be sure-fire Tiger scores and his kicking was good. Sammy got away for a 44-yard run in the fourth quarter. In the second quarter, Baugh was driven across the end zone by Tinsley, while attempting to pass, giving L. S. U. an automatic safety. Associated Press photo.

DETROIT LIONS BEAT PRO STARS

Smooth Offense of Pro Champs Too Good for Foes.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions, National Professional Football league champions, added a post-season triumph to their record today by smashing out a 33-to-0 exhibition victory over a team picked from their league opponents.

Billed as the "all-stars," pro gridsters representing most of the teams in the National league were unable to break up the smooth offensive of the Lions, keynoted by Ace Gutowsky and Dutch Clark. Nor could they do much with the ball on the occasions when they had it in their possession.

More than 11,000 persons were on hand to see the pro exhibition, Denver's first meeting with the football big league.

The Lions, unimpressive in the opener, scored early in the second when Fullback Gutowsky faked to Ernie Caddel and spun four yards through left guard for a touchdown.

Quarterback Dutch Clark, playing in his home state, scored soon after the second half started, then Gutowsky contributed another goal. Bill Shepherd ran 48 yards for the fourth marker.

A quick pass, Frank Christensen to Glen Presnell, added the final touchdown in the fourth period.

Coach Link Lyman's all-stars, handicapped by lack of co-ordination, were almost helpless before the Lions' attack, but George Sauer, Charlie Malone and Lou Gordon smeared up enough plays to keep the game interesting.

Sugar Bowl Features

By Ralph McGill.

THE SUGAR BOWL, NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 1.—There was tremendous roar as the teams took the field for the kickoff.

The Texas band, a little cluster of white in the background of dark coats and umbrellas kept up a terrific din. They never stopped. They've got lots of wind, have the boys from the wide-open spaces.

They carry their own colors—a little bit of an idea which can be recommended to the teams in our Dixie set. There was the Lone Star flag, the school flag and the American flag with a feminine escort.

The skies had stopped raining, but there was a mist and the field was bad and very slippery. Rain was coming back later. The day was of the sort the aviators called ceiling zero which means the clouds were right down on the field.

The Texas alma mater is a song called "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You." It is sung to the tune, "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

The crowd was a great one. It apparently reached the estimated 37,000. The scalpers were badly hurt, selling $4 tickets at the last minute for what they would bring.

MILLER BEATEN BY R. CASANOVA

MEXICO, D. F., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Rodolfo Casanova, Mexican champion, decisively defeated Freddie Miller, of Ciincinnati, the National Boxing Association's world featherweight titleholder, in a 10-round non-title bout in the bull ring today.

A capacity crowd of 30,000 fans saw the Mexican win seven rounds by clear margins and score one knockdown after being belted off his feet in the sixth. Miller barely avoided being knocked out in the last two rounds and took a terrific beating.

Casanova, who holds the featherweight and lightweight championships of Mexico, more than made up for his defeat by Miller a year ago. He received the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. Newspaper scorecards gave Miller only the first, fourth and sixth rounds, with the rest going to Casanova.

Nath Gans Leaves Macon Sport Field

MACON, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Nathan Alfred Gans, widely-known sports editor of the Macon Evening News, will succeed Robert M. Gamble as sales promotion manager at Harp Brothers, work clothing manufacturers, it was announced tonight by Morris Michael Sr., an executive of the firm.

Although Mr. Michael could not say tonight when Mr. Gans would assume his new duties, it was generally expected the change would materialize within the next few days.

LOOK GOOD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Although they've gone through some big changes since they won the International Hockey League championship last spring, the Detroit Olympics still look a bit too good for the rest of the league when the going gets tough.

HILLSBOROUGH BEATS UTICANS

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Hillsborough High school of Tampa defeated New York Free Academy, of Utica N. Y., here this afternoon, 7 to 6, in a New Year's Day intersectional game for charity.

Le Roy Sweat, Hillsborough end, blocked Ed Roczen's punt in the third quarter and picked the ball out of the air at the five-yard line, going across for Tampa's score. Alfred Massey, Hillsborough guard, kicked goal for the winning point.

Roczen intercepted a pass from Hatch on Hillsborough's 25, from where the Utes drove for their score in the first period with Roczen driving through the line nine yards for the score.

MANTON'S FOOT SWINGS IN RAIN FOR FIELD GOAL

37,000 See Tigers Take Lead With Safety in Second Quarter.

By Ralph McGill.

THE SUGAR BOWL, NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 1.—Taldon Manton's right toe swung through the driving rain this afternoon in the second quarter of the Sugar Bowl game.

The ball went tumbling end over end over the cross bar 26 yards away to put the Texas Christian football team ahead of the L. S. U. Tigers 3 to 2 and the Christians held that Tiger through the remaining two quarters.

The demi-tasse victory of 3 to 2 brought to an end the second annual Sugar Bowl game, played in a downpour for most of it's 60 minutes before a crowd of 37,000.

And so it came that the star of L. S. U. set and the Lone Star flag was fluttering in trumph at about the hour the Lone Star flag carried by S. M. U. was going into battle in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena.

It was a most amazing football game, the one of the glad new year, which saw L. S. U. twice drive to the Texas team's 2-yard line and fail to score. It saw one running threat from the Texans, a first down at the Tiger 2-yard line. That threat the Tigers drove back so that the final play of the series saw the Lone Star team back at the 10-yard line for a loss of eight yards in four tries.

ONE-INCH LINE.

The first L. S. U. threat failed at the 1-inch line.

Sammy Baugh, the wild horse from the plains, was back to kick. He was near the last white line behind his goal and as the ball came back, Gaynell Tinsley, the great Tiger end, came back with it. He drove Sammy Baugh across the line as he tried a desperate pass and it was an automatic safety. And 2 points for L. S. U.

This was early in the second period.

The winning three points followed a few seconds after it. The Texans kicked off and on the first play Bill Crass, the big fullback, fumbled and Willie Walls recovered at the L. S. U. 40 for the Christians.

The rain prevented a real passing game, but both teams tried it and completed three each. T. C. U. came through with one, Jimmy Lawrence, and not Sammy Baugh, throwing the pass to Walls, who had recovered the fumble, for a 24-yard gain and a first down at the Tiger 36.

THE FIELD GOAL.

The Tiger line tossed back three plays and on the fourth one, Manton dropped back, and with Baugh handling the ball, place-kicked the ball over the cross bars. It traveled 26 yards, but it goes down in the records as a 16-yard goal, the scrimmage line being at that point.

That was all. The rain poured and the backs slipped and slid in the mud as they tried to put together some sort of an attack.

L. S. U. got one going in the fourth quarter, showing some of their old drive.

Sammy Baugh fumbled and Mihalic recovered at the Texans' 32. From there, Bill Crass and Abe Mickal drove the ball to the 2-yard line. Crass took it over but officials ruled he had touched the boundary line and he was called out of bounds at the 2-yard line.

FOUR LOSE TWO.

Four plays, including a pass, lost just two yards.

That was the second and last threat from the Tiger.

It was the old, old Tiger weakness which they showed all year. It was the difference between a great team and a good team. The quarter-backing was not very smart and the team lacked the scoring punch which marks a real football team.

The Texans failed to live up to advance notices and they, too, showed a lack of punch when their chance came to score a touchdown.

It was the third game in a series which must stand as the unique series in football. In 1931 Texas Christian beat L. S. U., 3 to 0, and in 1932 they tied, 3 and 3. Today L. S. U. was defeated, 3 to 2.

VICTORY FOR RAIN.

The real victory was scored by the rain which made the game a rather drab affair except for the field goal and the rush which stopped Sammy Baugh and gave the Baton Rouge team a safety.

The real only outstanding feature was the kicking. Sammy Baugh averaged 48 yards on 14 punts and Abe Mickal and Bill Crass, of L. S. U., averaged 45 yards on 13 kicks.

This was done with a wet and heavy ball and in a lashing, tropic rainstorm.

Neither team had an opportunity to prove itself.

On the basis of today's play there seemed little one could say for either team. The rain made it impossible to judge either team fairly. But it could be said that Sammy Baugh was a real performer. He was a defensive star today, intercepting two passes and providing brilliant kicking.

RUNS 44 YARDS.

His one offensive show was a nice 44-yard run in the fourth period when the Texans made their one touchdown threat. And when the punch was need-

SOUTHERN RALLY FAILS BY POINT; CARDS TRIUMPH

Fourth-Quarter Attack Nets 13 Points, But Catholics Win.

By J. P. McKnight.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—In an intersectional football game full to overflowing of thrills, Catholic University's big red Cardinals edged out by one point the lighter, late-rallying University of Mississippi eleven here this afternoon. The score was 20-19.

A feature of Miami's second annual Orange Bowl festival, the New Year's Day classic, drew to Miami stadium more than 10,000 paying patrons.

They sat sweltering in hot Florida sunshine and screaming themselves hoarse as the game Ole Miss eleven, led by Sparkplug Ray Hapes, hammered across two touchdowns in the final period to whittle Catholic's big early lead down to the single point.

In game's even forecasts the rival coaches—"Dutch" Bergman, of Catholic, and Ed Walker, of Ole Miss—voiced the opinions breaks would decide the game. They prophesied truly.

CARDS GET BREAK.

A break it was that gave the Cardinals their final touchdown, in the third period, the touchdown that was to be needed, it developed, in staving off Ole Miss' closing drive. That score, too, gave big Bob Makofske, plunging Catholic fullback, his opportunity to boot the placement kick for the point that was the margin of victory.

Leading 13-6 as the second half opened, the Cardinals, wind at their backs, drove Ole Miss gack with Makofske's long punts.

At last Dave Bernard, Mississippi quarter, dropped back to kick from his 24-yard line. The right side of the Catholic line battered through to block it. Rydzewski, reserve end, grabbed the tumbling ball in air and dashed over. Makofske converted to make the score 20-6.

HAPES COMES BACK.

Hapes, injured in the first half as the husky, hard-charging Catholic line smothered the Ole Miss offense, came back to the game to fire the southerners with new life.

Taking the ball on their 30-yard line after intercepting an aerial, they hammered straight down the field, with the help of one 17-yard pass, to their second score, Bernard diving over from the 1-foot line. His placement try failed, however, leaving the Mississippians trailing eight points.

Not discouraged, they uncorked the aerial circus for which they were famous, Baumstein, reserve quarter, firing two passes to Poole, end, for 15 and 24 yards to score in the final minute of the game.

Richardson, big tackle who had kicked 26 of 29 conversion tries this season but who failed after the first Ole Miss score, came back to the game and booted the point. But it was not enough. Moments later the game ended, with Catholic holding the ball in midfield.

If the second half was mostly Ole Miss', the first was nearly all Catholic's.

The Cardinals, 10 pounds the man heavier, took the ball on an intercepted pass midway the first quarter and steam-rollered their way 53 yards to score. A smoothly executed lateral, Dranginis to Adamaitis, got 2 yards and the touchdown. Mulligan, star end, converted.

CATHOLIC WINS AGAIN.

Near the middle of the second quarter, Catholic scored again, this time through the air. Bernard, of Ole Miss, punted out on his 49. On the first play Admaitis faded back to his 35 to heave the ball 45 yards to Foley, reserve quarter. Foley, taking the ball at full speed, went the 20 yards to the goal line untouched. Mulligan's kick for point was blocked.

Ole Miss broke the scoring ice not long after. From its 20-yard line, the Southern eleven drove to the 32 where Peters, sweeping wide around left end behind perfect interference, streaked 68 yards down the sidelines to score. There Richardson missed the fateful conversion try.

The ever-threatening Ole Miss eleven, out-gaining Catholic along the ground, rolled up 12 first downs to its opponents' four. The big Red line stiffened in its own territory, however, to halt several threats, while intercepted aerials or fumbles bogged down others.

FIRST QUARTER.

After several punt exchanges, Catholic University drove to the game's first score.

Adamaitis, Catholic half, intercepted Bernard's long pass on his 35-yard line and returned 12 yards to the 47. Using straight line plays, the heavy Catholic backs battered their way down the field to Mississippi's 2, where, on fourth down, Dranginis lateral-passed to Adamaitis for 2 yards and the touchdown.

Mulligan, Catholic end, place-kicked the extra point.

A 30-yard punt return by Ray Hapes, speedy Mississippi halfback, carried the southerners into Catholic's territory for the first time, just before the quarter ended, Catholic U., 7; Mississippi, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

A sensational pass that was good for 49 yards gave Catholic another touchdown midway the second period.

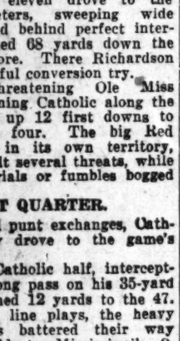

Adamaitis from his 49-yard line, faded back to the 35 where he passed to Foley, reserve quarterback, on the Mississippi 20-yard line. Foley crossed the goal line standing up. The pass traveled 45 yards in the air. Mulligan's placement kick for the point was blocked, and Catholic led 13 to 0.

As Catholic reserves came into the lineup, the Ole Miss attack finally got underway. After rolling two first downs that carried the ball to midfield, an intercepted pass halted the threat temporarily. Catholic had to punt, however, and on the fourth play, from his 32-yard line, Peters, halfback, swept wide around left end to go 68 yards across the goal. Richardson, tackle who had kicked 26 of Joe Lipps, of Ty Ty, Ga., a protege of Jack Dempsey, and one whom the ex-champion sees as a real contender for the heavyweight championship within a short time, was caught by Turner Hiers, Constitution cameraman, at his Ty Ty home. At the upper left, Joe is fondling the gun with which he has been bagging his share of birds since he came home a few weeks ago. Joe's two brothers, Ralph and Frank Lipps, shown at the boxer's right, are all ears as Joe relates his hunting experiences. Joe usually winds up by getting around to the subject of boxing. Dempsey told Lipps to go home and gain some weight. The photo at the right indicates the Ty Ty boy is following instructions. He is doing his duty and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Lipps, appear right proud of their son, whom they confidently expect to attain ring heights. Lipps will come to Atlanta within the next few days and start training for his next fight, a battle with Corn Griffin at Charlotte, N. C., on January 17. Griffin is a tough foe for any youngster.

Stanford Wouldn't Take A Third Strike---Rice

Indians Catch Southern Methodist With Bad Case of Jitters; Paulman Stars.

By Grantland Rice.

Copyright 1936, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—Stanford refused to take the third strike. The team that fell before Columbia and Alabama in two previous Rose Bowl starts caught Southern Methodist in a bad case of jitters and won, 7 to 0, in a drab, ordinary football game that had few thrills for 85,000 spectators who waited in vain for the color and action that never came to light.

After 12 straight victories Southern Methodist fell at the 13th. Charged, stopped in the air and pinned to the ground by a Stanford defense that was far more alert than anything the Palo Alto Indians had shown before over Rose Bowl turf.

The greatest crowd that ever saw a Rose Bowl game found the Texans so full of tension, so badly tightened up, that even when opportunity hammered at the door there was no one to open it up. Stanford, far more alert and aggressive than ever before, got the first big jump. This came on Paulman's phenomenal quick kick to S. M. U.'s 9-yard line, a mighty boot that traveled over 70 yards.

That blow had the Texans on their heels in the first quarter. A few moments later Bobby Grayson whipped a 23-yard pass to Coffis who planted the ball on the Texans' 19-yard line. Three slashing, savage drives by Bobby Grayson carried the ball to the one-yard line and from that spot Paulman sneaked across the line and Moscrip kicked goal.

That one 42-yard march ended Stanford's offense for the day. At the moment those seven points looked none too formidable, but as the game wore along they proved to be quite enough. Stanford had nothing left by ground or air to even threaten another advance, but Stanford had a a line that bottled up or rolled back a running game that had only the fleet feet of Bobby Wilson to carry on.

STORY WRITTEN HERE.

The deep thrust that reached the heart of the Mustang invasion came in the second period. In this period the story of the game was written on one play. Coming back with a counter attack Southern Methodist opened up its one sustained advance. From Texas territory Finley whipped a pass to Wilson who made a miraculous catch and planted the ball on Stanford's 40-yard line. The roar from 25,000 Texas throats rolled on across the Sierra Madre mountains.

On the next play Southern Methodist had 85,000 spectators on their feet with a triple lateral, Wilson to Tipton to Sprague to Finley, a juggling, whirling, devilish down-field rush that picked up 35 yards and left the ball on Stanford's five-yard line. As the last lone Stanford defender dragged Finley down as he was diving for the goal line.

This whirl of laterals, perfectly executed, had every Texan in the stands all set for the touchdown and tieing thrust. First down and only five yards away, in the saddle and ready to ride and then on the first play that came from Sprague to Shuford to Finley, Finley fumbled and Stanford recovered the ball.

Joe Louis might as well have nailed every member of the Mustang team squarely on the chin. That lone fumble had wiped out an advance of more than 60 yards. Only a few plays later the Texans were deep again in their own territory with their morale shattered and their timing badly wrecked.

IN HIS HANDS.

Just a short while after this, Grayson threw a pass that sailed directly into the open arms of Harry Shuford, one of the best backs of the year. Shuford had no one close with an open field ahead for either a touchdown or a down-field gallop that could not have missed the 15-yard line.

"There goes the tieing score," yelled Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, as the ball came to Shuford. But it struck and bounded away and the Texans had blown another chance.

Later on in the game, when they had another chance to swing under headway, they threw four passes in a row that fell far short of the open target waiting for the ball. The ball game ended so far as any action was concerned when Southern Methodist fumbled away its chance on Stanford's 5-yard line. From that point on Stanford had no offense that makes any sort of headway. Both its running and passing game was completely wrecked. But Stanford had those

'Wasn't Our Day', Says Mat Bell, Mustang Coach

By Felix R. McKnight.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A frown from lady luck, over-anxiousness and an "off day" on their aerial bombing cost the Southern Methodist Mustangs the chance for a Rose Bowl victory today, in the opinion of Coach Matty Bell.

"We played a great ball club today," Bell told his players as they soaked under the showers. "It's O. K.—it just wasn't our day."

The lanky coach, who had guided the Mustangs through 12 straight victories and placed the southwest's first team in the tournament of roses classic, spotted one play as the "back-breaker."

"That reverse, with Bobby Grayson carrying, that put Stanford on our three-yard line in the first period, decided the ball game. It dazed the boys for a minute and Stanford had its touchdown."

He referred to a seven-yard crack into the line by the battering Grayson shortly after the Indians had approached pay dirt on a long pass.

"My kids were great on the defense, our offense failed to get under way, but I was right proud of the way the kids stopped the Stanford power plays."

Bell grinned and admitted that he was entitled to his share of the "ifs" and remarked that:

"If we hadn't fumbled on the five-yard line I believe we would have scored and played better offensively. And if Bobby Wilson had gotten away on that first punt return in the first period we would have had another touchdown and if Shuford had intercepted that pass he dropped in an open-field—oh, well, a great ball club beat us, and that's the only way you can figure it."

ed, the Texans failed. They lost eight yards in four plays trying to punch the ball across.

The rain made it impossible for either team to put on the expected and anticipated air show.

Each team completed three passes, the Texans having the best average with three completed in eight attempted.

L. S. U. tried 21, but most of them came in the last quarter when all hope was gone and they were throwing the ball, desperately trying to pass.

L. S. U. HAS EDGE.

The Baton Rouge eleven made nine first downs to six for the winning team. The net running game was but three yards apart, T. C. U. gaining 109 yards and L. S. U. 106. The Tigers had an edge in actual gains, with 144 yards to 122, but they had some losses which brought down their total.

Sammy Baugh was superior at handling kicks, getting them back 61 yards. They caught most of them today, did the safety men of both teams. It was his returns which helped keep the pressure on L. S. U. in the third quarter, keeping them back near their own goal with kicking.

Darrell Lester, All-American center for Texas Christian was hurt in the second quarter and could not show his real ability. He had played great ball until that time. The Tigers had driven to the Texans' 3-yard line. when Lester was hurt and replaced by Tittle.

The individual stars were really but two. The greatest defensive star was Gaynell Tinsley, the L. S. U. left end. He was magnificent on all plays. He was called by the delighted Dutch Meyer, Texas Christian coach, the greatest end he ever saw and a genuine All-America performer.

Sammy Baugh was the Texas star and perhaps Willie Wall, a substitute end, must be placed with him. He helped the victory along by recovering a fumble and catching a pass to put the ball down there where Taldon Manton could drive the ball over with a place-kick.

MANTON AGAIN.

Manton kicked a field goal in the Santa Clara game which Texas Christian won, 10 to 6.

Texas Christian won, but the game decided nothing as to the relative merits of southwest and southern football unless it was both lack of a punch at the goal line.

Bernie Moore, the L. S. U. coach, was disappointed. He said the rain stopped all but defensive football and that the 3-to-2 score told the story of a rainy day game.

Dutch Meyer, the Texas coach, was, of course, delighted. "It was the finest game I ever saw played in the rain," he said. "I am proud of my boys. I thought Tinsley the greatest end I ever saw."

FIRST QUARTER.

Seago kicked off to Lawrence on Christian's 10. Failing to gain, Baugh kicked to Reed who was stopped on his own 23. On the first play Reed tried a long pass to Barrett that fell incomplete when the Tiger end was tackled. Two line plays failed and Mickal kicked to Baugh on T. C. U.'s 25. Kline broke through tackle for 38 yards to L. S. U.'s 37 but the play was called back for an offside penalty. On the next play Baugh passed to Meyer for 16 yards and first down on T. C. U.'s 37 and Lawrence followed with a 26-yard dash to L. S. U.'s 37. Three line plays netted seven yards and on fourth down Reed intercepted a pass on his own 20 and returned to his 24.

Reed broke through tackle for 20 yards to his own 46. Line plays gained 5 and Mickal quick-kicked 45 yards to Texas Christian's 7 where Tinsley downed the ball. An exchange of kicks followed and the Frogs took the ball on their own 20 on Mickal's kick over the goal. Baugh quick-kicked 68 yards to L. S. U.'s 12, Reed returning to his 20. Baugh quick-kicked 68 yards the ball five times for an average of 2.4, while Grayson averaged 1.8 in 17 times and Wilson 1.75 in 12 times. Grayson gained a total of 42 yards and Wilson 50 yards. Bones Hamilton carried it 14 times for 38 yards and an average of 1.5. Shelly Burt ran the ball twice for Southern Methodist, gaining six yards, an average of three yards, and Jack Rabbit Smith wound up with a minus average.

INDIANS SCORE IN 1ST QUARTER

The slippery Wilson gave the Texans their first chance to cheer at the very start of the game when he took Paulman's first punt of the day on the S. M. U. 45-yard line and dashed to Stanford's 27-yard stripe. Nothing came of this effort, however, for the drive was stopped when Jim Coffis intercepted a Methodist pass on his own 12-yard line.

A smart quick kick by Paulman put the visitors deep in the hole a few minutes later. The bal was grounded on S. M. U.'s 10-yard line and when Bob Finley kicked back, Coffis slipped past two of the opposition and sprinted 16 yards to S. M. U.'s 39-yard line.

Grayson gave the ball to Paulman who tossed a forward pass to Coffis on the 19-yard line. Grayson picked up six yards on a desperate plunge and Iron Man Wetzel, stalwart Southern Methodist guard, was assisted from the field. Grayson failed to gain but on the next play went to the 2-yard line. Grayson lost a half yard but Paulman went all the way across the goal line on the next play, which caught the southerners napping. Everybody but Paulman went to the right while Bill slanted to the left and after running more than five yards found himself squarely in pay dirt.

S. M. U. TRAILS.

Moscrip kicked the goal and Southern Methodist was behind for the first time all season.

Stanford seemed about to score against at the start of the second period when Topping caught a pass on S. M. U.'s 29-yard line. After but two losing plays, Sprague intercepted a pass.

The Mustangs then got their passing game to work for a time and Finley passed to Wilson on the 47-yard line and then Harry Shuford threw one to Wilson on Stanford's 40. A forward pass followed by two laterals gave the Methodists the ball on Stanford's five-yard line.

Wilson passed to Stewart who gave the ball to Shuford who in turn handed it to Finley, the last named player being downed just five yards from the Reds' goal. The big Rose Bowl was filled with wild yells and broad brimmed hats but on the next play Wilson fumbled and Wes Muller recovered for Stanford on the eight-yard line.

The Mustangs never had another chance so good although there was a fleeting moment in the second half when Old Man Luck looked and then turned away as a pass struck a player's hands and bounded out. Stanford got close enough for Moscrip to try a field goal from the 25-yard line and at the very close of the game after four S. M. U. passes failed. Stanford took the ball on S. M. U.'s 12-yard line. Moscrip warmed up his foot again but the game ended before he could take another shot.

Gorilla Jones Wins In 'Comeback' Start

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Gorilla Jones, former middleweight champion, knocked out Tait Littman, Milwaukee, in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout, to successfully launch a comeback campaign here today.

The former Akron titleholder sent the Milwaukee blond to the floor for a count of eight before the round was two minutes old. A straight right landed flush on Littman's jaw to score the knockdown.

It was Jones' first fight under the management of Joe Louis' handlers. Jones weighed 157 1-4, Littman 161 1-2.

Mann Answers Attack Made by Joseph Engel

Earl Thinks Lights Will Help Looks of Lookouts; Pelican Feud Brewing.

By Jack Troy.

A broadside from cagey Joe Engel was all Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, needed to warm him up in the icy weather that nature has dished up for Atlanta to the apparent delight of another rival Southern league town, New Orleans.

Somehow, President Mann constrained from asking if Chattanooga was still in the Southern league, but what he did allow was more to the point.

"It is my guess that Engel is putting in a lighting system for night baseball at Chattanooga to make the Lookouts easier on the fans' eyes up there.

"Engel's athletes won't stand out as sharply under lights as they will in the glare of the mid-afternoon sun," Mann said. "I think he has a good idea there and is, of course, hiding the real reason behind an argument that attendance will increase.

"We may not win another pennant in 20 years, but Chattanooga will do well to finish eighth. If they get too bad, Engel can turn out the lights.

"In this connection I would like to remind Mr. Engel that we had lights all last season and never once thought of turning them out."

Speaking of New Orleans, which always takes genteel jabs at freakish Atlanta weather, President Mann declared Atlanta planned to make it hot for the Pelicans when the proper time came.

The Crackers still have lines out for Phil Weintraub, the big Jewish outfielder. He would make a great attraction, but it is generally figured that Branch Rickey would ask too much money for him.

As to a reserve catcher, Atlanta can get McCaskill back if he is needed, it is understood.

President Mann is working daily at the park, come ice, snow, rain or hail, and business will be picking up very soon now.

'Sun' Bowl Teams Battle to 14-14 Tie

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 1.—(AP)—It was a 14-to-14 tie in the Sun Bowl today.

Playing before the largest football crowd in El Paso's history, the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboys, of Abilene, and New Mexico State College Aggies battled up, down and across the Sun Bowl in a game that had everything but a winning punch.

Nearly 12,000 spectators saw the outweighed Aggies come from behind twice to tie the score, the last time in the twilight minutes of the Sun Bowl.

Y-CIVIC LEAGUE.

The Texas Company's basketeers maintained their perfect record by defeating the WPA hoopmen, 21 to 13, in the only game played in the Y-City League Tuesday night. Claud Reed was ace gunman for the victors, while Clegg and McCay divided scoring honors for the losers. This was the lowest score to which the league leaders have been held this season. The guarding of both clubs was above the average.

WPA (13)	Pos.	TEXAS CO (21)
B. Clegg (6)	F	Hill (6)
Johnson	F	Reed (7)
McCay (4)	C	Clegg (6)
Davis	G	Potts (1)
Bauer	G	Kindel (3)

Substitutions: WPA, Taylor (3), Conyers; Texas Company, Oliver, Ramsbotham.

Y-CIVIC LEAGUE.

The Y-Civic League will resume play Thursday night on the Y. M. C. A. court with three games on the menu. Calvary Methodist opens the series against the Tri-State Construction Company, while the newcomer to the league, Decatur Battery & Tire Company, engages Henry Grady's team in the second contest. Walthour & Hood, league leaders, play Fulton Bag & Cotton Mill in the nightcap.

The schedule:

Calvary vs. Tri-State Construction Company, 7 p. m.

Henry Grady vs. Decatur Tire & Battery Company, 8 p. m.

Walthour & Hood vs. Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, 9 p. m.

EASTERN TEAM BEATS WEST, 19-3, BY GREAT RALLY

Victors Overcome Three-Point Lead in Fourth Quarter.

By Russell J. Newland.

KEZAR STADIUM, SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—East conquered West on the football field today with a 19-to-3 score that turned the final quarter of the eleventh intersectional charity classic into a Western rout.

On the short end of a 3-to-0 count just after the final period opened, the finest collection of collegate stars assembled under the Eastern banner in years snatched at a fumble and intercepted two passes to convert the breaks into touchdowns while nearly 60,000 fans cheered them on.

The score was the most one-sided since 1928, when an Eastern team won by a 20-to-0 margin, and completely justified the 2-to-1 odds which estilished the visiting squad as the favorite early in the practice period.

The Eastern touchdown followed recovery of a fumble made by Little Bill "Kayo" Lam, University of Colorado halfback. It was Lam's second error of the game and a costly one as it turned the tide of battle and set the stage for reversal of what was leading up to an upset victory for the West.

THE BEGINNING.

Charlie Wasicek, big tackle from Colgate, fell on the ball on the West's 43-yard line. Getting up full power, the East smashed goalward under impetus furnished by Ed Smith, New York University halfback, who came in as a substitute at left half; Paul Pauk, of Princeton, subbing at right half, and Don Irwin, line crusher from Colgate, and fullback replacement.

Ed Smith tossed a short pass to Pauk who ran seven yards for the first score which changed the lead. Irwin converted the extra tally with a place-kick.

The next two touchdowns made in quick succession, saw passes by Bill Wallace, Rice Institute halfback, intercepted. Irwin snagged the first one, to give the East possession on the West's 26. Ed Smith ripped off 12 yards and Irvin 11 on successive line drives and Irwin dove over the line on the last try, a three-yard gain.

Receiving the kickoff, the West tried a pass on its own 10-yard line. This time Comer Jones, Ohio State center, bobbed up, nabbed the oval and boomed around the West's right end for approximately 15 yards and the final touchdown. The place kick tries on the last two touchdowns were missed by Irwin and Heekin, Ohio State halfback.

FIELD GOAL.

The East's second period field goal try resulted from a fumble by Lam which caused the ball to change hands six yards from the latter's goal.

The victory was the fourth for the East since the game was established in 1925 and its first since 1931.

For the East, practically every one of the 21 stars who got into the game showed up impressively. In the backfield, Ed Smith, Dick Crayne, of Iowa; Irwin, Riley Smith, Alabama quarterback, and Heekin were outstanding. Bob Train, Yale end; Wadsworth Longfellow, Northwestern end; Joe Stydahar, University of West Virginia; Art Lewis, University of Ohio; Charlie Wasicek, Colgate, all tackles, and Jones, the sturdy center, turned in brilliant performances.

The Western boys who stood out included the Rice Institute combination of Wallace and John Sylvester, rangy end, who brought his team its only points with a 10-yard field goal from placement just as the fourth period opened.

The game was preceded by a pageant in which several hundred representatives of civic, and fraternal organizations and the military participated. Weather conditions were ideal.

The summary:

EAST (19)	Pos.	WEST (3)

All-Augusta Golf Final Assured

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—History repeated itself today as Alex Ogilvie Jr., Charles Whaley, Frank Mulherin and Harold Munger stroked their way into the semi-finals of the second annual southern star amateur golf tournament at Forest Hills, thereby assuring an All-Augusta finals for the second year.

The finals will be played Friday, but Mickey Gallagher, club professional, said this afternoon that the distance of the championship match still was undecided and will be left to the finalists who will be banging away to capture the crown of Dick Daniel, defending champion, who was eliminated Tuesday. Daniel succumbed at the same time Bill Zimmerman, Georgia state amateur champion, was ushered out of the tourney by Ogilvie, the medalist.

Playing the same consistent golf which has characterized his play this far, Ogilvie this afternoon went to the semi-finals by eliminating R. V. Ostrander, Houston, Texas, 3 and 1. Whaley defeated Joe Stulb, Augusta, 2 and 1, while Mulherin trounced W. R. Kennedy, 4 and 3. F. F. Dalley Jr., of Ancaster, Ontario, Canada, fell before Munger, 3 and 1.

Pairings for tomorrow bring together Ogilvie and Whaley, while Mulherin and Munger meet to decide the other finalist.

MARSHALL WINS.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Despite a 102-pound handicap, Everett Marshall, of LaJunta, Colo., scored a decisive wrestling triumph over Chief Sunoco, North Carolina Indian, today. The Indian weighed 320 pounds against 218 for Marshall.

HOME APPEARANCE.

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 1.—Duke Univesity's 1936 edition of basketeers, victors in two pre-season games on foreign floors, make their first home appearance tomorrow night by meeting the Elon College quintet. Tomorrow night's clash opens a two-game home stand for the Blue Devils. On Friday night, the boys of Eddie Cameron will offer the first intersectional game of the year by meeting the Yale University Elis. It will be one of the major intersectional games of the year in this section.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 4

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan looked sternly at the fear-stricken and demanded again: "How, do you think, did this warrior of your tribe meet death?" Gowando shrugged: "It is plain, O Great Bwana, that he was killed by one of the terrible clawed beasts of the jungle."

The elders of the tribe seized upon this explanation with eager grunts of approval and relief. "True, true!" they cried. "The marks of the claws are plain. Terrible is the claw of the lion. Terrible is the talon of the panther. It was thus he died."

The ape-man scowled angrily. "Since when have the wise Gowando and his elders become fools? You know well that the great beasts do not kill except for food. What they kill, they eat. And the body of your fellow tribesman bears no trace of tooth or fang."

The blacks looked at each other guiltily, with terror in their wide eyes. "You know the secret; you must tell me!" Tarzan demanded. "No, Bwana," Gowando replied. "If you knew, you would try to do battle against the Unconquerable, and, you, Bwana, would die!"

'CLOSED SHOP' ORDERED IN FLAT GLASS STRIKE

Labor Head Says Action Is Necessary To Protect Many Workers in Walkout.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Stirking flat glass workers in four states added a "closed shop" demand today to the conditions under which they will return to work.

Glen W. McCabe, national president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers, who called the strike for last midnight, said closed shop now is necessary for the protection of between 5,000 and 6,000 workers who joined in the walkout.

Boost in Pay.

The union demanded a pay boost of 7 1-2 per cent and elimination of geographical wage differences. The manufacturers ask discontinuance of a sliding scale clause. McCabe said he called the strike when it became evident "there was no apparent chance for compromise" with independent manufacturers over a one-year contract renewal.

Towns in which McCabe said the workers walked out are Arnold, Jeanette, Belle Vernon and Fairchance, Pa.; Clarksburg and Sisterville, W. Va.; Fort Smith, Ark., and Okmulgee, Okla.

McCabe ordered the strikers to picket the various plants, and to try peacefully to prevent shipments.

McCabe said several of the operators had communicated with him, offering the workers a 5 per cent increase, but no other concessions. The offers were made for their own plants only, he said, and were refused by the union chief.

McCabe said the average wage for the union workers is 58 cents an hour. The union, he said, rejected an offer made by the manufacturers for a 5 per cent raise in glass prices and a 2 1-2 per cent raise in pay for the workers.

He said he had no idea how long the strike will be in progress, but declared "It won't be called off until the operators meet our demands."

EXAMINATIONS SET FOR TVA WORKMEN

Tests To Be Held in February, March for Helpers on Dams.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 1.—(AP) Open competitive examinations for workmen to be engaged on the construction of Chickamauga and Guntersville dams on the Tennessee river and Hiwassee river dam near Murphy, N. C., will be given in 82 cities in February and March, the Tennessee Valley Authority announced today.

Guntersville dam is nine miles downstream from Guntersville, Ala., and Chickamauga dam seven miles above Chattanooga. Construction of both dams has been authorized. Site of the Hiwassee dam has not been announced.

Examinations will be for positions as skilled workmen, helpers and laborers, and will consist of tests of mechanical skill and ability to perform simple tasks, the TVA said. It also will include a simple test of ability to follow oral instructions. Several thousand workmen will be employed.

Applications for examinations, the TVA announced, may be obtained from local civil service secretaries or postmasters in the vicinity of the three projects. They must be mailed to the TVA at Knoxville not later than January 25, 1936.

Applicants must be at least 16 years of age.

Each person who is to be examined will be notified by admission card from the Authority when and where he is to be examined.

Cities and towns in which the examinations will be held include:

Georgia—Atlanta, Blairsville, Blue Ridge, Calhoun, Canton, Carrollton, Cedartown, Clayton, Cumming, Dahlonega, Decatur, East Point, Gainesville, Jefferson, Lafayette, Lawrenceville, Marietta, Rome, Rossville and Toccoa.

3 KILLED, 3 INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

PALMYRA, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Three persons were killed early today in an automobile collision on the Palmyra-Lebanon highway, just east of the Palmyra borough line.

The dead were John Keller, of Palmdale, and Herbert Hoffsommer, of Harrisburg, drivers of the cars, and Mrs. John Lear, of Annville.

Three others, John Lear and Mary Albright, of Annville, passengers in Keller's car, and Thelma Slusser, of Penbrook, who accompanied Hoffsommer, were injured.

KNOXVILLE JUDGE ENDS 12 YEARS OF SERVICE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 1.—(AP) City Judge Robert P. (Bob) Williams, famed for the red carnation he has worn daily for 41 years and for his annual "Christmas court," today left the bench he has held for 12 years.

He was succeeded by R. A. Mynatt, former attorney-general of Knox county, who defeated Williams in a November election.

to L. S. U.'s 33 as the period ended. Score: T. C. U. 0; L. S. U. 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Failing to gain, Baugh punted to Louisiana's 43. Fatherree broke off tackle for 10 yards and Crass, who replaced Mickal in the Tiger backfield, picked up 6 in two plays. Crass then kicked out of bounds on T. C. U.'s 6. Baugh kicked to midfield and Bowman, substitute halfback, returned to T. C. U's 18. Line smashes gained 6, and then Crass tossed a beautiful pass to Barrett, who caught it on T. C. U's 7 and pulled down on the 3-yard line.

Darrell Lester, All-American center, was hurt on the next play and was replaced by Tittle. Crass hit the line twice then passed widely to Fatherree and L. S. U, lost the ball as Crass' smash at guard was stopped by Kellow at the 1-foot line. Baugh dropped back to pass, but stepped over his end zone, giving L. S. U. an automatic safety. T. C. U. kicked to Louisiana's 40 and on the first play Seago fumbled, Walls recovering for the Frogs on L. S. U.'s 40. On the first play Lawrence passed to Walls for 25 yards, to L. S. U.'s 16. On fourth down Manton place-kicked a perfect field goal from the 26-yard line.

The half ended, T. C. U. 3; L. S. U. 2.

THIRD QUARTER.

Rain began falling as the second half opened. Umbrellas, raincoats and blankets made their appearance in the stands. Manton kicked off to Reed who returned to his 30. Mickal quick-kicked to T. C. U.'s four and Baugh punted to L. S. U.'s 45. An eight-yard pass, Mickal to Reed, and a six-yard slash at tackle by Fatherree, carried to T. C. U.'s 31. On the next play Baugh intercepted Mickal's pass on his own 16. Several punt exchanges followed.

Late in the period Mickal tossed a pretty pass to Barrett from deep in L. S. U. territory that gained 27 yards to the Tigers' 44, but the Frogs stopped the attack and Mickal kicked out of bounds on Texas' 15. Several punt exchanges followed with neither eleven threatening and as the pediod ended Mickal quick-kicked out of bounds on the Frogs' 36.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Baugh returned the kick and then L. S. U. started a drive that carried deep into T. C. U. territory. Line smashes by Mickal and Crass gave the Tigers first down on T. C. U.'s eight.

Fatherree swept around end for six yards, running out of bounds on the Frogs' two-yard line. Crass, in two attempts, lost three yards and a pass from Mickal to Barrett, was knocked down by Manton, with T. C. U. taking the ball on its own five-yard line.

Baugh kicked out of bounds on his own 32 and on the next play Boman fumbled and T. C. U. recovered on L. S. U.'s 46. On third down Baugh crashed through left tackle and reversed his field for 44 yards to the Tigers' two-yard line. Manton lost three yards, Lawrence failed at the line and then Baugh passed to Wall across t.e goal line and it was knocked down by three Tigers. Montgomery, substitute halfback, lost seven yards on an end sweep and L. S. U. took the ball on its own 10, with five minutes left to play.

One line play and two passes failed to gain. Mickal kicked to midfield. Two line cracks failed and Baugh kicked over the Tiger goal line. McClure intercepted Mickal's pass on the Tigers' 35 and returned to L. S. U.'s 25. The game ended a minute later with the Frogs in possession of the ball on L. S. U.'s 21-yard line.

Aquatic Meet Is Ended In Tie

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The west's lone champion, the University of Michigan, today held three eastern aquatic teams, Colgate, Rutgers and the University of Miami, to a 10-10 deadlock in an intercollegiate tank fest here.

Clockers said national intercollegiate records for the 50-meter course were unofficially bettered in all five relay events.

Trailing by four points, the Michigan team of Drysdale, Kasley and Barnard, captured the final event, the 300-meter medley relay, to tie the score.

The events brought to a close Fort Lauderdale's first annual intercollegiate quatic forum, which began 10 days ago.

THE RESULTS.

200-Meter Relay—East, Watner (Colgate), Reilly and Rose (Rutgers), Quayle (Miami). Time 1:51.6.

400-Meter Relay—East, Haefel (Colgate), Simpson and McCarthy (Rutgers), Buist (Miami). Time 5:08.8.

400-Meter Breast Stroke Relay—West, Drysdale, Barnard, Kasley and Johnston (Michigan). Time 5:45.

400-Meter Relay—East, Wagner (Colgate), Reilly and Rose (Rutgers), Quayle (Miami). Time 4:15.

300-Meter Medley Relay—West, Drysdale, Barnard and Kasley (Michigan). Time 3:32.

INDIANS REFUSE A THIRD STRIKE

seven points and Stanford had a sound, alert, aggressive defense that covered both air and turf, a big, hard-charging line, two fine ends in Moscrip and Topping, and a very alert young man in Bill Paulman.

UNHERALDED STAR.

Don't overlook Bill Paulman, about whom little had been written in the pre-game dope. His kicking kept the Texans on their heels through a big part of the game and it was Paulman's pass defense that lifted Stanford from more than one deep pit. He was just as important as either Bobby Grayson or Bobby Wilson in the day's play, and it was Paulman who was the deciding factor as the game was played.

It was Paulman's kicking that picked up an advantage of 300 yards, which is more than enough to win a football game that is even half-way close.

It was Paulman's brilliant defense against the passing attack that broke up at least three vital rallies. From tackle to tackle the two lines were evenly matched. Both defensively, were big, fast and aggressive. Both, offensively, had no hole opening charge. The passing and running attack on both sides was far from being first-class. There was almost no decision, no cohesion, and the blocking was well below big time football. In the main Grayson and Wilson had to go it alone, fight their way as far as they could move with little help.

Early in the first period the fleet-footed Wilson made the star run of the game. He ran Paulman's kick back 30 yards to Stanford's 27-yard line and from this ideal scoring spot the next Texas pass had sailed directly into the arms of Coffis.

ENOUGH CHANCES.

Southern Methodist had all the scoring chances any good team needs. But a combination of Stanford's keen, aggressive defense and S. M. U.'s tension and tightness, wiped out every threatening rally. The Texas team that played Stanford today lacked all the poise and finesse of the team that beat back T. C. U. Part of this was due to Stanford's rugged defense, part to the breakdown of a team that for the first time this year lost its mental balance.

"They lost the one way I never thought they would lose," Bo McMillan said to me as the battle ended. "For the first time in three years they tightened up, they lost their mental balance and they blew a ball game they could have won. Their strength for two seasons, their smartness and poise turned today into their greatest weakness, which had neither smartness or poise."

So it happened that the most ballyhooed of all the Rose Bowl games, the battle that took place before the greatest of all Rose Bowl crowds, turned into a run of the mine scramble which 40 teams from the campaign of 1935 could have surpassed in almost every detail that makes for championship play. To the credit of Stanford, she refused to take a third strike. Southern Methodist laid a fast one across the middle, waist high and this was all that Stanford needed.

AL JARVIS TAKES INDOOR NET TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Alfred L. Jarvis, a six-foot, four-inch youngster from Tenafly, N. J., and a Williams College freshman, made good use of his exceptional height today to blast out a five-set victory over the top-seeded favorite, Donald Leavens, of Northwestern University, in the finals of the national indoor junior tennis championship at the seventh regiment armory.

Jarvis, the boys' champion two years ago and runner-up to Gilbert Hunt, of Washington last year, won the bitterly contested match by scores of 6-4, 4-6, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Earlier Isadore Bellis, of Central High school, Philadelphia, the No. 1 star in his division, became the new year's first sports champion—or the old year's last—by winning the boys' singles title in easy style. Bellis defeated Joseph Fishbach, of New York, seeded second, 6-2, 6-2.

Jarvis, who played impressively throughout the tournament, in which he was seeded fourth, used a terrific service, which he had under good control, brilliant volleying in the fore court and a powerful backhand, which stood up well under heavy bounding, to beat Leavens for the second time in as many years. They met in the quarter-finals of last year's junior tourney with Jarvis winning easily.

PURPLE CAGERS NAME CAPTAINS

Hickman, Mims Chosen; Boys' High Leaves Friday.

The Boys' High basketball team yesterday elected Paul Hickman captain and Billy Mims alternate captain.

Hickman and Mims are both outstanding players in baseball, basketball and football, being members of the All-Southern grid squad of '35.

The Purple cage team, facing a hard schedule before the G. I. A. A. tournament, leaves Friday morning for the first game of the season, the first five being out-of-town contests.

Lanier will furnish the opposition Friday, and Albany is slated for Saturday. In these two opponents, Boys' High will meet some of the strongest basketball opposition in the state.

Coach Dave Johnson will take the following players on the road trip; Hickman, Mims, Goldberg, forwards; Teague and Traylor, centers; Smith, Orenstein, Tenny and Clay, guards.

Norman Pittman, manager, will accompany the team, which will spend Friday night in Macon, Saturday night in Albany, and will return to Atlanta Sunday.

The Boys High team has a strong combination of good players who are expected to develop into championship material before the G. I. A. A. tournament.

OLE MISS RALLY FAILS BY POINT

the 29 points after touchdown this year, was rushed into the game, but his placement try was low and wide. The score: Catholic University, 13; Mississippi, 6.

Hapes, Ole Miss' greatest threat, was hurt on the next to the last play of the period.

THIRD PERIOD.

A series of punt exchanges and fumbles slowed the action as the third period started. From its 20-yard line, Ole Miss at last uncorked an offensive that carried to midfield. Rodgers lost 11 on an end run, to stop the attack.

Punting with the wind, Makfoske consistently outkicked Bernard, the Ole Miss kicker, forcing the southerners deeper and deeper into their territory.

As the period neared its close, Bernard's kick from his 24-yard line was blocked by the right side of Catholic line and Rydzewski, who came into the game on the previous play, caught the ball in the air to score. Makfoske place-kicked the extra point. The score: Catholic, 20; Mississippi, 6.

The injured Hapes, his left leg taped, came back into the game then, and helped Ole Miss get another drive underway as the quarter ended.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Mississippi rallied as the game waned to score two touchdowns in rapid succession. A missed try for point left them short of tying Catholic, however.

A Cardinal pass intercepted just as the third period closed gave Ole Miss the ball on its own 43. From there, Hapes, Bernard and Rodgers drove straight down the field to score, Bernard carrying it over from the one-foot line. Bernard's placement try failed. The score: Catholic U., 20; Mississippi, 12.

Resorting to passes as time was short, Ole Miss advanced 39 yards on two passes to score the final touchdown. Baumstein, reserve halfback, passed first to Poole, left end, for 15 yards to put the ball on Catholic's 24. A moment later, he fired another to the same player who took the ball on the goal line and stepped across. Richardson's placement kick was good and Catholic led 20 to 19.

The game ended three plays later with Catholic holding the ball in midfield.

LYNX EYE WINS TROPICAL RACE

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A record New Year's Day throng of more than 16,000 race-goers today watched Lynx Eye, fleet five-year-old racer, drive to victory in the second running at Tropical park of the E. Phocion Howard memorial handicap, mile and sixteenth holiday feature.

Racing for Robert Robertson, of Toronto, Canada, and with the owner's nephew, Bobby Watson, leading jockey for the Tropical meeting, astride, Lynx Eye bested the favored Stand Pat, last year's Inaugural winner, by half a length. Top Dog, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark, of Chicago, was third.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO HARRY B. SMITH, 75

Author of Musical Comedies, Operettas Was Former Chicago Columnist.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 1. (AP)—Harry B. Smith, 75, author of musical comedy and operetta texts in association with Reginald De Koven, Victor Herbert and others, died of a heart attack today at the Marlborough-Blenheim hotel.

Death occurred unexpectedly during a brief holiday visit here. Mrs. Smith and her brother, Spencer Bentley, were with Smith at the bedside.

Smith, a native of Buffalo, N. Y., had collaborated with leading composers of his day and of the closing years of the past century.

He was a columnist on the Chicago Daily News at the time Eugene Field and Peter Finley Dunn also were columnists on the paper.
